Pennsylvania Holstein President Says Job Is To Steady The Course

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

MERCERSBURG (Franklin Co.) — Real people. Real cattle. Real money.

Those are the three legs of the platform from which newly-elected Pennsylvania Holstein Association (PHA) president Jim Burdette plans to lead the state's largest dairy breed organization.

Burdette, his wife Nina, and their sons Justin and Kyle, own and operate Windy Knoll View Farm, Mercersburg. Their milking herd of 76 head and its offspring is internationally known and repeatedly All-American honored for type and showring accomplishments, along with ongoing breed recognition for bloodlines and overall performance.

In late February, at its annual state meeting and convention, the PHA board elected Burdette for a two-year term as its head. He came to the position well-prepared, having served as Franklin County's state director for five years before his election to the executive board four years ago, the last two as the state vice president.

Burdette's involvement with the breed association has grown and matured in part through the family's showing and merchandising activities as well as his early participation in PHA's Programs Development and Education committee.

"One trip working with that committee and I was hooked," he says of the quality of people and the exchange of ideas he was exposed to among the organization's pool of leadership and volunteers. He also credits several local Franklin County fellow breeders, like Harold Crider and Paul Eckstine, with encouraging him to become involved. As PHA's president, Burdette sees personal involvement as the key to a member's getting the most out of what the organization offers.

SOUTH ANNVILLE (Lebanon Co.) — Those who walk, jog or drive along Bricker Lane in South Annville Township will see something strange bordering Beck Creek.

Lining the banks of the stream, from the bridge downstream, are egg-shell colored, 4-foot "sticks."

The light colored sticks are in stark contrast to the soft, lush greenery of the alfalfa fields on either side of the stream, the tall grasses along the stream edge, and the watercress and aquatic plants undulating in the clear stream.

The sticks are tree protectors.

A closer look reveals they are actually corrugated plastic sleeves, slipped over a stake, used to protect tree seedlings.

They were placed there by more than a hundred school students from four Lebanon County public schools, along with some parochial and home-schooled students, who participated in a recent Lebanon County Conservation District riparian buffer planting project.

Doug Wolgang, district conservationist, along with Andrea Long, district nutrient management specialist, spent a day recently at the streamside, as different groups of students arrived in automobiles

Chester County Orchardist Moves Focus Away From Strawberries, Onto Tree Fruit

WEST CHESTER (Chester Co.) — In suburban areas, strawberry picking isn't what it used to be.

The large-scale customers — those who hand-pick dozens of quarts from pick-your-own operations — may be the norm in areas of Lancaster County. But for the more urbanized parts of southeastern Pennsylvania, especially near the big cities, consumers want only a day or two serving of pre-picked strawberries that don't need to be cut, washed, and prepared.

For growers such as Alan and Paula Johnson of Northbrook Orchards near the town of Unionville, the time has come to "rethink" their operation.

"The strawberry business is a long cry from what it used to be," said Alan Johnson.

In the past, Johnson remembers a thriving business filled with customers who would hand-pick boxes of strawberries and take them

June Dairy Month Issue: June 6 Office Closed May 25

A special tribute to the dairy industry is part of the annual June Dairy Month promotion. Lancaster Farming again plans to especially feature dairy in the June 6 issue. We are working to promote the dairy industry through special visits with farm families, DHIA reports, farm management reports, dairy recipes, and messages from our advertisers. Of special note: we plan to introduce the first module of a dairy management course written by a well-known dairy instructor that will be published in 10 weekly lessons and archived on our home page on the Internet for continuing review and use by dairy farmers around the world.

Our office will be closed Monday, May 25, to observe Memorial Day but will open again for business at 8 a.m. Tuesday. If you have a news story or an advertising message to be placed in this special June Dairy Month issue, please contact our office any day, Monday through Friday, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Our phone number is (717) 626-1164. Our fax is (717) 733-6058.

ATLANTA, GA
MAY 13, 1998

NATIONAL EGG MARKET - AT A GLANCE:

Prices were unchanged. The market tone was mostly steady. Demand continued to cover the full range and was mostly moderate. Loose egg movement remained fair. Supplies were at least adequate or available with jumbos still tight in parts of the Midwest. Breaking stock supplies were also at least adequate for the light demand, and the market tone was cautiously steady. Spent hen offerings were adequate to ample.

National Grain Market

St. Joseph, MO
Wed, May 13, 1998

USDA-MO Dept. Ag Market News

DAILY NATIONAL GRAIN SUMMARY

Grain and soybean bids were moderately higher, today, supported by some export business, weather reports, and a bit of correctional maneuvers by traders. Wheat 1 to 4 cents higher. Corn 1 to 6 cents higher. Sorghum 12 to 14 cents higher. Soybeans 2 to 6 cents higher. Well, wheat bids gained additional ground today as Indonesia's overnight purchase offered some strength. A large factor for the higher trend was concerns over the dryness in parts of Texas and the impact that the high winds and hot temperatures could have on this years wheat crop. The crop is now in the fill and dough stages and expected yields could be severely altered if some moisture is not seen soon. Corn and soybean bids turned higher as traders saw the past three days of lower bids as overdone. Corn planting continues to progress, however, more rain than expected in the Eastern Corn Belt along with very hot temps in the west gave strength to bids. South Korea's corn purchase overnight was also a plus for corn bids. Soybean meal was slightly higher today but ideas that the drought in Mexico could expand into the US in June, offered the most support to bids.

The OLD FARMER'S THIS WEEK WITH ALMANAC

MAY 18-24, 1998

"MAY DAY" FOR EARTHQUAKES?

May 8, 1902, was the date Mt. Pelée in Martinique erupted, leaving 40,000 dead. May 18, 1980, was the date Mount St. Helens in Washington erupted, killing 57. According to the scale devised by Charles W. Richter in 1935, an earthquake magnitude of 1 is detectable only by instruments; 2 is barely detectable, even near the epicenter; 3 is felt indoors; 4 is felt by most people and causes slight damage; 5 is felt by all and causes minor to moderate damage; 6 is moderately destructive; 7 results in major damage; and 8 results in total and major damage.

The future isn't what it used to be.

TIP OF THE WEEK

PEASCODS

1-1/2 pounds baby green sugar peas in pods
1/2 cup water
1/4 cup butter
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon mace
1 egg yolk
2 tablespoons dry sherry or apple juice
2 tablespoons vinegar

Remove the strings and stems from the pods Rinse pods. In a saucepan, combine water, butter, salt. and mace. Bring to a boil and add peas. Cover, reduce heat, and cook 6 to 8 minutes. Beat egg yolk with sherry (or juice) and vinegar. Turn heat to low and add egg mixture, stirring constantly. Serve at once.

Makes 6 servings.

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

A May flood never did good.

The rain comes scouth (heavily) when the wind's in the south.

When the wind is in the south, it will blow your bait into a fish's mouth.

So many mists in March, so many frosts in May.

OPINION

A Faithful Dependence On Science

Veterinarians, farmers, and makers of animal medicines share the concern of public health officials that the injudicious use of antibiotics on the farm can contribute to the increase of antibiotic resistant bacteria being transferred to people via uncooked food. Even though the data are still only suggestive and not definitive, everyone must take this issue seriously. We applaud the animal medic industry for continuing efforts to work with government regulators, public health officials, and all other stakeholder groups to develop new prudent-use guidelines and education programs. These efforts go a long way to assure antibiotics are used wisely, safely, and responsibly.

Everyone needs to remain attentive to scientific evidence as it develops. But we must also be aware that whenever a change or reduction in antibiotic use in food animals is made, some other consequence of importance may emerge. As one agriculture researcher said recently, "When we push down on one risk button, often another pops up in the background."

The challenge is to base decisions and regulations on a faithful dependence on science, not manufactured emotions.

Now Is The Time

By John Schwartz

Lancaster County Agricultural Agent

To Save Alfalfa Leaves

Dr. Mike Collins, University of Kentucky, has completed ten years of studying ways to save alfalfa leaves during harvest. He found hay should be raked into windrows before the moisture content drops below 40 per cent.

This will allow the maximum number of leaves to be kept on the plant. He says leaf loses may increase to as high as 20 per cent if hay approaches storage moisture before it is raked. Hay preservatives are very useful if trying to avoid rain damage.

The economic pay back is mainly in those cases where the use of an effective preservative allows the producer to avoid rain damage. To be effective, make sure you apply enough product and distribute it uniformly through the hay.

To Plan On Using Cover Crops

With the increased interest in environmental effects of agriculture, farmers need to increase their use of cover crops. Cover crops keep soil erosion to a minimum in the winter and act as a nutrient bank, according to Robert Anderson, Lancaster County Extension Agronomy Agent

This is especially true for nitrogen. Cover crops are capable of using left over nitrogen from the previous crop. In the spring, when the cover crop is killed with a herbicide or plowed down, the nitrogen is released back into the soil during the growing season for the next crop to use.

Cover crops also add organic matter to the soil. Organic matter adds water holding capacity to the soil, provides food for soil microbes, improves soil structure and increases the soil's ability to hold some nutrients.

To Control Parasites

Glenn Shirk, Lancaster County Extension Dairy Agent, reminds us a variety of parasites may affect animals throughout their lives. These may be internal parasites such as intestinal worms or external parasites such as lice.

Intestinal worms are generally more of a problem with cattle that are pastured. Calves and heifers are more susceptible to worm infestations than older cows. They may need to be dewormed every three months, especially if they are pastured

There are a variety of dewormers on the market. Some are slow release capsules. Others need to be administrated several times starting in early spring with a second dose soon after. Read and follow label directions. It is also a good practice not to graze heifers after older cows. Older cows may develop immunity to worms but they may still be shedders.

Feather Prof.'s Footnote: "For every obstacle there is a solution - over, under, around or through."

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

THE DIVORCE QUESTION
May 17, 1998

Background Scripture:
Mark 10:1-12
Devotional Reading:
Genesis 2:18-24

The Pharisees raised a question that people are still asking: "Is it lawful for a man to divorce his wife?" (Mark 10:2). Apparently this was a much debated question in Jesus' time, just as it used to be in our society in decades gone by.

Mark teels us that the Pharisees asked Jesus this question "in order to put him to the test." They wanted to catch him in saying something that they could use against him. They probably thought they aleady knew how he would answer. If he said no — as they suspected — they could accuse him of speaking against the Jewish law given by Moses, who had clearly said that it was lawful for a man to do so.

Jesus, however, rarely answered within the strict confines of his enemies' questions. As Halford E. Luccock put it, "Jesus transferred the whole discussion from the realm of is it lawful? into the higher realm of the purposes of God . . ." Turning the tables on them, he asked: "What did Moses command you?" They must have been reluctant to answer, "Moses allowed a man to write a certificate of divorce, and to put her away" (10:4). That ended the question of legality. Of course it is legal for a man to divorce his wife.

YES, IT IS LEGAL

Jesus went on to say, however, "For your hardness of heart he wrote you this commandment. But from the beginning of creation, 'God made them male and female.' For this reason a man shall leave his father and mother and be joined to his wife, and the two shall become one.'" (10:5-9). Yes, it is legal, says Jesus, but this is not what God intends for us.

How interesting, then, that while Jesus changed the question from legality to God's purpose, somewhere along the line Christians changed it back to a legal issue, making a new law out of Jesus' words which were intended to go beyond legality. Despite both the words of Jesus and Moses the churches held that divorce was illegal. Instead of concentrating on the purpose of God, we have concentrated on divorce as a legal problem.

It is easy to see that one of the things that bothers Jesus here with the Pharisees' legal approach is that it gives men a right which was denied to women. Men could terminate their marriages, but their wives could not. For women it was eternally binding; for men it was a matter of temporary convenience or pleasure. This was most certainly contrary to the divine intention.

NO, NOT GOD'S INTENTION

Divorce is always a denial of God's plan for the permenency of marriage. The law of Moses does not change that fact. Divorce always represents human failure and the law represents an accommodation to it — as Jesus said, because of "your hardness of heart." The law was an attempt to deal with that "hardness of heart," not to encourage it. Unfortunately, the law of Moses often ran counter to the purpose of God, making both marriage and divorce too easy.

I have read recently of a law enacted in another state that will make it harder and a more lengthy process to obtain a divorce. It seems to me that we should make it both hard to divorce and harder to marry. If, in seeking marriage, we were more concerned with God's purpose, the legalism of divorce would not be so much a problem.

When I was a very young man, divorce was almost unknown in the congregations I attended. Today it is very commonplace in most churches. Neither of those legal extremes are very helpful to the Christian. Yes, it is legal for Christians to divorce and remarry. And, no, that is not God's intention for us. The answer is to be found not in legalism — forbidding or permitting divorce — but in grace, the manifestation of God's mercy in the midst of his judgment.

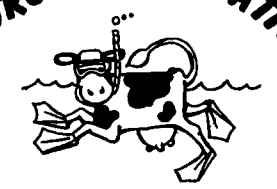
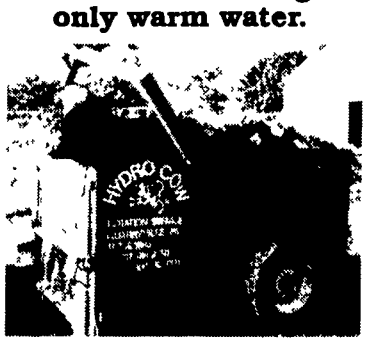
HYDRO COW FLOTATION

CLIP & SAVE THIS AD



With the Hydro Cow Flotation System you can float a down cow back onto its legs harmlessly without using clamps, belts or chains. The Hydro Cow is a natural way to get a cow back on its legs using only warm water.



Hydro Cow Flotation Service is available in Lancaster, York and Chester Counties, and northeastern Maryland

Pennsylvania Farm Bureau Discusses Topical Issues

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

CAMP HILL (Cumberland Co.) — As part of its public education effort to beneficially influence state and federal legislation, and thereby the lives of its membership, the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau on Monday held a special meeting with representatives of the farm and general media.

In recent years, as part of its annual legislative effort to represent its farmer members and serve better as a proponent for agriculture, the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau has held an annual press day.

During the press day, reporters with the general and farm press, especially those working for publications directly associated with farming, are invited to sit down with the elected leadership of the PFB, its communications managers and the issue specialists, and discuss issues of concern to the PFB and the news media.

The event includes a background briefing of PFB positions on issues, additional comments and explanations by leadership, questions from the media representatives, and explanations for those positions and questions.

Not only is the event a forum to present PFB policy positions on issues, but it serves as an opportunity for media to access the main leadership body of the PFB at once, in order to have questions answered fully.

The process is somewhat informal, but its main objective is to forward PFB policy and reasoning, and establish and maintain relationships with the media.

Richard Prether, manager of communications, served to provide introductions of the communications and communications support people.

PFB President Guy Donaldson discussed the issues and answered questions, mostly on his own, but deferring occasionally to staff with more specific issue knowledge.

Also present were legislative issue specialists, introduced by Al Myers, head of the PFB group, and John Bell, counsel for the PFB.

In past years, the state Legislature has more typically been tied up with the state budget and some contentious issues during the last few weeks before the summer recess.

With the end of the state financial year being the end of June, budget issues generally tie up Senate and House debate and business for much of May and June.

This year, the state Legislature in April approved essentially a Gov. Tom Ridge-proposed budget, making it one of the earliest ever budgets. (The governor usually proposes a budget in January.)

While there are many issues of concern continuing to attract the attention of legislators, the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau on Monday focussed on three: water quality; local tax reform; and implementation of the federal Food Quality Protection Act (FQPA).

Donaldson said the implementation of the FQPA was being done in such a way as to threaten the availability of food for the current world population, much less the anticipated 10 billion people expected through the first quarter of the next century.

"Your just begining to hear the begining of this issues," Donaldson said.

The PFB provided reporters with a list of the common names of two families of widely used and accepted pesticides that it considers threatened under the Clinton Administration' Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) interpretations of the FQPA.

Background was provided.

The Delaney Clause was repealed in August 1996 with the passage of the Food Quality Protection Act (FQPA).

The Delaney Clause called for zero tolerance of pesticide residues in foods.

In brief, when the Delaney Clause was adopted, testing for residues was not as exact or precise a science as it is today.

It was demonstrated that improved testing techniques have allowed the ability to test for minute amounts of potential pesticide residues (pesticide residues may not necessarily be the pesticide, but chemicals that occur during or after the breakdown of the pesticide).

These minute amounts are very many times more tiny than the amount of pesticide residue that would have passed with testing technologies in effect when the Delaney Clause was created.

In other words, technology made the Delaney Clause obsolete, because being able to detect minute amounts of a chemical residue does nothing to change the toxicity or biological effect of the residues.

It was argued that the same levels, or less, of pesticide that would have been undetectable during the valid years of the Delaney Clause, have not changed in the amount of health threat, merely in the fact that those small amounts can now be detected.

According to PFB, "All chemicals must meet the new safety provisions of FQPA to be registered for production use.

"Presently, many farm chemicals are being re-registered while new products are seeking registration for the first time.

"FQPA establishes national uniformity for safe residue levels and allows consideration of pesticide benefits to nutrition and the food supply.

"FQPA, also, encourages and streamlines the registration for new, safer crop protection chemicals. This provision will make it profitable to produce crop protection chemicals for small acreage, high-value, minor crops."

While all of this is considered good for agriculture, the Clinton EPA's interpretation of some other aspect of the Act threatens the availability of certain key production chemicals.

According to PFB, "FQPA sets an extra margin of safety for residues on foods consumed in high amounts by infants and children. (FQPA) requires consideration of chemical exposure from sources other than food, such as drinking water and home pesticide use.

"It requires consideration of common mechanisms of toxicity from similar chemicals."

According to the PFB, while that extra margin of safety was a concern when the bill was proposed for passage, the EPA made assurances that the standard would not be used to unnecessarily restrict or cancel safe crop protection products.

But according to the PFB, the EPA is now acting in ways that indicate it may well not follow through with those interpretative assurances.

"'Reasonable certainty of no harm' is being interpreted by EPA as essentially the same as zero-risk," according to the PFB statement.

"The extra margin of safety for infants and children triggered denials for the registration of two crop protection products used on cotton.

"Cotton is not a crop food. Chemicals used on cotton do not present a real exposure problem to infants, children or the general public."

The fear is that this will be carried over to deny registration for crop products.

"Some environmentalists and various individuals in government want to cancel two groups of chemicals that are extremely important to agriculture.

"These crop protection chemicals are organophosphates and carbamates."

FARMING, FINANCING AND WORKING TOGETHER

Remember when being efficient was all it took to be a successful farmer? With some help from mother nature, being efficient is still the key to successful farming. And that, by itself, is a tough job.

Today's farmer has to know financing and marketing as well as production. And today, as in the past, The Ephrata National Bank is here to help.

We've been financing local farming since 1881 and plan to for years to come.

Next time you need some honest advice on financing your farming operation, see your friends at The Ephrata National Bank.

"I like to see people get involved," he says. "PHA offers a lot of activities other than showing that members can partake of. For instance, we find that if we get our junior members to one activity, like our judging schools or a state junior convention, they'll usually be back."

He is especially enthusiastic about encouraging new members to participate in the breed's activities.

"I look at the new people becoming involved in shows and educational meetings and conventions and think that we must be doing something right," Burdette believes. "And, it really trips my trigger when a new exhibitor wins at a show."

Actually, Burdette is the proverbial poster-child for promoting Holstein involvement. His dairying career took root in Boyds, Maryland, where his father, who was in the excavation business, began also operating a milking herd on a neighboring farm. Along with a hired employee handling the 80-head in a 22-stall milking barn, young Jim Burdette came home from school every day to work with the cattle. His brother, a professional surveyor, also lent a hand with chores as time allowed. Following graduation from high school, Burdette began managing the dairy herd full time.

But he new PHA president's cattle beginnings did not include registered Holsteins. In fact, his first turn around a showring, as a rookie 4-H member, was at the halter of an Ayrshire calf. Burdette could also be spotted hanging around the beef, horse and dog portions of the local shows, where 4-H'er Nina Brown might be exhibiting her projects.

In August 1974 Jim and Nina were married. Three months later, they moved to a rented farm in Pennsylvania, sandwiched between Mercersburg and the stretch of Tuscarora mountain which has since become Whitetail Ski area.

"That first night after we moved we milked 32 head, two registered Holsteins, three grades and the rest were Ayrshires," recalls Burdette. The two registered cows had been purchased "off the truck" from a cattle dealer. A third registered cow was added a bit later, a wedding gift from Nina's sister and brother-in-law, Nona and Joe Swartzbeck, Union Bridge, Maryland. The Swartzbecks, like the Burdettes, are active Holstein members and Joe is a past president of the Maryland Holstein Association.

"She was right out of the top of their herd," Burdette relates. The two-year-old Elevation daughter, Peace and Plenty RA Susan, milked 24,000 pounds her first lactation, scored Very Good and had two daughters for them.

That was just one of numerous cattle success stories which have developed over the years in the Windy Knoll View herd. From one of those first two registered Holsteins purchased from the cattle dealer, Jim and Nina bred their first homebred cow. Sired by Duncravin Boehms Countdown, Windy Knoll View CD Cindy-OC also became their first Excellent cow. As a 4-H judging team member Jim had visited the Boehm's registered herd in New Jersey, owned by the world-renowned porcelain artist, and seen the farm's famed Kings Artic Rose, matron of the herd and dam of Countdown.

"I lilked that cow and I liked Astronaut, his sire," remembers Burdette of his reasoning for using Rose's Countdown son early in his breeding program. The mating proved to be an "Excellent" choice, with several consecutive generations of daughters scored from EX-90 to EX-92 points.

In late April, the herd's most recent classification, a sixth-generation Excellent was added to this tremendous pedigreed family when Windy Knoll View Cassandra, a Raider daughter, scored EX-90 as a four-year-old. Windy Knoll View has now bred 44 Excellent cows.

Another special Excellent boosted during that latest classification is a 13-year-old Gold daughter scored 4E-92. Few cows in the breed even fulfill a lifetime of 10 calvings, let alone retain the impressive "staying power" to become a 4-time-Excellent honoree.

As their dairy herd grew, so did the Burdette family. Justin was born in 1978 and Kyle in 1982. Both young men have been part of the family dairying team since they were small children and are breeding, developing and merchandising their own families of cattle. In fact, claims Burdette, they're better merchandisers than he is.

Ultimately, the animal that has doubtless had the greatest impact on the lives of the entire Burdette family, and become the hallmark of Windy Knoll View, was another homebred. Her name was Windy-Knoll-View Ultimate Pala.

Pala's dam was one of two Creek Bluff Lester daughters that Burdette bred to the Canadian-born Quality Ultimate bull, sire of several top show winners in the "hot" cattle investor days of the early 1980s. Burdette took a liking to the Quality Ultimate bull, acquired a couple of units of semen and got two heifer calves for his efforts. The first, Pala, was born in March 1985 followed by a September 1985-born paternal sister which they named Lotsa Quality.

Lotsa Quality caught the eye of Lylehaven Farms, Vermont, which eventually purchased half-interest in her. She developed to become a Reserve All-American and was second high seller, at $10,500, at the 1987 World Premiere Sale held at Madison, Wisconsin.

Burdette later flushed her dam again to Quality Ultimate. The resulting offspring sold for $15,000.

And, although purchase offers had also come in for Pala, the Burdettes turned them down.

"We were offered a five-figure price for her. I said 'no' I don't know why," reflects Burdette of the now-historic decision to keep Pala in the herd.

It wasn't because her family had an extended string of high-scoring pedigrees. Her dam, the Creek Bluff Lester, scored VG-88 as her best classification. Pala's second dam scored 78. On a second classification, following some health problems, she was dropped to a score of 70. Before she could be classified a third time, she died.

Pala's own first daughter was a Valiant. She was named All-Pennsylvania summer yearling, made 30,000 pounds of milk and eventually carried an EX-92 classification score on her paper.

Pala's second daughter, was an Astrojet. She scored VG-89 on her first evaluation, won a high-dollar Pennsylvania Futurity contest, milked 26,000 pounds with 1,200 pounds of fat and was in line to be sold to Japan. Then, one of those misfortunes hit familiar to most livestock breeders, they were unable to get her bred back.

But the pair of sisters, combined with their mother, captured numerous of awards and honors for the Windy Knoll herd, includingn Reserve All-American Best Three Females in 1991. The daughters were also nominated All-American Produce of Dam.

Her third calving produced a set of heifer twins by Melvin. One was named the 1990 All-American summer yearling and went on to be 3E-93, while the other scored VG-88. Both produced records of over 33,000 pounds of milk.

At that point in her career, Pala's genetic contribution to the breed was intensified as the Burdettes began embryo-flushing this tremendous animal. According to Burdette, Pala averaged 24 embryos per flush, and on one occasion, produced 46 good embryos. Some have gone to breeders on distant points of the globe, others remained right at home in their sons' own growing herds of outstanding animals.

Some years ago, Justin paid for a flush from Pala to Counselor in exchange for his choice of calves. The result was Pear, ultimately scored 2E-94 and nominated Junior All-American four times. Justin has flushed Pear twice and sold offspring and embryos.

Kyle is currently flushing Pet, another

Lebanon Youth Plant Riparian Buffer

and bus for a morning and afternoon session of tree planting and conservation discussions.

Paul Troutman, a DCNR service forester, also helped.

In addition to the Conservation District, the state Department of Conservation of Natural Resources (DCNR) was a partner in the project, providing more than 1,000 seedling trees and shrubbery that were salvaged from an Indiana County commercial nursery that was sold to the state for use as a prison site.

In the April 17 issue of the Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) "Update" publication, it was reported that DCNR and DEP have worked together since last fall until recently to move almost 618,000 trees from an Indiana County prison site to replant along streamsides throughout the state.

According to the DEP Update report, "The state is hoping to use the bulk of the tree seedlings to kick off a multi-year effort to replant Pennsylvania's streamsides. The initiative will encourage planting trees along Pennsylvania waterways to buffer them from pollution, as part of the Pennsylvania Stream ReLeaf plan."

The leading edge of a long string of high school students heads on downstream with seedlings, spades, stakes and shelters to plant a riparian forest buffer along Beck Creek in Lebanon County. The riparian project was a jointly supported effort and provided multiple benefits, including education.

Publicity is critical to public education and continuing support for public programs. Without it, no matter how important, needed, or beneficial, programs can easily fail. Here Doug Wolfgang is interviewed by a television news crew about the riparian forest buffer planting project.

The state ReLeaf program stems from a 1996 agreement made by Gov. Tom Ridge, as a member of the Chesapeake Bay Executive Council, to re-establish riparian forest buffers along 600 miles of streams in the Chesapeake Bay watershed.

The goal for the Chesapeake Council is to have a total of 2,010 miles of streambank forest established by 2010, of which Pennsylvania's is a portion.

That all is background for the one-day event during which students, some obviously more experienced with outdoor activity than others, teamed up to plant more than 1,000 trees and shrubs along the stream.

The Conservation District project in Lebanon County was one of many similar projects conducted throughout the state, some done as part of a celebration of 1998 Earth Day.

The Lebanon County youth included some who have been involved with the Envirothon program, some participating in advanced studies for the exceptionally gifted, and others enrolled in earth science classes.

Students pick up equipment for planting trees and shrubs, as Doug Wolfgang, with sunglasses, checks to make sure everyone gets the right equipment.

With teams of students in the background planting or preparing to plant tree and shrubbery seedlings, this team of high school students plants a white pine, one of the few conifers planted along Beck Creek during this riparian forest buffer planting program.

For the youth, the program offered the opportunity to gain some knowledge about streams and aquatic/land environment interdependency and relationships.

It also seemed to provide the opportunity for local and state leadership, as well as local adults, to convey to youth the message that adults are not just concerned about stuffing their pockets with money, but also about the well-being of the youth and what the youth have to look forward to inheriting.

Whether or not they sensed that, the youth seemed pleased to participate.

The project was done along a 2,000-foot stretch of the Beck Creek, a short, but important tributary to the Quittapahilla Creek.

That stretch of stream, for years, has had a grass bank, with the ground plowed as closely as possible to the stream edge without getting a tractor tire stuck.

The low-grade, primarily limestone stream, flows north, through two golf courses, and then receives a substantial flow boost from a spring.

It then courses through a heavily grazed meadow with eroded, clay banks, and then travels through the county-owned Copenhaver Farm before joining the Quittapahilla Creek in Annville.

A little more than 20 years ago, a private fly fishing club had leased the now-heavily grazed stretch of the stream immediately upstream of the Copenhaver Farm.

The club had constructed a number of streambank protection devices and several jack-dams, which direct the force of a flooded stream into the bottom of the stream, instead of into the bank of the stream at a bend.

Jack dams and other similar devices can be used to direct the stream's forces to scour out an area and create a type of alluvial fan that (given the proper pebble and stone size) can be used by fish for spawning habitat.

The fishermen also were permitted a limited number of streambank plantings, mainly willows that were mainly planted in the bank at critical stress areas associated with the stream flow control devices.

In the intervening years, the stream bottom has filled in with sediment, and most of the devices in the former fishing stretch are gone or hidden.

Though the water quality is still considered good (limited stream water quality sampling was done showing low nitrogen and phosphorus), the stream bottom currently appears that it would not permit reproduction of fish such as trout. Previously it was considered to have some limited trout reproduction, and there is potential for restoring spawning sites.

The Copenhaver farm is currently operated by Ron Copenhaver, a member of the family for whom the county farm is named. Copenhaver operates a unique cash crop operation growing string beans.

In recent years, Copenhaver has fenced the stream, allowing grasses and some perennials to take hold. He has also allowed it to meander somewhat.

The stream has long had a sizeable muskrat population, which can easily reduce the stability of stream banks to withstand erosive forces.

But muskrat activity isn't an unnatural state. The lower elevation reaches of many streams in the clay and soil valley bottoms have naturally unstable banks, where muskrats are natural water mammals.

What's missing are the plants which historically serve to prevent excessively rapid course changes.

That compares to the typical rock beds and banks of streams of higher elevations, and where streams cut through a mountain.

(Side note: The meanders of a stream are a consequence of wave action in a stream, and the resistance of the materials over and through which it flows. If allowed to, or forced to meander, the length of a stream through a pasture can be increased tremendously, thereby retaining water longer, and also providing considerably more habitat for a nutrient-using aquatic community.)

Standing at the back of a Lebanon County Conservation District pickup, and wearing a baseball cap and holding a cup of coffee, Chuck Wertz, district director, points out some of the tree planting plans to students awaiting further instructions before helping to unload the truck. Wearing sunglasses, district nutrient management specialist Andrea Long stands to the right.

Riparian buffer plantings are not a new concept for promotion, but it is new for government to promote such activity.

During the 1970s, through federal incentives, many natural riparian tree and brush buffers and forests were removed as well as many stream-bordering wetlands and short-distance spring streams.

At the same time, many windbreaks were also removed in order to gain additional acreage exposed to the sun for maximum crop yield.

However, while shady areas along field edges can reduce a field's total potential yield, there is increased risk of field and crop damage from high wind exposure.

Windbreaks prevent wind erosion and allow greater retention of soil moisture — ground moisture evaporation is reduced when air flow close to the ground is reduced.

As far as riparian buffer plantings, though aquatic biologists, limnologists, and long-time professional experts on streams have promoted such plantings for years, many people have seemed to express a cultural preference for denuded, or otherwise "sanitary Act now! Or this may be the only pest control tool you'll ever use again!

How come?

Because the Environmental Protection Agency is reevaluating the pesticides you count on to run your farm, keep bugs out of your house and weeds out of your garden

Soon, you could begin to lose some of the most trusted insecticides on the market today

Why?

Because EPA isn't asking you--the farmer--or other Americans how you actually use these pest control products Without accurate input, the new Food Quality Protection Act cannot be fully and fairly implemented

So what?

So you lose many cost-effective pesticides--the tools you depend on most Fewer products lead to less IPM and less conservation tillage Pest resistance rises Yields drop Incomes fall And farm production moves offshore daughter of Pala, and has sold embryos both domestically and internationally. One of Pet's daughters, Windy-Knoll-View RKB Petrie-ET, sold for $27,000 at the 1997 World Premier Classic Sale and has won All-American and All-Canadian honors.

So what?

So act now!

Pala herself was classified 3E-94, produced a 2298-day lifetime record of 123,650 milk, 4.7%, 5777 fat, 3.5%, 4312 protein. The Pala family has compiled 26 All-American and Junior All-American nominations out of the total 36 from the Windy Knoll View herd.

From his comparative vantage points both as a young, newcomer to Pennsylvania's registered business and now as a veteran breeder and marketer. Jim Burdette brings a broad perspective on the industry to his presidency of the PHA.

"Our goals need to be simple: we will always have change, and we must continue to serve the membership. And the membership must be involved for the association to serve them," Burdette figures "I have a lot of confidence in the members of our Executive committee and our officers group, including past presidents and our Hall of Fame winners who continue to be involved. We have leadership bringing experiences and expertise from other businesses along with dairying; it all comes together to put us in a very positive position."

"We also have bitten the bullet to deal with a debt load the association is carrying. We have a young, ambitious staff and they're working hard for us," credits Burdette.

PHA continues to operate a successful marketing business with about one-third of its annual cattle sales to domestic buyers and the bulk through international exporting, headquartered at the Association's farm near the Harrisburg International Airport at Middletown.

"The farm is a real plus for the Association," Burdette says. "We can assemble, board and load from the facility to ship cattle to our buyers. It also serves other areas of the livestock industry for quarantine and export use as well, and has handled a wide variety of animals for domestic and international markets."

"Our job is to steady the course for the Pennsylvania Holstein industry," he believes. "We need to carry on the promotion of the Holstein breed within the state, providing new programs in response to members' needs. And we welcome anyone interested in the welfare of the business and the Holstein cow to become part of our membership."

"Bu always," he stresses, "we want to put people first."

"They make or break our business."

Jim Burdette welcomes and comments from the state's Holstein Association members and non-members interested in the Holstein breed activities. He may be contacted through the Pennsylvania Holstein Association, 839 Brenner Pike, State College, PA 16801, Phone 814-234-0364.

Zeneca Web Site Takes Visitors Around The World Of Crop Protection

WILMINGTON, Del. — Whether it's information on protecting apples or wheat, or controlling alfalfa loopers or yellow-striped armyworm, visitors to the Zeneca Ag Products web site — www.zenecaagproducts.com — can obtain comprehensive, easily accessed data on weed, insect, and disease control.

The Zeneca site features a database where farmers, dealers, and consultants can match crops and pests with the appropriate Zeneca herbicide, insecticide or fungicide, then receive detailed information on the product of their choice. In addition, site visitors can access product labels, Material Safety Data Sheets, appropriate U.S. Department of Transportation regulations, and Worker Protection Standards.

The plant sciences page focuses on using biotechnology to produce healthier foods and higher yields. It highlights the benefits of genetic modification to tomatoes, potatoes, and bananas.

The Zeneca Ag Products web site also addresses the agricultural issues of the day. By clicking on a "stewardship" icon, visitors can obtain information on integrated pest management, no-till farming, product safety, container recycling, legislative and regulatory issues, and endangered species.

Historically, when natural areas were dominant, removing "nature" provided a "safe" area for humans.

Also, there has been a past use of strict engineering solutions to local stream flooding problems — channeling and diking.

However, it resulted in increased flood damage downstream, and more extreme dryness of flood plains, wetlands and uplands during drought.

After more than 200 years of agricultural production and heavy industry, many of the streams in the southeastern region of the state (that includes Lebanon County), have had their slopes and courses altered dramatically to accomodate farming, as well as industry, transportation, storm water runoff, and other land uses.

In more recent times, as streams began to recover from the effects of many mill dams, canal dams, and bank changes, some post-1950s real estate developers have removed vast expanses of riparian forests along stream banks and even more recently have altered many of the upland headwaters of tributaries.

Tributary health and integrity are the most important insurances to continued health of a main watercourse.

For Lebanon County, the main stream in its valley is the Swatara Creek, and the Quittapahilla Creek is its largest tributary.

The stream had been sorely polluted for years, mainly from industrial toxins and wastes. It was also rendered biologically impared by uncontrolled Lebanon City storm water runoff (which continues).

Up until recently, most of the tributary streams had good to excellent water quality, and many supported at least marginal populations of wild trout, and a wide variety of fishes.

Because of the loss of heavy industry in Lebanon City, as well as improved community waste water treatment, the Quittapahilla Creek water quality has improved dramatically in the past 20 years.

In the meantime, almost every one of its tributaries has had its quality reduced somewhat significantly, though not necessarily permanently.

There has been a long history of ignored knowledge about the benefits to a stream and its water quality by ensuring adequate streambank planting and retaining adequate headwater sources such as wetlands and upland zones.

Streambank planting can provide shade, help retain and improve streambank integrity, and provide habitat and food for various organisms, many of which have life-cycles that include part of their life in water, and the other part in the riparian zone.

While political forces are building behind the concept that the main problem with water quality in the Chesapeake Bay is because farms are dumping excessive amounts of nutrients into water courses, another more scientifically sound concept, if not more complete, is that other activities that cause historically excessive flooding and drying have destroyed much of the nutrient-using abilities of streams, the Susquehanna River and the Chesapeake.

While there is no question that some agricultural operations are such that nutrients flowing off the farm are stressing stretches of streams, what is begining to grow in acceptance it the acknowledgement that the destruction of aquatic habitat has signficantly reduced the amount of life along and in watercourses that naturally consume and filter nutrients.

Some suggest that, should the ship-ballast water-introduced zebra mussel become established throughout the Susquehanna and the brackish areas of the Chesapeake, the nutrient problem would be solved, but an environmental nightmare begun.

The mussel is in the upper Susquehanna River. There are no controls.

A healthy aquatic community, which includes its upland areas and lower elevation streambanks, can be assumed to assimilate a fairly large volume of nutrients compared to a stream that, except for the name, has been reduced to a drainage ditch.

Beck Creek, albeit small in comparison to many streams, and short in total length, can be expected to receive many benefits from the tree planting.

Increased shade can help preserve stream temperatures and prevent deadly summer extremes.

Though few sources cite specifics of the interdependency and interrelationships between land and water environs, and the plants and animals along a stream, they are evident.

Aquatic insects such as mayflies and caddis flies require streamside vegetation in order to successfully complete their life cycle.

A mayfly egg is laid in water, and the young generally spend a year in the stream, feeding on various plant and/or bacterial and fungal materials.

After maturing to a certain stage, the immature mayfly comes to the surface of the water where it emerges into a flying insect.

If it survives being eaten by fish, or birds or frogs or some other predator, the flying mayfly then requires streamside trees and shrubs on which to land and hide, for it has one more stage to get to before it can reproduce.

The flying mayfly changes one more time into a reproductive stage. It changes while clinging to a streamside plant, usually hidden under a leaf or under a small stem or twig. Then, after drying off and the right time arrives (usually all within a day), it flies out to the middle of a stream where it may or may not meet a mate.

Many are eaten by birds, bats and fish as they try to lay enough eggs back into the stream to sustain the population for one more year. (Many times they seem to fly slightly upstream to lay eggs. Since eggs wash downstream with the water before clinging onto something in the streambed, some consider this is a way for some mayflies to keep repopulating the same stretch of stream.)

This is the wonder of a healthy stream. It makes sense.

Should a heavy load of manure overtake a stream once, it can injur it, though the effects generally are temporary.

If the trees are all cut from the stream bank, and the bed straightened, and if the banks are grazed down or turned into a lawn, the effects are more permanent than the humans who do it.

It can no longer assimilate the nutrient load it gets, much less additional accidental spills. What doesn't get used, gets passed on downstream, or buried in the sediment.

In another example of the interdependency, deciduous forest streams — as Beck Creek can be assumed to be in its natural state — benefit during the winter and early spring from the lack of leaves.

Sunlight during winter is short duration and at a much lower angle than during summer. The light allowed to penetrate into the stream helps provide energy for plants such as algea to use the nutrients deposited from leaf fall and from usual late fall and spring storm water.

Those algea are then food for bacteria, insects and young post-hatching fish, which are food for larger insects, fish, birds and animals, etc.

Those algea, and other life forms that used the nutrients and sunlight to grow, tie up nutrients into the food chain of that stream.

Even algea that aren't consumed can remain in the food chain. Some get washed onto a flood plain during high water and can attatch to tree bark or other plant structure along the plain, and the nutrients tied up in it consequently can be used again locally, not in the Bay.

Later in the year, after leaves appear, the sunlight is filtered, the air around the stream is protected and humidity preserved, and water temperatures are more stabilized, and can be maintained closer to the ground water temperature of 52 to 55 degrees.

Trout, for example, die if water temperatures get into the mid to high 70s. They are not the only species intolerant of extreme temperatures.

If the leaves do not appear, the continued sunlight during summer can easily drive water temperatures close to air temperatures — in the 80s to 90s.

This is especially so in heavily grazed pastures with unprotected banks.

Without the trees and shrubs, a stream can quickly become shallow and wide, and very quickly summer water temperatures can shoot above tolerable levels for the aquatic life.

All it takes is one day out of the year for water temperatures to be driven high enough to kill most existing stream life.

The result is an almost sterile stream.

For species, such as trout, without restocking, it could mean the permanent loss of the species to that stream, all because of one day of high water temperatures, which is all because there were no trees or shrubs, all because the trees and shrubs were cut down for whatever reason.

Biologists use the term "biomass" to describe the amount of organic, generally living material, in an environmental system.

A system with little relative biomass is generally considered hostile to life, while one that has comparatively large amounts of biomass is considered healthy for life.

Just as people describe the beauty of a rain forest in terms of its diversity and bulk of life forms from top of forest to bottom, a healthy stream has the same attributes.

The trees the youth planted were not raised specifically for streamside planting, though some species were well suited.

All species should grow well and provide beauty and benefits to the stream, according to Paul Troutman.

The tree types included were sweet gum, red oak, white oak, silver maple, red maple, green ash and river birch.

, as. The shrubs included hollys, dogwoods, chokeberry and arrowwood.

According to Wolfgang, in addition to the tree species made available from DCNR, were a few leftovers from the district tree sale, particularly hybrid poplar, white pine and Norway spruce.

Wolfgang said the project was made possible through a Chesapeake Bay mini-education grant of $750 (the maximum allowed), which was used to purchase the 500 "white stick" tree shelters.

He said Farmer Boy Ag of Myerstown also was essential to its success, providing 500 stakes to support the shelters and seedlings.

Though the Lebanon Conservation District is done for the year with streamside planting, there are plans being developed now for projects next year.

Those landowners and teachers interested in participating in next year's projects should call Wolfgang at (717) 272-3908.

For those concerned about the plastic shelters, district employees will remove them and monitor them. The landowner is primarily responsible for maintenance of the stream bank plantings thereafter.

home to fill the freezer, bake pies, or make jams and jellies. Now, "people want the quarts picked for them.

"The thinking is, I want it yesterday, and I want it cooked," said Johnson.

Time has become an issue. People have less and less of it, apparently, and don't devote a lot of time to preparing meals, even portions of meals such as desserts.

Because of a changing consumer landscape, growers such as the Johnsons have had to "retool" the business. That means planting more apple and peach trees.

It also means, according to Alan Johnson, taking time and thinking through what they will do with the more than a dozen acres no longer devoted to strawberries.

The Johnsons care for 128 acres of orchard in the Brandywine Valley region southwest of West Chester, near the town of Unionville. The farm is only about a quarter of a mile from the Brandywine River.

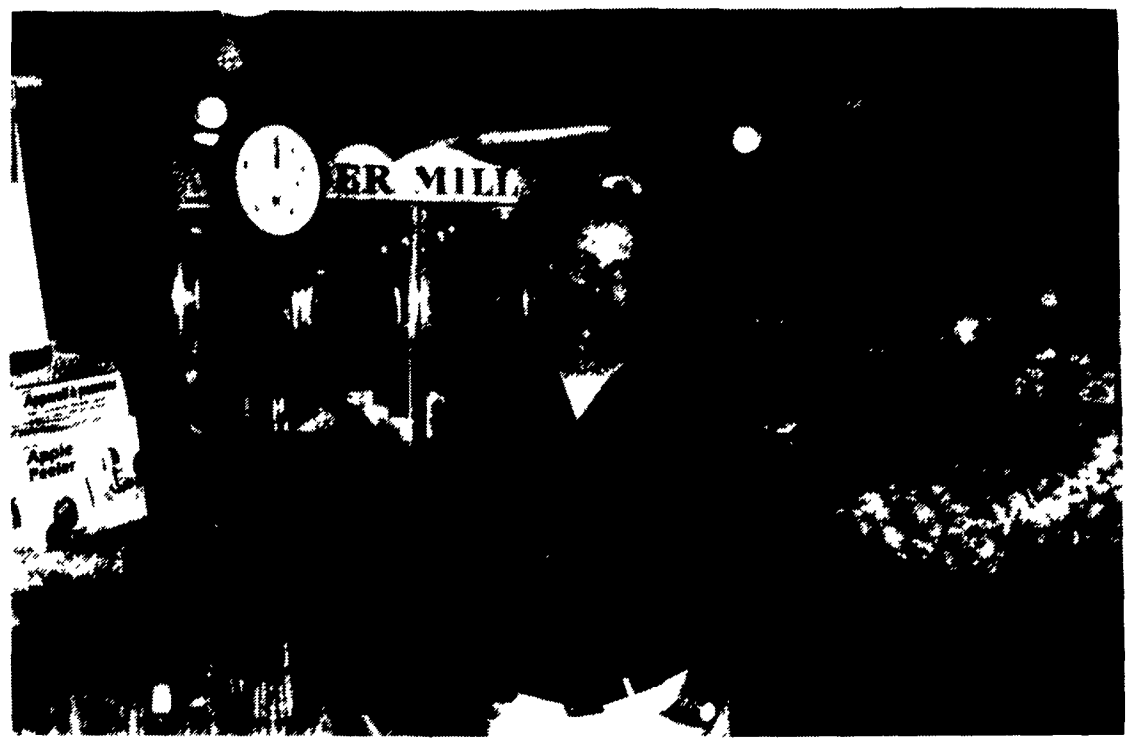
Altogether there are about 15 acres of apples, 10 acres of peaches, and about 15 acres of pumpkins.

The primary focus of Northbrook Orchards is pick your own.

The goal of the orchard is to provide customers with "tree-ripened fruit — something that can be eaten right from the tree," said Johnson. "My goal is to provide a crop that people want. And the more tree-ripened, the better it is."

The Johnsons don't sell fruit or vegetables on the wholesale market, avoiding the labor challenges and other headaches associated with picking and shipping fruit. When they first purchased the farm from Robert Hayman in 1982, most acreage was in apples (about 80 altogether). There were a couple of acres in peaches.

Northbrook was once a hamlet near the banks of the Brandywine River near the orchard. That's how the orchard got its name.



Alan Johnson's Northbrook Orchard farm store includes meats and cheeses, baked goods, fresh produce, flowers, and other items.

Peaches total about 22 varieties, including Loring, Crest Haven, Late Summer Haven, New Haven, and others. The peaches include four varieties of nectarines, four of white peaches, and 15 of the yellow varieties. This stand weathered the cold weather in mid-March.

"As the market changed, we changed," said Johnson, who grew up 15 miles from New York City. He moved to central Jersey and worked for an orchard, Battleview Orchards in Freehold, N.J. His wife was a teacher in Monmouth College and lived on an orchard.

Alan was graduated with a horticultural degree from Delaware Valley College in Doylestown in 1975.

Johnson was involved in the strawberry business since 1976.

Additional acres of strawberries were planted on the farm. For a while, the strawberry business thrived. Then, as more and more supermarket and even the smaller stores obtained strawberries year-round, customers were drawn away. And now the tide has changed to more "ready to serve" types of fruit.

"People want to pick big fruit that jumps in a box," said Johnson. "And size is always an issue."

There are about 20 varieties of apples on the Northbrook Orchards, including Red Delicious, Stayman, Golden Delicious, Jonathan, Empire, Jonagold, and others. Peaches total about 22 varieties, including Loring, Crest Haven, Late Summer Haven, New Haven, and others. The peaches include four varieties of nectarines, four of white peaches, and 15 of the yellow varieties.

There are a couple of varieties of pumpkins, all pick your own.

The apple picking season begins in September and runs through to the end of October. Pricing is a two-tier structure, from 49 cents to 69 cents or so per pound, depending on the season.

The Johnsons care for 128 acres of orchard in the Brandywine Valley region southwest of West Chester, near the town of Unionville. Altogether there are about 15 acres of apples, 10 acres of peaches, and about 15 acres of pumpkins.

The peach-picking season begins the second week of July and lasts to mid-September. Depending on the overall season and availability, the price is anywhere from 89 cents to 99 cents per pound.

Pumpkins are about 30 cents a pound. The season begins Sept. 20 and lasts until Halloween.

Like many orchardists with pick-you-own operations, the Johnsons also make use of "entertainment" farming, including hay wagon rides. Also included is a small animal petting zoo with sheep and other animals.

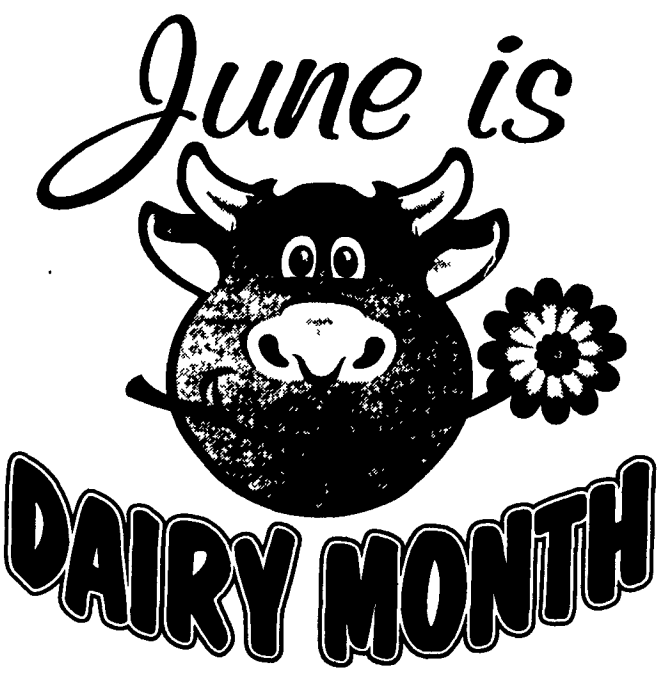
The farm store includes meats and cheeses, baked goods, fresh produce, flowers, and other items.

The profit margins continue to narrow over the years, noted Johnson. While his customers are loyal, most are still price-conscious and worry about increases in price of what he sells.

But like all growers, Johnson is dependent on the weather.

He learned a long time ago that you should "hold your breath until you got it in the box." He's since learned that you have to "hold your breath until the money is in the bank," he said.

The farm is only about a quarter of a mile from the Brandywine River. Here, Alan Johnson inspects the apple trees. Behind him lies the Brandywine.



DIRECT RETAIL

What's Your Specialty?

This is the first in what is to be a regularly appearing column about direct retail marketing, made available through the Pennsylvania Retail Farm Market Association Inc. (PRFMA Inc.) and Penn State Cooperative Extension.

PRFMA Inc. is a resurrected and re-energized non-profit group with the mission, "To benefit members through education, promotion, cooperation and representation of Pennsylvania direct-to-consumer agricultural marketing."

It is not intended to be limited to those with roadside stands, but is intended to be an organization that encompasses all those who market directly, such as aquaculture facilities with direct marketing, Christmas tree retailers, orchard and fruit growers, honey growers, etc.

If it can be raised on a farm and sold directly, then the association may well the organization where answers, promotion and representation can be found.

The new board of directors is headed by Rob Ferber, and the organization is supported through PRFMA Executive Secretary John Berry, who is also the Lehigh County Cooperative Extension and regional Penn State Cooperative Extension marketing agent. To join the organization, contact Berry at PRFMA, Lehigh County Cooperative Extension, 4184 Dorney Park Road, Allentown, PA 18104-5798, or (610) 391-9840, or e-mail at jwb15 at psu.edu.

Agricultural Marketing

To maintain a profitable sales volume, retail farm merkets need to offer something special — you need an edge!

Why would I consider stopping at your market?

My regular grocery store has carrots, apples and potatoes. If my only goal is securing adequate food for the family, shopping can be done in one stop at the nearest strip mall.

Successful retail farm marketers realize I'm not just looking for food, I'm seeking an experience.

A chance to participate in the food cycle appeals to today's consumer.

We all know that friendly staff members with extensive product knowledge are the best salespeople.

Adding to this with painted face pumpkins and gourds, heirloom and ethnic varieties, herb garden planters, mixed hot peppers, product demonstrations, pick-to-order sweet corn, microwave recipes, drive-through service, or grandma's apple turnovers in our product mix helps establish market uniqueness in the customer's mind.

Think About The Future

Look at the big trends affecting the industry.

Products, processing methods, customer expectations, prices, competitive organizations, prices, competitive organizations, imports and exports are all essential components of future direction.

Sixty-two percent of consumers are more concerned with food safety know than five years ago.

Spoilage and the use of chemicals and pesticides are their top concerns about the food they eat.

Soft wheat consumption is down — fewer donuts and cakes are being consumed.

Consumer demand for produce is continuing to increase. (I realize the need for a healthier diet.)

That's bad news for regional wheat producers, but good news for fruit and vegetable growers.

Peaceful, Soothing

Roadside markets offer a welcome relief from the sterility of supermarkets.

The trend in produce purchase continues toward the feeling of fresh, safe and convenient.

A roadside market is not a convenience store. Shopping at a farm market is an experience.

The longer a customer stays, the more he will generally purchase.

Picnic tables, baked goods, crafts, snacks and food demonstrations encourage customers to stay longer, enjoy themselves and spend more.

Farm market retailers limit their chances for profitability if they:

- Don't accomodate customers and instead try to make them work on the retailer's terms;
- Don't look for new opportunities, because it's not worth the trouble;
- Don't worry about emerging trends, because they believe their old ways of doing business will always apply.

More Money

Instead, to make more money, encourage larger purchases by providing a larger selection.

An assortment of products generally attracts more repeat customers. If you only have apples, have several varieties of apples, or use alternative packaging, such as cider, pies, jelly, dried apples, or sell them by the pound, peck of bushel. Another, self-explanatory, concept is "rent-a-tree."

Every marketer hears now and then, "Your price is too high!"

What the prospect is really saying is that their desire to buy was too low.

The goal is to increase the prospective customer's desire to buy, rather than argue about price.

Establish the benefits, create more desire for them and minimize the price compared to benefits. Try selling value, not price.

Customer Demands

There are several customer demands that hold for most situations.

Customers want a consistent supply (every day); more variety, and/or strains; ready-to-eat; knowledge of where it was raised; smaller or more convenient packaging or purchasing units; natural and safe food; they want flavor and something with eye appeal; and they want the freshest, best quality possible.

Quality is by far the trait most sought by consumers.

But quality is more than the product being offered for sale. Quality includes everything from road signs and the parking area to a wholesome atmosphere and clean facilities.

One of the keys to successful retail farm marketing is this: Ask your customers what they want, then satisfy what they want.

Bradford County FFA Honors Members

CAROLYN N. MOYER
Bradford Co. Correspondent

TOWANDA (Bradford Co.) — "FFA is one of the premier leadership activities," Northeast Bradford FFA Adviser Brian Pifer told the group assembled for the annual Bradford County FFA banquet, "Be proud of it and don't take a back seat to anyone."

Pifer addressed the group of 100 FFA members and guests as he, Troy Area FFA Adviser Ernie Cole and Athens Area FFA Adviser Fred Metcalf presented awards to outstanding FFA members.

Based on a system of points which are accumulated throughout the school year, each chapter was in competition for the outstanding chapter award. The number of points earned depends on the number of students who participate in the competition and their respective placings.

This year, Athens Area High School walked away with the high honor. The three highest individuals also received awards. Rindy Harkness of Troy was named the top individual followed by Loren Harkness of Troy and Jackie Schriner of Athens.

Amid the multiple award presentations, each top individual in the public speaking competition gave his or her speech.

Rindy Harkness took top honors in the general public speech category. Her speech about milk and dairy products emphasized the importance of drinking milk.

The first place conservation speech was delivered by Loren Harkness. In his presentation he outlined the rationale for the conservation reserve program. In effect, Harkness noted, "you rent the land to the government."

(Turn to Page A32)

Club To Hold Show

KEMPTON (Berks Co.) — The Antique Engine, Tractor and Toy Club will hold its 13th Annual Show on May 30 and 31 here at the Kempton Community Center.

The show opens both days at 8 a.m. with breakfast available in the Community Center building. Food and refreshments served all day by various vendors. Activities for Saturday include slowest tractor race at 9:30 a.m. followed with slowest engine contest. Tractor parade is at noon, children's events at 1 p.m. and antique and other stock tractor pulls get started by 1:30 p.m. and run until completed.

Sunday events include tractor games at 9:30 a.m. and 1 p.m. Tractor parade is at noon, children's events at 2 p.m. and the Pennsylvania Tractor Pullers Club will have Stock Tractor and Stock 4 Wheel Drive Truck Pulls starting at 1 p.m. Feature tractor and implement display this year is Allis Chalmers.

There will be indoor and outdoor flea market both days. Vendors and other show exhibitors will have access to the grounds after 9 a.m. Friday morning. There will be garden tractor pulls by the Lebanon County Pullers on Friday evening starting at 6 p.m. There will also be some arts and crafts exhibitors plus farm toy displays and sales.

A parking donation of $2 per car will be requested at the gate. No alcoholic beverages are allowed on the premises. For more information write to the Antique Engine, Tractor and Toy Club, Inc., 5731 Paradise Road, Slatington, PA 18080-4028 or phone (610) 767-4768.

PDA Announces Nutrient Management Training, Certification

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The state Department of Agriculture and Penn State University have scheduled a series of training sessions to provide background knowledge for those seeking to qualify as a certified nutrient management specialists.

The series has already started, with the first class held April 21 in Harrisburg at the PDA Building, dealing with soil fertility.

However, scheduled for May, June and July are five additional topic sessions (one a two-day session).

The program series was designed to provide a solid background of information to prepare those seeking certification as a Pennsylvania nutrient management specialist.

Most of the series is open to all. The last two (a training session and an examination session) are mandatory for those seeking state certification.

Manure Management Workshop

On Tuesday, May 19, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., a manure management workshop is scheduled to be held in Room 202 of the PDA Building in Harrisburg, located along Cameron Street, across from the state Farm Show Complex.

The workshop is to include discussion on manure types and production calculations, manure variability, manure sampling, nutrient contents and availability factors, long-term manure nutrient contributions and environmental impacts. Attendees should have attended the soil fertility school or already have basic soil fertility knowledge.

Coffee and donuts are provided, though lunch is the responsibility of the attendee.

Barnyard Management Field Assessment

A two-day workshop, held in cooperation with the conservation districts of Blair and Cambria counties on June 2 and June 3, is to provide training on concepts and methods used to perform barnyard and field assessments for Best Management Practices (BMPs).

The program has been modeled after a successful program held September in Dauphin County. The target audience includes nutrient plan writers, reviewers and agricultural consultants.

Most of the program is to be held outdoors, therefore attendees should dress appropriately.

On June 2, the session starts at 9:30 a.m., at a Blair County location that will be announced in the registration receipt.

After lunch, the group is to travel by bus to a nearby dairy farm.

Discussion is to include nutrient planning, manure sampling and variability, Farm-A-Syst, field crops evaluation, field conservation practices, and barnyard management.

On June 3, the group is to begin the workshop in Cambria County, near Ebensburg. The day entails travel to another dairy farm to discuss manure handling, spreader calibration, manure storage siting, setbacks and waivers, and streambank stabilization.

There is a $15 per person registration fee. The fee covers the cost for both days, and includes two lunches, breaks and bus transportation. Group size is limited to 50 participants. Deadline to register is May 18.

Registration for this workshop is different from the rest.

For this workshop, registration is being coordinated by the Blair County Conservation District, 1407 Blair St., Holidaysburg, Pa., 16648. Phone (814) 696-0877; fax (814) 696-9981. Make checks payable to Blair County Conservation District.

Upon registration, you will receive a confirmation letter including a map of meeting location(s) and a list of motels in the Ebensburg area.

For any more registration information on this program, call the district.

Soil Health Management

A new program is being introduced in a one-day workshop on soil health and management, to be held from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., June 11, at the Penn State Agronomy Farm at Rockspring (where Ag Progress Days are held in August).

The program is to include an introduction to soil classification, soil structure, soil characteristics, and soil health evaluation techniques.

There will be an opportunity for participants to observe these conditions during a field walk that includes climbing into soil pits and conducting soil health tests. Participants should wear appropriate clothing.

There is an $8 registration fee, payable on June 11, that includes the cost of lunch and coffee breaks. CCA credits will be available.

Pre-Certification Training

Those seeking to qualify as a nutrient management plan writer or reviewer need to attend official pre-certification training, according to Pennsylvania's Nutrient Management Act (Act 6).

It is mandatory in order to be certified in Pennsylvania as a nutrient management technician.

The next such official session is scheduled to be held over one-and-a half days — June 17-18 — at Room 118, in the ASI Building of the Penn State Main Campus at University Park in State College.

The training includes an introduction into the requirements of Act 6, the elements of a nutrient management plan, an introduction to the rules and regulations, the implementation guidelines, environmental limitations, what to do about excess manures, and training on storage standards.

Attendance at both days training is required.

The program runs from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on June 17, and from 9 a.m. to noon, June 18.

There is no registration fee. Lunch is the responsibility of the participant.

Certification Examination

State examinations for those seeking certification for commercial, public and individual nutrient management specialists are scheduled to be held from 8 a.m. to noon, July 16, in Room 118, of the Penn State ASI Building at University Park.

The examination fee is $50, for those seeking commercial and public certifications. The fee must be paid prior to the examination. Checks should be made payable to: Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

There is no examination fee for those seeking certification to write nutrient management plans for themselves (indivual certification).

Advance registration is required for all.

For all workshops, except the barnyard management and field assessment program, registration can be done through fascimile at (717) 783-3275.

Registrations can also be mailed to: Nutrient Management Section, Pa. Department of Agriculture, Room G-11, 2301 North Cameron Street, Harrisburg, PA 17110-9408.

Bradford County FFA Honors Members

In the junior public speaking category, Megan Kingsley captured the judges' attention with her presentation on maple syrup production.

The banquet also provides a forum for presenting the county FFA degrees. This year 11 individuals received the recognition. They are, from Troy, Rindy Harkness, Loren Harkness, James Jointer, and Stephen Kovac;. From Northeast Bradford, Monica Smith; and from Athens, Justin Arnold, Ryan Kingsley, Ryan Kinsman, Luke Nichols, Jackie Schriner, and Chad Garrison.

Honorary county degrees were also presented to individuals from the community who support the FFA program. Gertie Kingsley of Athens, Jerry Garrison of Athens, and Carolyn Moyer of Liberty

Grazing, Pasture Meeting Planned

BLOOMSBURG (Columbia Co.) — Penn State extension in the Central Susquehanna Valley area is sponsoring a pasture meeting on Tuesday, May 19, at 7 p.m. at the farm of Jeff Mamett, Numidia.

The farm pasture backgrounds feeder cattle each season on a rotational grazing system. Pastures are mainly orchardgrass mixed with birdsfoot trefoil, alfalfa, or white clover. Calves are brought to the farm as lightweight feeder cattle, processed, acclimated, then grazed the entire season and marketed as heavy feeder cattle in the fall.

To get to the farm, take Route 42 south through Catawissa to Numidia. In Numidia, turn left at Cleo's bar at the blinking traffic light. Follow this road for about a mile and look for the large white house with a red roof on the right. Turn right at the intersection after the house and park along the road.

For more information on this meeting, call David Hartman at (717) 784-6660 or (800) 254-6470.

Encouragement, Pride Shape FFA Members' Future At Leadership Conference

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — A Grassland FFA alumnus who has established a successful career in agriculture provided these simple messages for the newly chosen leaders of FFA chapters throughout the county:

Praise a fellow student. Encourage others. Take pride in what you say and the way you present yourself.

Shelly Ogline, Garden Spot graduate and former Grassland FFA president, in addition to serving as FFA state reporter from 1992-1993, spoke to more than 100 FFA leaders from Lancaster County last week at the Red Rose Leadership Conference at Lancaster Mennonite High School.

Ogline is resource conservation specialist with the York County Conservation District.

Ogline told the story about how, as a chapter officer, she dreamed of holding a state FFA position but felt inadequate about becoming one successfully. But one day she got the encouragement she needed — from an assistant chapter officer.

"Who encouraged you?" she asked the Red Rose Leadership Conference attendees, who followed the theme, "Establish the Future." "Someone may have given you a nod or words of encouragement. Someone or something encouraged you to try."

Importantly, she told the leaders to praise a fellow student. She said, "You rely on fellow officers to back you up. You need to support and back up your fellow officers."

In fact, Ogline noted, the responsibility extends even bey-

Monfort To Provide Carcass Information

GREELEY, Colo. — Monfort, Inc. announced it will provide free group carcass information for all cattle processed in its four beef packing plants.

The information will include quality grade scores, yield grade scores, carcass weight breaks, and muscle scores. Providing this data is just another part of Monfort's procurement goal to improve beef quality and consistency for its retail customers.

"Carcass information has never been given out on cattle," said Ed Prosser, general manager of the Monfort Procurement Division. "It is time to share with the producer the quantitative data of his product so he can identify the difference in carcasses and start to take steps to improve overall quality. It is our hope that this will become a production tool for our suppliers to provide us with consistent quality beef."

Detailed data analysis sheets will be mailed to producers soon after the carcasses are graded.

ond that. "You have a responsibility to give back your talents to help others learn and grow with FFA," she said. "I challenge you to give back all you have to offer to FFA."

As a state FFA officer, she spoke of the challenges of working with "11 different people with 11 different backgrounds and 11 different management styles" as a group and how it grew into a state team.

Ogline praised FFA, which gave her the skills to speak about agriculture to the public through her work with the conservation district. "I cannot imagine a better hands-on leadership setting in which to develop yourself personally," she said.

Ogline presented memories of her FFA membership, including the time when she glimpsed the "24,000 fellow black and gold jackets at Kansas City." She recalled friendships she made, including an FFA member from Missouri with whom she regularly calls and writes.

"FFA friendships," said Ogline, "can last a lifetime."

New FFA county officers are Beth Frey, Manor FFA, president; Dana Weinhold, Hans Herr FFA, north vice president; Maureen Madden, Solanco FFA, south vice president; Jenny Hoover, Cloister FFA, secretary; Rueban Hartman, Cloister FFA, treasurer; Amanda Overly, Solanco FFA, reporter; Jimmy Mullen, Solanco FFA, sentinel; Chuck Beam, Grassland FFA, chaplain; and Andy Nolt, Cloister FFA, student adviser.

The FFA leadership school also provided leadership training for each of the new officers in their positions. The historians and reporters were provided information on how to use Microsoft PowerPoint presentation software by Tyler Swanson, Manor FFA vice president. According to Swanson, the demonstration training allows students to advertise their accomplishments and to spread the word about fruit sales and other chapter information. The slide-formatted text and graphics presentations highlight FFA members' accomplishments or advertise special programs — including each chapter's annual fruit sale fundraising campaign.

Rob Lowery, Solanco chapter treasurer, provided information about Claris Works spreadsheet to chapter treasurers. Other information was presented to the various officers.

Teacher Program Tour Examines Specimen Trees, Greenhouse Flowers

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

WOMELSDORF (Berks Co.) — Upscale home buyers and estate managers share some things in common when selecting their landscaping, according to a certified landscape architect.

"They want the tree now," said Sheldon DuBrow of DuBrow's Nurseries, Inc., Livingston, N.J. "They don't want to wait."

DuBrow has learned to convert the customer's wishes into a thriving business by specializing in select "specimen" trees that provide "instant landscaping" — mature trees on carefully planned and constructed landscape designs.

DuBrow provided a tour of his tree farm in Womelsdorf Tuesday afternoon to about 30 grade and high school educators and representatives as part of a Berks County Ag In the Classroom Teacher Seminar. The seminar participants, later in the day, also toured Layser's Flowers in Myerstown.

The DuBrow farm, comprising 100 acres in Marion Township, grows and harvests trees and shrubs for its landscape, garden center, and maintenance divisions. The corporation makes its home in Livingston, N.J., a site comprising about 37 acres located about 125 miles from Womelsdorf.

About 60 acres in Womelsdorf are devoted to specimen shade and flowering trees for the landscape design business. In addition to the nursery division, there are others, including a grounds management division and an upscale garden center, "a boutique center," said DuBrow. The 40-year-old company employs 250.

DuBrow said he is one of two certified landscape architects in the landscape design and build division that designs and installs a total landscape package.

DuBrow demonstrated that he can grow, package, and transport specimen trees (trees that are large and carefully pruned for design specifications) to eight-inch caliper (the diameter of the tree's trunk). Specimen trees, he said, are more mature trees, "larger than what you would see in any landscape.

"We believe a specimen tree is a key element in the landscape design," said DuBrow. "A specimen tree makes its mark in the landscape."

DuBrow demonstrated the use of a caliper gauge on a seven-inch caliper pin oak, one of the feature trees on the actual farm near a house built in 1850 and restored in 1989, shortly after DuBrow located the nursery in Womelsdorf.

Consumers seek out the specimen trees — which certainly have a huge price tag.

DuBrow noted that some will go for the "trophy" trees, the weeping beech or the copper beech, as an example, with high caliper. The cost? About $20,000-$30,000 per tree, he noted.

The DuBrows built and landscaped the farm pond. The site of the nursery was once a dairy farm.

The nursery at Womelsdorf also plants "liners," small trees that have a one-inch caliper.

"This farm has some of the best soil," said DuBrow. "Berks County soils offer some incredible stuff. There is incredible growth to the trees in this soil."

DuBrow noted he was careful in site selection for soil fertility, high moisture availability, soil that drains well, and would not need irrigation after the first year of tree growth.

DuBrow noted that one landscape architect insisted that the soil could not maintain the incredible growth. Yet DuBrow pointed to a crabapple that maintained one inch caliper of growth per year.

DuBrow provided a tour of his tree farm in Womelsdorf Tuesday afternoon to about 30 grade and high school educators and representatives as part of a Berks County Ag In the Classroom Teacher Seminar. The farm was once a dairy.

Some of the Womelsdorf land has high slopes, from 2-5 percent, with a 50-foot differential. But trees of any caliper do well.

The trees are obtained from nurseries in Portland, Ore. and shipped during the winter. They are kept in cold storage on the farm, at 40-45 degree temperatures, until the landscape business can go into the fields in March (if workable). The business attempts to "get the trees out and planted, the sooner the better," he said.

DuBrow provided a tour of the farm. He also demonstrated the equipment, including a new, $70,000, 135-horsepower tractor; a three-shank subsoiler; and a tree weeder. He also demonstrated a four-unit hydraulic tree spade, which can dig and uproot a tree to 4-inch caliper that can burrow to about 2½ to 3 feet down, according to Larry Knoll, farm manager.

Once the tree is dug, it is placed in a specially designed wire basket that can hold a few hundred pounds of soil with a burlap bag. The rungs at the end of the wire cage are used to tie the tree down after planting.

DuBrow also showed various low-growing lilacs, 4-5 foot hollies, and other types of shrubberies and trees.

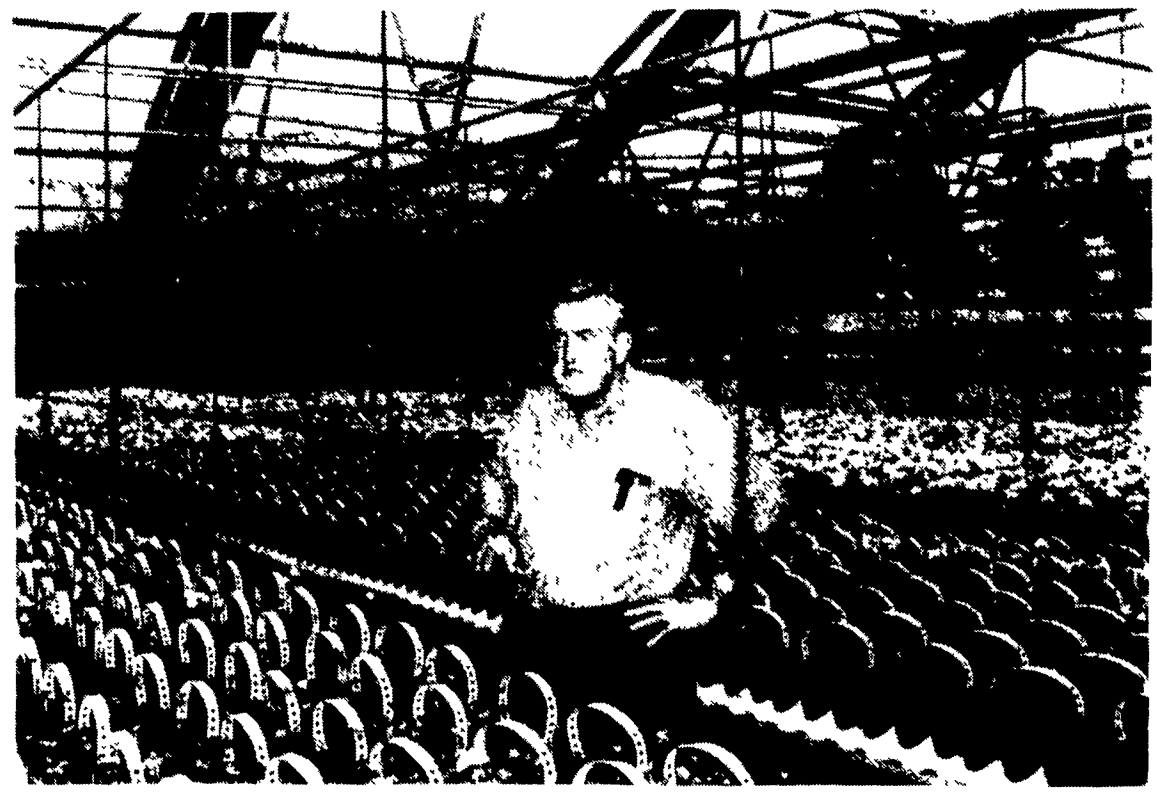
(Turn to Page A38)



The Laysers make "maximum use of greenhouse space," noted Donald Layser. Bedding plants and geraniums make up their number one seller. Hanging baskets, in abundance throughout the operation, make up only about 12 percent of total sales.

Some of the plants are grown through a special thermal root zone watering system, which moves hot water through rubber coils underneath the pot. Temperature of the root zone is maintained at about 72 degrees to help the poinsettias root in the summer. About a half acre of the root zone watering system is used during the winter, Layser noted.

DuBrow demonstrates a four-unit hydraulic tree spade, which can dig and uproot a tree to 4-inch caliper that can burrow to about 2½ to three feet down.

Logger Certification Program Promises To Be Forest-Friendly

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — To counter a growing anti-logger sentiment prevalent with environmentalists and to help ensure an environmentally friendly approach which slowly earns the respect of woodland landowners, a new program helps to focus on improved training for loggers.

The program, called the Sustainable Forestry Initiative (SFI) of Pennsylvania, began in April last year. SFI, based in State College, is a program sponsored through the state's 140-member Hardwood Lumber Manufacturers Association in Lebanon. To date, 1,353 loggers have participated in some level of training, according to Ken Manno, SFI program manager.

The program is "trying to ensure the future well-being and viability of the forest products industry," noted Manno.

Manno indicated that the environmentally concerned program is put in place to ensure the vitality of the $5 billion forest products industry — the fourth largest industry in Pennsylvania, he said, which employs a little less than 100,000 people.

The four-part program, for logging manufacturing representatives, is underwritten by SFI at a cost of $10 per course per person. Actual cost, with help from the industries, is about $25 per person per course. The courses are divided into four parts, eight hours in length. The entire program takes about 18 months to complete.

"Timber harvesting can be done in an environmentally sound manner and provide a crop of timber for today and tomorrow," said Charles Brown, district manager for Glatfelter Pulp Wood Company in Spring Grove and training coordinator for the SFI in the state's southeast region.

Brown addressed some of the concerns the SFI has for landowners who are thinking about logging. Landowners should consider those best management practices (BMPs), the "scientific tools," the SFI noted, designed to help forest landowners, foresters, and timber harvesters practice good forest management.

Brown said that, sometimes, landowners don't "think through what they're doing," often randomly selecting timber to harvest and perhaps going about it the wrong way.

He noted that stumpage prices can be high for certain types of wood, such as red oak — a value anywhere from $500-$1,000 or more on the stump. A landowner may enter the woodland and decide to harvest only the red oak and leave the red maple and other "junk" species behind.

How does the landowner log the area successfully? What's the owner to do to prevent soil erosion? What kind of shape should the area be left in — and what about the viability of other tree species? And can the landowner log it safely and correctly? Those are questions the SFI hopes to answer.

There are four components to SFI certification, said Brown:

- Safety. The training, an eight-hour course, discusses the hazards and provides detailed instruction on how to harvest timber safely.
- Business management and forestry. This eight-hour course details how to plan forest management and how to determine forest values.
- Environmental logging. This eight-hour session provides information on forest operations and the mandatory requirements which may apply. This course also provides information on erosion and sedimentation control.
- First aid and CPR. This last segment, also an eight-hour course, shows what to do in an emergency.

The BMPs of forest management are provided by the American Forest and Paper Association (AF&PA), the national organization based in Washington, D.C. Other information is supplied by Penn State Cooperative Extension Forest Resources, University Park, the Pennsylvania Tree Farm Committee of the American Forest Foundation, Washington, D.C., and the Pennsylvania Forest Stewardship Program or the DCNR Bureau of Forestry in Harrisburg.

According to Brown, one recent certification training seminar in Breezewood included a group of less than 30 loggers and foresters. Most of the group consisted of logging contractors, including the owner of a business, truck drivers, field operators, and others. Another session is scheduled on environmental logging in Chambersburg May 18.

Similar sessions are being conducted in Dauphin and other areas.

Brown noted that the SFI has not taken a "crash-type" mentality like other companies who mandate training to stay on the job. Instead, SFI has used a measured, flexible, open approach — encouraging loggers to become involved and not mandating the program.

The program also uses the resources by various professionals, including foresters, conservationists, business managers, environmental loggers, and others to help those who enroll complete the program.

Additional training on top of the certification is being planned, according to Manno of SFI.

Wedge-shaped cutter bar — Well sealed gears and bearings — Top service hubs — Fully protected cutter bar bottom

Vicon's New KMR trailed mower conditioners combine a superb cut with excellent conditioning performance Available in 7'10", 9'2" and 10'6" widths Vicon is once again "Bridging Technology down to earth "

- Full swivel hitch - PTO stays in alignment when cutting square corners
- "Free Float" suspension system - With 16" of free stroke in operating position, the cutterbar follows uneven ground and clears obstacles The center hinge point also permits the mower unit to raise or lower at either side without adding excess pressure on the opposite side The high-lift design gives swath clearance at headlands
- Wedge shaped cutterbar - Less ground resistance, eliminates "bulldozing" in soft ground conditions, and allows for a lower height when needed
- 3 Blades per disc - Vicon's patented design puts 1/3 less load on each blade and an even load on the drive train
- Top service hubs on cutterbar - Easy Maintenance
- Labyrinth seals - A specially designed labyrinth seal on the hub of each disc prevents dirt, moisture and all foreign material from entering
- Fully protected cutterbar - Cutterbar is supported completely with an extra shell and additional wear strips A reinforcement rod stiffens the cutterbar to prevent flexing
- Segmented intermeshing fully adjustable conditioning rolls

Teacher Program Tour Examines Specimen Trees, Greenhouse Flowers

plex," a material with vitamins and minerals that "invigorates" the plant, he noted. It helps the plant with stress if uprooted, transported, and replanted when in leaf.

An underground watering system was installed at the nursery.

The problems faced by the landscape architects aren't necessarily the cooperation of the weather or changing consumer attitudes.

The problem is, "we're not seen as farmers," said DuBrow, who pointed out some legal challenges he experienced as a grower in New Jersey.

Legal squabbles have cost DuBrow thousands of dollars. But the public is reacting more negatively to what some consider work outside of farming — greenhouse and tree farms.

A major stress point, DuBrow noted, in the last three years is "defending what we do," he said. "We need in horticulture to have some identify as an associate to agriculture." This way, the industry can better relate to other industries and a public that increasingly does not understand what they do.

The landscape industry, DuBrow told the Ag In the Classroom participants, needs growers, "grafters," and other experts. The jobs will be in the industry, and can pay well "if you are into what you do." DuBrow said, "It's healthy work, it's satisfying to grow trees. It's amazing — the field of horticulture and what it offers. It's very fulfilling."

The tour group also visited Layser's Flowers, a family business in Myerstown, Tuesday evening.

Layser's was started by Russell Layser in 1939. In 1951 the business was purchased by Donald and Frances Layser. Today it is managed by Donald, Steve, and Jeffery Layser along with Rick Boltz and Earl Brown in wholesale operations and Connie Shaak in retail.

There are 14 acres of the greenhouse operation under cover, plus associated service buildings. Retails sales is comprised of an 8,000-square foot area for tropical foliage, 3,000 square feet for gifts and plant accessories, and a 15,000-square-foot area for bedding plants and year-round flowering plant sales.

A second area is situated on Rt. 645 about a half mile from the headquarters. The area has six acres under cover and includes rolling flood benches, computerized environmental controls, and a retractable roof curtain house.

There are more than 500,000 square feet under cover at the locations.

About 18 percent of the material sold goes to retail. The remainder is in wholesale.

There are 40 full-time employees at Layser's and about 15 part-time.

According to Steven Layser, the principal crops include spring bedding plants, holiday flowers, and small foliage plants, in addition to a large array of landscape materials.

Donald Layser explained the workings of the greenhouse. He showed the various size "plug" trays, including the 406's and 288's, that are used to grow plants before they are transplanted to 4- or 6-inch pots.

Flower baskets are sold to chain stores, garden centers, flower shops, and other stores.

A big seller has been the poinsettias.

In one seven to nine week period, the store stocks 150,000 poinsettias — "about eight acres of poinsettias," said Layser.

Some of the plants are grown through a special thermal root zone watering system, which moves hot water through rubber coils underneath the pot. Temperature of the root zone is maintained at about 72 degrees to help the poinsettias root in the summer.

About a half acre of the root zone watering system is used during the winter, Layser noted.

Plants of all sorts are transported to customers. The business maintains about 20 trucks in all.

For the retail store, Layser demonstrated their philosophy.

"Our concept is keep it filled like a grocer fills a grocery store," he said. The shelves are restocked

Teacher Program Tour

Once the tree is dug, it is placed in a specially designed wire basket that can hold a few hundred pounds of soil with a burlap bag. The rungs at the top of the wire cage are used to tie the tree down after planting. Larry Knoll, farm manager, holds up one of the cages.

early in the morning each day.

One challenge the business faces: this year, early good weather allowed the store to post a 12 percent gain on sales. But they lost all the gains in the past two weeks with the steady rain, which kept a lot of customers from buying. Better weather should turn that around.

The Laysers make "maximum use of greenhouse space," he noted. Bedding plants and geraniums make up their number one seller. Hanging baskets, in abundance throughout the operation, make up only about 12 percent of total sales.

This time of year, impatiens and petunias are their number one sellers.

Future challenge is dealing with influx of the large megastores, such as WalMart and Target, that continue to make inroads into the market area. But some of the best business relationships have come by partnering with the store giants such as K-Mart, a customer of Layser's.

During the tour, Judy Schwank, Berks County extension director, told the teachers about the importance of horticulture production.

She said, "We may not be number one (in the state) in production, but we are growing in end use, in consumer use, of products."

Donald Layser activates an overhead irrigation system in one of the greenhouses.

Maryland DHIA Report For March

The March Dairy Herd Improvement information for dairy herds from the DHI processing center in Provo, Utah. The list includes herds from Maryland, Pennsylvania, and West Virginia. The information is listed by herd name, county association, number of cows in the herd and the average production per cow in the herd based on Energy Corrected Milk (ECM). ECM combines milk production and components.

The ECM formula is: (7.2 x lbs. protein) + (12.95 x lbs. fat) + (.327 x lbs. milk). To be included, the herd must have 10 cows averaging 65 pounds or more of ECM per cow, per day. All herds reported are on official DHI or DHIR test. Also listed are the top ten herds in Maryland for the Brown Swiss, Guernseys, and Jerseys, and the top seven herds for Ayrshires.

1998 JUNIOR JUDGING SCHOOL

PENNSYLVANIA HOLSTEIN ASSOCIATION

Western School. Monday, July 6 & Tuesday, July 7, 1998
Time: 12:00 noon - 12:00 noon
Host: Centre/Clinton Holstein Club
Teacher: David Trotter, Enon Valley, PA

Eastern School: Wednesday July 8 & Thursday July 9, 1998
Time. 12:00 noon - 12:00 noon
Host: Lebanon County Holstein Club
Teacher. Matthew Wanner, Narvon, PA

The schools are open to all youth interested in learning about dairy cattle judging. We attempt to cover the basics of animal evaluation and reason giving. Individuals that attend have the opportunity to learn terminology, animal and class breakdowns and how to effectively give reasons

The cost of the school is $25.00 for those staying overnight, this includes school costs, hotel room and evening meal.

For those that commute the cost is $15 00 which covers school costs and the evening meal.

This year, a second member of the same family who attends will receive $5.00 off their registration cost

Dekalb Genetics Agrees To Merge With Monsanto

DEKALB, Ill. — Dekalb Genetics Corporation said Monday that it has entered into an agreement with Monsanto Company by which Monsanto will acquire all of the shares of Dekalb capital stock that it does not already own.

Monsanto, which owns 40 percent of Dekalb's outstanding shares, has agreed to pay a cash price of $100 for each of the remaining shares. The merger will be completed as soon as practicable.

"The combination of Dekalb and Monsanto will create one of the leading seed germplasm and technology companies in the world," said Bruce P. Bickner, Dekalb's chairman and chief executive officer. "Ultimately, customers will be the beneficiaries. The full integration of Dekalb and Monsanto germplasm and technology will allow us to provide customers with rapid access to a broad range of value-added products."

The Roberts family, which holds 56 percent of the outstanding Class A voting shares of Dekalb Genetics, has agreed to irrevocably tender its shares and vote for the merger, the company said. Dekalb's Class A shares represent approximately 13 percent of Dekalb's total outstanding common stock. In February 1998, the family said it supported the board of directors' decision to see a possible business combination in order to maximize shareholder value.

Under terms of the agreement, Monsanto has contracted to provide all Dekalb employees worldwide with continuing employment for at least one year after the closing. Dekalb has approximately 2,000 employees.

"Dekalb shareholders will receive exceptional value for their investment in Dekalb and their faith in the company's management and employees," Bickner said. "Several years ago we announced our intent to be the 'success story of the '90s in the seed industry.' Today's transaction underscores just how successful we have been.

"Dekalb has emerged as the fastest-growing agronomic seed company in the world, and our further affiliation with Monsanto will only accelerate our momentum," he said. "We are pleased and proud to be an integral part of Monsanto's growing worldwide seed team."

At present, Monsanto holds 10 percent of Dekalb's outstanding 4.6 million Class A voting stock and 45 percent of the outstanding 30.0 million Class B non-voting stock. In addition, there are 2.3 million Class A shares subject to stock options The total transactional value is $3.7 billion, with Monsanto paying approximately $2.5 billion for the additional shares they will purchase

"Monsanto and Dekalb have been successful partners in bringing to market corn biotech traits and their economic and environmental benefits to growers worldwide," said Robert B. Shapiro, Monsanto's chairman and chief executive officer. "This acquisition focuses and accelerates those efforts The employees of Dekalb will play an important role in implementing our life sciences strategy and creating value for growers, processors, and, ultimately, consumers."

World Dairy Expo '98 Tour Set

FLEETWOOD (Berks Co.) — If you've often thought about visiting the World Dairy Expo but didn't feel like driving to Wisconsin, or more likely, you planned to go and couldn't secure lodging near Madison; now you can travel with Vista Grande Farm. The Expo features some of the world's finest cows and exhibits the latest in dairying technology.

The tour is scheduled to leave southeastern Pennsylvania via chartered bus on Wednesday, September 30. A buffet luncheon stop at the Minor family's Springhouse Restaurant and an afternoon tour of Select Sires will highlight the first day of travel. Thursday's highlights will include a visit to the well-known Pinehurst Farm in Sheboygan, Wisconsin and an evening dinner theater at the Fireside in Fort Atkinson, Wisconsin. A visit to the Dairy Shrine, the Hoard's Dairyman farm and a tour of J-Star Industries will fill Friday morning before heading to the Expo for the beginning of the International Holstein Show. Participants will have the option of traveling to the Cedar Grove Cheese Company Friday afternoon to see that aspect of Wisconsin agriculture. Holstein enthusiasts may choose to remain at the Expo for the World Classic '98 Sale. Saturday will be spent at the Expo. The return trip home will be'gin Sunday morning and include a visit to the Indianapolis Speedway and Museum. The last day of travel, on Monday, October 5, will begin with a morning visit to Mohrfield Holsteins where participants will get to see many of their 40 Excellent cows.

For more information on an educational fall vacation, call Dave or Phoebe at Vista Grande Farm 610-944-0541.

issue, because connected to the registration is a deadline for the chemicals and there is not enough time to allow for the development of new chemicals or same or lesser cost treatments to achieve the same crop production.

He said that all of the products were to have been reviewed by the end of May (1998) and be finalized for registration by August 1999. There are no new products online to replace the chemicals currently being used.

What it means is that a number of widely used crop protection chemicals will be disallowed, denying farmers the ability to protect their crops.

"These proven chemicals make food more healthy and bountiful. They are major contributors to safe food and less expensive food," according to PFB.

"Most field crops and some garden crops in Pennsylvania would suffer immensely if these chemicals are eliminated. The price for all food would increase dramatically, because there is no inexpensive substitute for these chemicals."

Local Tax Reform

Along with many other groups, the PFB for years has been calling upon state legislators to come together and work hard for local tax reforms.

What the PFB seeks is to move away from the real estate tax as the main funding source of school districts, and shift to a menu of taxable sources: income tax, sales tax, flat benefit tax, as well as real estate taxes.

The ideal PFB taxing plan would allow school districts to select their own mix of taxing rates, which would reflect local financial and resource conditions.

The PFB would also:

- Seek a cap on property tax for schools.
- Remove the current cap on earned income taxes with real property taxes being reduced proportionately;
- Eliminate the personal property tax, the occupation tax assesment and local nuisance taxes;
- Establish tax credit rebates for property tax relief;
- Require taxing boards to receive voter approval for authority to raise or incur debt, beyond a fixed percentage of the tax base.

Its policy is also to have any tax reform proposal which would give tax relief to homesteads include resident farms with tax relief on the farm home and farm buildings.

Lancaster Holstein Field Night

QUARRYVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — The Lancaster County Holstein Club has announced its annual field night is to be held starting 7 p.m., Thursday, June 11, at the farm of Mark Welk, along South Catherine Drive, in Quarryville.

Take Route 222 south of Quarryville and look for signs to South Catherine Drive.

Registration is needed by June 5. To register, call Mike Eby at (717) 394-6558.

A pig roast evening meal followed by soft ice cream is to be free for all those attending.

However, participants should bring lawn chairs and/or blankets.

Also, please bring your own dining utensils and plates, because it helps the club keep its associated costs and work reduced.

The evening is devoted to education, but as much to fellowship.

Highlights of the field day include cow judging, updates from Lancaster County Extension Agent Glenn Shirk, activities for children, and door prizes.

Maryland Lamb and Wool Princess Megan Rynarzewski presents first place honors in the Lamb Cook Off to Timothy J. Radden of Ohio.

Radden Takes Grand Prize In Maryland Lamb Cook Off

KAREN BUTLER
Maryland Correspondent

WEST FRIENDSHIP, Md. — Lamb shanks, lamb casserole, curried lamb balls, sweet and sour lamb cubes . . . there was something for every taste at the Maryland Grand Lamb Cook-Off. And three lucky judges had the enviable job of selecting the champion entree at the 13th annual contest here recently. The mouth-watering challenge took place at the Howard County fairgrounds here in conjunction with the 25th Maryland Sheep and Wool Festival.

After an invitation to submit their favorite recipes using a minimum of one pound of any cut of American lamb, seven finalists were selected this year to prepare their dishes in front of the public on stoves set up in the food building. The cooking area was roped off, but the aroma of lamb wafted through the building and even outside, drawing throngs of people who had come to attend the festival. Samples of each dish were made available to the public.

Stoves were in use as early as 8:30 in the morning as each contestant began preparing his or her entry. Cooking times were staggered so each dish would be ready to serve at the time designated by the judges.

And the winner was . . . Mongolian Lamb and Scallions served with Lamb Stuffed Dim Sum Dumplings, accompanied by homemade hot sauce and dipping sauce. If you think that's a mouthful, you might like to try a bite of this wonderful dish created by Timothy J. Radden of Stow, Ohio.

Radden says his prize-winning recipe was adapted from research he has done in Oriental cooking. "There are a lot of onions, mushrooms, stuff you'd find on the trail going from one area to another. And the dumpling recipe, that was one I just kind of dreamed up," he said modestly.

Radden, an elementary school art teacher, says he enjoys the "lamby" taste associated with the meat. "I like cooking with lamb," he said, "A lot of people think they don't like it. But if you know how to prepare it, everyone will love it." He says cooking the meat over fire will remove some of the trademark flavor, but says he himself likes that flavor.

This was the second year Radden entered the Grand Lamb Cook-Off. He said he comes to the Sheep and Wool Festival each year because his wife, Karla Kellenberger, is a spinner and enters items in the spinning classes at the festival. Last year he took home a fifth-place prize for a lamb recipe he adapted from his grandmother's recipe. "I decided last year as I was cleaning up what I would make for this year's recipe," he said.

In addition to Radden, other placings for the Maryland Grand Lamb Cook-Off were as follows: 2. Dawn Carrier: Lamp Chop Packages; 3. Anne Marie Histon: Sweet 'N Sout Lamb Cubes; 4. Colleen Histon: Lamb Casserole; 5. Esther Blum: Ground Lamb

Lancaster County Delivers The Goods To Philly's Downtown Farm Market

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

PHILADELPHIA — Nestled in between 12th Street Cantina, across from Giunta's Pork and Poultry, bordered by Salad Express and just in back of Amazulu Handcrafted Jewelry . . . is a man who wears suspenders and straw hat by the name of Benuel Kauffman.

Kauffman operates a 50-foot long fresh produce stand in the "Lancaster County" section of the Reading Terminal Market at 12th and Arch Streets near the Philadelphia Convention Center.

He provides a taste of Lancaster County to the thousands of visitors a week from one of the busiest sections of downtown Philadelphia.

Kauffman, Christiana, was working the stand, overflowing with tomatoes and spinach, with his wife, Emma, and son, Amos, 6, on the day Lancaster Farming stopped by.

Kauffman also has help from daughters Mima, 15, Elizabeth, 21, and two other sons, Daniel, 20 and Jonathan, 16.

Reading Terminal Market is home to about 10 separate farm families featuring treats that Lancaster County is known for.

"My busiest time of year is July, when I have peaches, corn, blueberries, squash," said Kauffman. A few weeks ago he was selling bright red greenhouse tomatoes. Other produce during the season is purchased regularly from Leola Produce Auction in Leola and the Kirkwood Produce Auction in Kirkwood.

Kauffman's driver, Ernest Colwell, New Castle, Del., said that early in July, the stand sells "loads of corn," about 5,000 ears a week. One weekend stood out in Kauffman's memory — 4,200 ears sold to happy customers in three days.

Colwell, who has been driving Kauffman from Lancaster County for about five years, leaves his home about 4 a.m. and arrives at Kauffman's house at 5. He then travels with the Kauffman family to arrive at the Reading Terminal Market about 6:20 a.m., readying the stand to open officially at 8.

Colwell said, "The people here are real nice. That makes it worthwhile."

Colwell noted that on weekends, particularly Friday and Saturday, the stand business can vary — but is generally busy. Colwell said he often brings wife Joyce on Saturdays.

Colwell drives a 5-ton IC-2 truck. It's not refrigerated — but does carry a refrigerator for perishable items.

Kauffman operates the stand from Wednesday through Saturday from April to New Year's.

"It's a fun thing," said Colwell as he was preparing spinach for sales on opening day for the stand recently. "It's not really a job. I have fun meeting and talking to people."

Produce is not the only thing on the sales counter at the bustling Reading Terminal Market.

Alvin Beiler, Gordonville, operates Beiler's Bakery, which advertises its homemade sticky buns and dinner rolls "made right here" on a big sign above the lamps. The bakery is open four days a week from Wednesday through Saturday at the market.

The stand is one of the longest-running at the market, open now 19 years. Alvin has worked the stand for 13 years, once operated by Esh Egg Farms. Working behind the stand on the day of the Lancaster Farming visit were Emma Stoltzfus, Linda Stoltzfus, and Lavina Stoltzfus.

"Fresh killed chicken" is brightly advertised at Diemmer's Lancaster County stand. The stand, in operation for 20 years, is open Wednesday through Saturday all year around. Working the stand recently were Sam Diemmer, Roger Blank, and Linda Fisher. The Diemmer's live in Narvon.

Next to Diemmer's is Lancaster County Dairy, Juices and Drinks. The popular stand is known for its fresh, homemade lemonade and orange juice, grapefruit, and other products, including raw goat milk. At the counter helping customers was John King.

Sam Esh operates the Dutch Eating Place, which advertises homemade hot soups, chicken pot pie, real mashed potatoes, and fresh-cut fries. The stand operates Wednesday through Saturday all year long. Helping at the stand were Barbie Stoltzfus and Priscilla Zook.

Esh noted that a big part of the Reading Terminal Market is the annual event called the Dutch Festival. He said that one lane of 12th Street is closed and the market is open for free buggy rides for customers of the market. Also included are 20 animals as part of a free petting zoo along Arch Street, which borders the market complex.

The Dutch Festival, held during the week of the first Saturday in August, also includes homemade donuts. "It draws a large crowd," said Esh. Included is a quilt raffle on Saturday, preceded by a celebration of Pennsylvania Dutch Country from Thursday through Saturday.

Esh has operated his stand for about seven years.

tures, in addition to the candies, Lancaster County ice cream, sundaes, banana splits, milk shakes, and other goodies. Next to it is Fisher's Candies and Fisher's Homemade Soft Pretzels.

The stand is owned by Levi Fisher of Gap. Visitors could get a glimpse of Ruth Stoltzfus working dough into pretzels at one of the stands.

Near the Beer Garden, at the rear center of the market, is Hallteman Family Foods, owned by Amos Riehl, Intercourse. The stand has been in existence at the terminal market about 50 years, according to Riehl. It offers meats and vegetables every day, Monday through Saturday.

Jolene King was busy working the Dutch Kountry Sandwich Korner stand from Gordonville. The stand is operated by David and Barbara Esh. It has been operated for 18 years and is open from Wednesday through Saturday all year long.

Barbara noted that "Saturday is the busiest day" for the stand, though Friday can also be a challenge.

"These are the nicest people I know," commented one customer of the stand. The Philadelphia businessman, who wished to remain anonymous, said, "It's like being at home — it's a real pleasant experience."

The Rib Stand, which features baby back ribs, rib sandwiches, and barbecue potatoes, makes its home in Intercourse. Phares Glick, owner of stand, has been selling pork products at the stand for 15 years. The stand is open Wednesday through Saturday all year.

Glick's Salads, Gordonville, has been operating at the terminal market for 16 years. Salads are sold Wednesday through Saturday all year long. Operating the stand recently was Michelle Fetter.

For more information about the Reading Terminal Market and the Dutch Festival in August, contact the Reading Terminal Market Corporation, 12th and Arch Streets, Philadelphia, PA 19107, (215) 922-2317.

Why me?

Why have they singled out me for all this attention?

After all, I'm just one of the herd members in the milking string. I try to do my job. Stay healthy. Eat lots. Milk well. Not get tangled in any fences or bruise my udder or shove the other girls around.

Of course, even though I am fair size for may age — I'm only two — some of the older cows are lots bigger and heavier and can push their weight around a lot better than me, anyway. I learned my place in the bovine pecking order early on, believe me. Some of those old mamas can ram you pretty hard if they want your spot at the feed bunk.

So there I am, standing with the rest of the herd in the barn sometime ago, just munching away on my cud and waiting for my turn to be milked so I could be more comfortable and lay down to rest. And a couple of strange humans come walking down through the barn, pointing at and talking about some of my buddies.

Then they stopped at me.

"Go away. Bug off. What's your problem?" I wanted to moo to them. But you can't tell a human anything, so I just swished my tail and shook my head in irritation. After they pointed and gestured and eyeballed me for a while, they left. Good riddance. Hoped I'd seen the last of this pestiness.

But, nooooooooo way.

A couple of weeks later, one of my humans comes and slips this rope thing around my head. Tugs on it 'til I follow him to the end of the barn. And then — get this! — he ties me there. All by myself. The indignity. At least there was a pile of silage there that I could munch on. After while, they took the rope thing off and sent me back to the herd. Go figure.

And did the same senseless thing again the next day. And the next. Let me tell you, this was getting old. But I didn't kick or butt or try to run away, or anything like that. See, I try to get along.

Then, they did it again. Only, this time, they took this noisy thing they held in their hand and began to cut my hair. A little here, a little there, more off the top of my head. I hate to admit it, but it did improve my looks.

And if that wasn't enough, then they started to spray me with cold water all over. And it was chilly. I shivered. But the sun was warm and I dried off soon. Afterward, it actually felt kinda' good. But I didn't smell like a cow anymore.

Then they led me off into a nice, flat grassy spot behind the house. I remembered having run through there one time, when a bunch of us youngsters knocked a hole in the fence and sneaked through. This time, it was daylight and there were a bunch of strange humans around. They brushed me until my coat glistened in the sunshine, clipped at me some more, and — get this — gave me a fake tail to make mine look fuller. Go figure.

Then this bunch of strangers all crowded around me and made me stand in one spot, just so. They kept putting my feet in certain positions and holding my head in the air. Every time I tried to relax or move a little, they put me back in that same position. Then, they would all jump back and some clown up front would yell and make funny noises, trying to get my attention. What a bore!

And while all this was going on, the guy who seemed to be in charge kept slipping behind some piece of equipment that clicked every now and then. He did it a couple of times. But I must admit, I did look pretty. No one ever told me what was going on. but I overheard a couple of snatches of human mumblings about taking my picture because my father was showing a lot of promise as a bull. Bulls. Who needs 'em, anyway? We girls are the ones who do all the work.

But, since I got back to the barn, a couple of my bovine buds have been teasing me about wanting my autograph. Keep it up, I told 'em, and you're gonna' get an autograph. A hoofprint on the flank.

Sigh. The stuff we photo moodels have to put up with . . .

Home on the Range

Barbecue Time

The mouth-watering aroma, the succulent sound of meat sizzling and the special flavor of grilled foods have made grilling one of the most enjoyable ways to cook.

Backyard barbecues on a summer afternoon or evening have become not only a national pastime but a terrific way to entertain.

Marinades and sauces add delectable flavor to meats and add lots of versatility to barbecues. Included in today's selection are several marinades and sauces for you to try.

Happy grilling!

VINEGAR-FLAVORED GRILLED CHICKEN

4 broiler-fryer chicken quarters
⅔ cup white wine vinegar
⅔ cup water
3 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons Worchestershire sauce
2 tablespoons garlic salt
1 tablespoon coarsely ground pepper

In small saucepan, place vinegar, water, butter, Worcestershire sauce, salt and pepper; bring to a boil. Brush sauce on chicken. Place chicken on prepared grill, skin side up, about 8-inches from heat. Cook, turning and basting liberally with sauce every 5-10 minutes, about 60-70 minutes or until fork can be inserted in chicken with ease. Makes 4 servings.

National Broiler Council

HERBED CHUCK STEAKS

⅓ cup red wine vinegar
⅓ cup water
1 tablespoon vegetable oil
1 teaspoon dried thyme leaves
½ teaspoon coarse ground black pepper
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon sugar
1¼ pounds well-trimmed boneless beef chuck shoulder steaks, cut 1-inch thick

Combine vinegar, water, oil, thyme, pepper, salt, and sugar. Place beef steaks in plastic bag; add marinade, turning to coat. Close bag securely and marinate in refrigerator 6 to 8 hours or overnight, if desired, turning occasionally. Remove steaks from marinade and place on grill over medium coals. Grill 14 to 20 minutes for rare, (140 degrees) to medium (160 degrees), turning once. Carve into thin slices. Makes 4 servings. 208 calories per serving.

Beef Council

FRENCH BARBECUE MARINADE

⅓ cup light or dark corn syrup
⅓ cup dry white wine
¼ cup corn oil
¼ cup Dijon mustard
2 tablespoons finely chopped parsley
1 clove garlic, finely minced
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 small onion, finely grated

In a medium bowl, stir together all ingredients until well blended.

Pour over chicken, pork chops or steak in a shallow dish, cover and refrigerate several hours or overnight, turning frequently.

Remove from marinade and grill to desired doneness. Place marinade in saucepan and bring to a boil for 5 minutes then use the marinade to baste on frequently turned meat. Makes 1½ cups marinade.

TEXAS BARBECUE SAUCE

2 cups ketchup
½ cup cider vinegar
½ cup Worcestershire sauce
1 small onion, finely grated
¼ cup butter
1 tablespoon salt
2 tablespoons brown sugar
1½ teaspoon chili powder
1½ teaspoon pepper
1 small bay leaf

Place all ingedients in a large saucepan, bring to a boil, stirring occasionally. Reduce heat and simmer for 2 minutes. Remove and discard bay leaf. Makes 3 cups.

Take 1 cup of sauce and brush over brisket and cook one hour, brushing with sauce with each turn.

GRILLED PURPLE ONIONS

3 medium-size purple or sweet onions
1½ cups dry white wine
¼ cup butter, melted
1 or 2 fresh thyme sprigs
⅛ teaspoon pepper

Cut onion into ½ -inch slices, place a toothpick from side to side of slices to hold rings together when grilling. Place slices in shallow dish and cover with the wine and chill for 8 hours.

Place butter, thyme, and pepper in saucepan, heat to combine flavors.

Brush onion slices with butter mixture, place on grill and cook, flipping from side to side and brushing with each flip.

Recipe Topics

If you have recipes for the topics listed below, please share them with us. We welcome your recipes, but ask that you include accurate measurements, a complete list of ingredients and clear instructions with each recipe you submit. Send your recipes to Lou Ann Good, Lancaster Farming, P.O. Box 609, Ephrata, PA 17522. Recipes should reach our office one week before publishing date.

June-		Dairy Recipe Drawing

A sneak preview of these "moo" prizes shown by Lou Ann Good should get you in the "mood" to enter Lancaster Farming's annual Dairy Recipe Drawing.

Get In The 'Mood' To Enter Dairy Recipe Drawing

June Dairy Month is almost here. That means it is time to enter Lancaster Farming's annual Dairy Recipe Drawing.

To enter the drawing, select your favorite recipe, which must include a substantial amount of at least one dairy product. Dairy ingredients include milk, cream, sour cream, whipped cream, butter, yogurt, buttermilk, dry milk, ice cream, and any hard and soft cheeses. Please check your recipe carefully. Margarine and non-dairy substitutes such as whipped topping do not qualify as dairy products.

Dairy recipes are needed for appetizers, soups, breads, entrees, vegetables, desserts, beverages, snacks, and salads.

Clearly print or type your recipe. Be sure to give accurate measurements, temperatures, times, and sizes of baking dishes to use. We reserve the right to disqualify entries if these guidelines are not followed.

The difference between this contest and the weekly recipes is that you are asked to include a few paragraphs about yourself and your family. Although it is not required, a photograph of your family adds a wonderful touch to accompany the printed submission. Photos will be returned it you write your name and address on the back of the photo.

Only one entry per family allowed. This contest is for adults, not children. Send your recipe, photo, and accompanying information with your complete address to Lou Ann Good, Lancaster Farming Cow Mania Drawing, P.O. Box 609, 1 E. Main St., Ephrata, PA 17522. If we do not have your complete address, we can not mail your prize.

Send entries immediately. Envelopes must be postmarked by June 1 to be eligible for the drawing.

Winners will be selected through a drawing and will be sent a prize with a cow motif. Winners will be announced in the June 27th issue.

Celebrating Diversity: Learning to Play Together

We live and work in a world filled with diversity. Our young children (2 to 5 years) are exposed to many different experiences every day through their play activities. To ensure that children receive a well-balanced knowledge base, we need to provide a wide variety of opportunities. One such area is the celebration of our diversity. Parents and caregivers naturally provide activities that help children learn about the world around them. Through a child's play we can do the following:

- address a child's fear of differences
- help children live cooperatively with others
- prevent prejudices in children
- experience a variety of social environments

Children begin to notice differences very early in life. This classification process carries over from the toys and objects they play with to the people they encounter each day.

Many adults have had embarrassing experiences of being in a public place and the child pointing and loudly commenting on another person's differences—handicap, skin color or age. As you can see from the development chart below, children begin to make these associations very early in life.

Developmental Characteristics Charts For Children

2 years—Begin to notice gender and racial differences.

2.5 years—Learn appropriate gender labels: boy/girl. Learn names of colors and begin to apply to skin color.

3 years—Children notice physical disabilities. Show signs of being influenced by societal norms and biases. May show "pre-prejudice" toward others based on gender, race or disability.

3.5 years—Children are trying to figure out what aspects of themselves will remain constant:

- "Will I always be....?"
- "Can my skin change color?"

4-5 years—Children will display what they think is gender appropriate behavior. Children will avoid other children because of race or disability - they are fearful of differences.

Parents and care providers need to incorporate time for children to explore their world. Through a variety of activities children can experience new cultures. Highlighting the foods, music, clothing and celebrations of other lands makes the experiences real to children. Families can add activities into the child's daily schedule and celebrate the diversity of our world.

- Foods: Select breads from around the world and discuss how they are created and served. You might select pita from the Middle East, croissants from France, steamed buns from China, or soda bread from Ireland.
- Music: Listen to music from other lands noting the differences and similarities in rhythm. Try to create the sounds you hear. Learn a song in another language like Fre're Jacques or Feliz Navidad.
- Clothing: Today clothing has a universal look but for celebrations or special occasions families may wear outfits of the past like: Japanese kimono, African kente, and Caribbean bashiki.
- Celebrations: Children love special events, so create a celebration for the children. By using the library for research on days to celebrate you can create a festival almost any time. Provide "dress-up" clothes, snacks, play activities and music to set the stage for your celebration. Enjoy the celebration!

Armstrong County Needs Dairy Promoters

WORTHINGTON (Armstrong Co.) — Since 1973 young people have reaped benefits from representing Pennsylvania's Number 1 agricultural industry: Dairy! Any one interested in helping further the tradition of sharing farming aspects with the people of Armstrong County should consider devoting a year of their spare time Here are the qualifications.

Junior Representatives: 1.) Individuals must be between the ages of 13 and 16 years old, single with no children. 2.) You must have a sincere desire to promote the dairy industry and user of REAL dairy products. 3.) Junior Representatives must be willing to learn about dairy products and the industry. 4.) Be available to attend a one day mini-seminar to learn about meeting people, appearing before people, and promoting dairy.

Dairy Maid and Dairy Ambassadors' qualifications are identical to the Junior Representative's with thes exceptions: You must be self involved in the dairy industry or have a relative (grandparent, parent, sibling, uncle or aunt) employed full time in a dairy related industry; or, served one full year as Junior Representative.

Young people between the ages of 16 and 24 compete for the title of Armstrong County Dairy Prince or Princess. The qualifications required for this position generally follow those of Dairy Maid/Dairy Ambassadors. However, individuals may become eligible to compete for prince or princess after completing a year as Dairy Maid or Dairy Ambassador. They must also attend training seminar and specific state dairy functions. Competitors for this title must have: a 3- to 5-minute speech and a skit of 3- to 5-minute length. Both items should have an effectiv. message to the general public about the dairy industry and its products.

The Armstrong County Dairy Promotion Committee is a group of volunteers who strides to promote dairy products and create better relations between the farming community and general public. The group provides educational and nutritional information about the dairy products and the dairy industry. The committee is guided by the Pennsylvania Dairy Princess and Promotion Services and also the American Dairy Association.

Serving as dairy representative helps you not only become more confident; but also opens the door for future rewards such as state or national scholarships. The interested individuals must have a completed application returned to our group by June 1. Full details on becoming Armstrong County Dairy Royalty are just a phone call away. For additional information, call Betty (814) 257-8846, Marlene (724) 548-5220, or Willetta (724) 545-6419. Committee volunteers are also welcome.

QUESTION — Susan Harris, Lexington, VA, would like a recipe for fruit cake in the jar.

QUESTION — A reader tasted a delicious cottage cheese soup at the Red Fox Inn at Snowshoe. Does anyone have a recipe for cottage cheese soup.

ANSWER — Madeline Van Leuven, Mantura, N.J., is a cake baker and has lots of requests for diet cakes. She wanted a recipe for a good moist yellow cake and one for chocolate that is suitable for people on diets. Thanks to Eileen Greenaway, Somerville, N.J., who is also a cake baker. She readily shares her secrets and recipes. She writes that the way to have moist cakes is to never let them brown, especially if you're going to frost them, anyway. As soon as the cake starts to pull away from the sides of the pan, remove it from the oven. Browning only removes the moisture.

Basic Yellow Cake

1 cup butter
2 cups sugar
5 large eggs
3 cups sifted flour
1 tablespoon baking powder
1¼ cups milk
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
(no salt)

Cream butter and sugar. Add eggs, one at a time, beating well after each. Combine flour and baking powder, add to creamed mixture alternately with milk, beginning and ending with flour mixture. Stir in vanilla. Pour into two greased and floured nine-inch cake pans and bake at 350 degrees for 20-25 minutes. Cool in pans for 10 minutes (square cake pans yield more servings than round ones).

Fresh Banana Cake
(Low fat)

¼ cup butter, room temperature
¾ cup sugar
3 large eggs, at room temperature
1½ teaspoons vanilla
3 ripe medium bananas, mashed
1½ cups low-fat buttermilk at room temperature
2¼ cups flour
2 teaspoons baking soda
1 teaspoon salt

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Spray a 12-inch bundt pan with non-stick cooking spray. With electric mixer at medium speed, beat butter and sugar until light and fluffy; beat in eggs, one at a time. Stir in the bananas, vnailla, and buttermilk. Combine flour, baking soda, and salt. Add to banana mixture, stirring just until combined. Do not beat! Pour batter into prepared pan and bake 40-45 minutes or until top springs back when lightly touched. Cool in pan on rack 30 minutes before removing from pan. Sprinkle with confectioner's sugar. Serves 12. 230 calories per serving: 6 gms fat.

Raisin Spice Cake
Low fat

½ cup raisins
2 tablespoons plus 2 teaspoons reduced-fat margarine
2 tablespoons sugar
1 large egg, lightly beaten
½ cup flour
½ teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon nutmeg
½ teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon cloves
¼ teaspoons allspice
Dash salt

Combine raisins, margarine, sugar, and ½ cup water in medium pan and bring to boil. Set aside and cool. Stir in beaten egg. Stir together remaining ingredients; add to raisin mixture just until combined. Pour into a 6½ -square baking dish sprayed with non-stick spray. Bake at 350 degrees about 15 minutes. Serves 4. 192 cal. 6 gm fat per serving.

ANSWER — L. Martin, Dalmatia, wanted a recipe for making tartar sauce. Thanks to Eileen Greenaway, Somerville, N.J., for sending two recipes.

Green Onion Tarter Sauce

1 large egg
1 tablespoon minced garlic
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
2 tablespoons chopped green onions
1 cup olive oil
¼ teaspoon cayenne pepper
1 tablespoons Creole or whole grain mustard
1 teaspoon salt

Put egg, garlic, lemon juice, parsley, and green onions in blender and puree for 15 seconds. With blender running, pour oil in with a steady stream. Add cayenne pepper and salt to blend. Place in covered container and refrigerate for one hour before using. Best used within 24 hours because of the raw egg. Makes 1½ cups.

Easy Tarter Sauce

2 cups mayonnaise
¼ cup lemon juice
¼ cup sweet pickle relish
1 tablespoon Dijon mustard
¼ cup fresh, chopped parsley
2 tablespoons capers

Place all ingredients in blender and blend thoroughly. Cover and refrigerate (it will keep a long time in refrigerator). Makes 3 cups.

SOUTHERN-STYLE PEANUT BARBECUE SAUCE

½ cup creamy peanut butter
½ cup beef broth
¼ cup honey
3 tablespoons soy sauce
1 medium onion, finely grated
1 clove garlic, finely minced
¼ teaspoon pepper

Mix all together in a medium bowl, blending well.

Use to baste meat while grilling.

For extra flavor, marinate in half of sauce for 1 to 2 hours and suse the other half to baste meat while grilling. Makes 1½ cups sauce.

SPICY BARBECUE SAUCE

2 8-ounce cans tomato sauce
⅓ cup onion, finely chopped
¼ cup salt-free steak sauce
1 tablespoon Mrs. Dash 14 herb and spice blend
1 tablespoon chili powder

Combine all ingredients in a small saucepn. Bring to a boil, reduce heat and simmer for 15 minutes. Brush over meat toward end of grilling. Makes 1¼ cups sauce.

MEXICAN BARBECUE SAUCE

⅓ cup light or dark syrup
⅓ cup strong coffee
¼ cup ketchup
¼ cup cider vinegar
¼ cup Worcestershire sauce
4 to 6 teaspoons chili powder
1 tablespoon corn oil
2 teaspoons dry mustard
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon hot pepper saquce

Place all ingredients in a 1-quart saucepan. While stirring, frequently bring mixture to a boil over medium high heat and boil for 5 minutes.

Brush on chicken, pork chops, spareribs, or steaks during last 20 minutes of grilling, turning, and brushing frequently.

Makes 1½ cups sauce.

ORIENTAL BARBECUE SAUCE

½ cup ketchup
½ cup light or dark corn syrup
¼ cup soy sauce
2 cloves garlic minced
½ teaspoon anise seed
½ teaspoon ground cinnamon
¼ teaspoon pepper
¼ teaspoon ground cloves

In a small bowl, stir together all the ingredients until well blended. Brush on chicken, pork chops, spareribs, or steak during the last 20 minutes of grilling, turning, and basting frequently. Makes 1½ cups sauce.

Cook's Question

ANSWER — Donna Cleveland, Wellsboro, wanted good diabetic recipe for peanut butter cookies and other diabetic dessert recipes. Thanks to Eileen Greenaway, Somerville, N.J., for sending the following:

Peanut Butter Fluffs

9 graham crackers, crumbed
2 tablespoons reduced-calorie tub margarine, melted
2 cups reduced-calorie whipped topping
1 cup low-fat milk
½ cup plus 1 tablespoon creamy peanut butter
1 envelope reduced calorie vanilla pudding mix
2 tablespoons reduced calorie strawberry spread

Line 12 2½ -inch muffin cups with paper liners. In a small bowl, combine crumbs and margarine. Press about 1 tablespoon mixture into each cup. Top each with about 2 teaspoons whipped topping. In a large bowl, with electric mixer on low speed, mix milk and peanut butter until smooth. Add pudding mix; beat until blended and fold in remaining whipped topping. Divide evenly among cups. Top with ½ teaspoon strawberry spread. Freeze several hours or overnight. Let stand at room temperature, about 5 minutes to soften before serving. Each serving provides 142 calories, 9 gm fat, 12 gm carbohydrates, and no cholesterol.

Chocolate Almond Cookies

2 large egg whites at room temperature
⅛ teaspoon cream of tarter
1 envelope reduced-calorie chocolate mousse mix
1 tablespoon confectioners' sugar
½ teaspoon almond extract.

Preheat oven to 250 degrees. Line baking sheet with parchment paper (freezer wrap works fine). In a large bowl with mixer on high speed, beat egg whites and cream of tarter until soft peaks form. Gradually add mousse mix and sugar, beating till batter is thick and fluffy. Fold in extract. Drop by rounded teaspoons 1½ -inches apart on baking sheet to make 24 cookies. Bake 35-40 minutes or til crisp. Cool completely. These are thin, flat cookies). Each serving (2 cookies) provides 25 calories, 1 gm fat, 2 gms carbohydrate and no cholesterol.

Dietary Brownies

½ cup butter
Artificial sweetner equivalent to 1¼ cups sugar
2 squares unsweetened chocolate, melted
2 eggs
½ teaspoon vanilla extract
¾ cup all-purpose sifted flour
1 teaspoon double acting baking powder
¼ cup chopped walnuts

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. In large bowl, cream butter and sweetner until light and fluffy. Add chocolate and beat until smooth. Beat in eggs and vanilla. Add flour, baking powder, and walnuts. Beat until smooth. Spread batter in 8x8x2-inch pan. Bake 30 minutes or until brownies are shiny on the surface. Cool in pan. Cut into 16 pieces.

Ida's Notebook

by

Ida Risser

Custard

3 eggs
2 cups milk
8 teaspoons liquid sweetner
½ teaspoon nutmeg
½ teaspoon vanilla
Unsweetened coconut, if desired

Scald milk, add to slightly beaten eggs, nutmeg, and liquid sweetener. Bake in greased casserole placed in a pan of hot water in 325 degree oven for 45 minutes to one hour. Test with silver knife in center. If it comes out clean, it's done. Let cool.

Soft Honey Cake

Blend:
½ cup butter
1 cup honey
Add and beat well:
1 egg, unbeaten
Stir in:
⅓ cup sour or buttermilk
Sift together, then add to above mixture:
2 cups sifted flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
¼ teaspoon salt
⅓ teaspoon ginger
¼ teaspoon allspice

Mix well and beat until light. Pour into a greased square pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 40 to 45 minutes. Cool. Can also be made in cupcakes if so desired. By omitting spices and add ½ cup cocoa, a little more milk or water (enough to make cocoa into a thick paste), this makes a delicious chocolate cake.

Sugarless Cake

Dissolve:
8½ grain Saccharine tablets in ½ cup milk
1 cup evaporated milk
Cream:
½ cup shortening
Add:
3 egg yolks
Sift:
5 heaping tablespoons flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon baking soda
Pinch salt

Mix sifted ingredients with creamed mixture, adding milk mixture, and flavor to taste

Fold in:
3 beaten egg whites

Bake in 375 degree oven one hour or until done. Can bake in loaf or 2 layers.

We seem to be having our April showers in May. Part of the lawn is mowed and then it rains so that the remaining grass must wait until the next day.

In the morning we can watch a half dozen American goldfinch sitting in our small oak tree. The bluebirds have decided to nest in one of our birdhouses. And, several mockingbirds live nearby.

It has become a tradition for our youngest daughter to give me a bouquet each May first. At one time it was simply some flowers like buttercups that she picked in the meadow. But, now that she lives in Texas, a florist delivers the flowers. This year she sent two miniature red rose bushes in a basket.

Our sugar peas are getting buds, and by the end of the month, there may be some to pick. Some people do not like frozen peas but I've discovered that if the peas are thawed, before they are put in the kettle, and then only brought to a boil they will not be too soft and overcooked.

My gladiolas and four kinds of lilies have been planted. Now I must put some houseplants in the garden too. I thought that I planted radishes, but they came up, and now I have a lot of Chinese cabbage to transplant. That is what happens when you save your own seed and do not mark it properly.

With all of the moisture that we have just now, it is difficult to keep the weeds pulled. But the damp ground is just the thing as I plant new begonias and impatiens. Some of our azaleas are spectacular this year with their white, pink and red blossoms.

Katrina's Bull Is Grand Champion In National Test

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

QUARRYVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — Katrina Frey is only eight years old, but she already has a good start in carrying on the dream of her dad, grandpa, and great grandpa. She is the fourth generation in the Frey family to raise champion Angus cattle.

Recently Katrina's bred and owned bull went to Montana to be on test for several months. More than 100 bulls from across the U.S. were tested for weight gain, high growth, and eye appeal under carefully-controlled conditions at the Treasure Test Center.

Katrina's 1,533 pound son of GMAR Hi Spade 039 won the Single Shot Jackpot Division for his impressive 3.59 pounds per day weight gain and an index of 114.

The bull sold for $3,750 to the North Dakota Frey Angus Ranch. Although they share the same last name, the two different Frey families are not relatives and only met through the test service.

The champion bull was actually from a string of cattle bred from the first calf that Katrina received when she was about two years old from her grandfather, Fred Frey. That cow has had several daughters and the bull was born from a granddaughter of the first cow.

Katrina said that she does not miss the champion bull, named Astro, which means "star."

"He is a star, Katrina said.

She still has the older and younger brother of the champion, and becomes attached to Buddy, a steer she shows at local fairs, the Beef Expo, and the Pennsylvania Angus Show.

The champion bull showed winning characteristics at an early age.

"In addition to looking good, he was always the first up to eat. He liked to sniff and be scratched," Katrina's dad said. "Champions usually don't seem as wild as some bulls, which probably means they don't feel as much stress and are more inclined to gain weight."

Katrina's dad explained that in the East, breeders look for more show characteristics in bulls. In the West, they want more maternal strength in bulls. The Freys sell about 50 percent of their offspring to Western breeders.

Katrina's dad, grandpa, and several other family members raise about 120 registered Angus cattle at their Quarryville Farms under the name Fred Frey & Sons. The herd was first established in 1948 by Katrina's great-grandfather Fred C. Frey. But he never saw the first calf that was born in 1949, because he was killed in a truck accident. Katrina's grandfather was 16 years old at the time, and worked hard to maintain the Angus line, which is well-known nationally.

"I'd like to see my children and grandchildren continue the business, but it's up to them," the elder Frey said. He is pleased that Katrina gave up gymnastics after three years because she needed more time to work with her show cattle. She also shows two market lambs, a ewe, and a yearling.

"I like them all," Katrina said of her variety of animals. "Buddy loves to eat. I fed him a blueberry bagel yesterday."

Katrina is in second grade at Clairmont Elmentary School. She has a brother Billy, 2.

Why do roses die so soon?
It might look like there's enough water in the vase for your flowers, but that doesn't mean the water is getting used. Flowers in a vase usually can't get enough water through their stems, so they wilt and die.
Flowers drink through a tube in the stem Bacteria harmlessly float around in tap water, but cause problems when they get inside the plant The water moves up through the tube to the flower, taking bacteria with it The bacteria stop to feed on material in the tube When they eat there, thousands of tiny bacteria grow together and block the stem, so water can't get in Another reason roses die so quickly is by the time roses get to the store or flower shop, they're often already a few days old. Many roses are grown in South America and shipped to the United States — which takes a couple of days The fresher they are, the longer your flowers will last.
Valentine's Day — a prime rose-giving holiday — hits during the winter when the air is extremely dry. That's not the best time to have roses, unless you take extra special care of them.
Even if roses are a few days old, they'll last longer if kept in a cool, moist place, where the petals won't dry out. You should cut off the bottom of the stems at an angle when you get flowers to open the stem and clear out some bacteria blocking the way.
It's also a good idea to use the packet of preservative that usually comes with flowers. The packet has sugar and bacteriacide — a chemical that kills bacteria and stops it from blocking the stem.
Next time you buy flowers for your mom, think about buying a rose bush or plant. The best part is they keep flowering year after year!
Scientifically yours, Twig

May 6 and May 16 will be meeting dates to work on the club scrapbooks.

A highlight of May will be the car wash at Weaver Markets in Adamstown May 23 from 9 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. May 31 will be the club's practice grooming and showmanship at 2 p.m. Horses are to be ther already groomed. The location of the event is to be decided.

The T.R.O.T. Club roundup will be at Farfield Farm in Reinholds, June 13 at 9 a.m. For more information, call Naomi Weaver at (717) 484-0225.

Milk Mustaches Dominate Breakfast

NEW CASTLE, Del. — Fifty students representing high schools from across Delaware recently celebrated National Nutrition Month at a celebrity breakfast at Delcastle Technical High School. Held in the Sandcastle Cafe at the school, the "Breakfast With the Champions" was sponsored by Delaware High School Wellness Center dietitians, Dairy Council, Inc., and the American Cancer Society. Local celebrities were also on hand to share testimonials about the importance of breakfast in their professional and personal lives.

The breakfast began with Mary Ann Eastep, a wellness center dietitian, encouraging the teens to start the day with a well-balanced breakfast that includes milk group foods as well as fruit, grains and protein. Miss Delaware, Alison Catherine White, told how she performed better in school and on tests when she had eaten breakfast. Additional speakers included professional boxer Dave Tiberi, wrestler Karl Fisher, and state Representative Terry Spence.

After breakfast, students and celebrities donned milk mustaches at a booth sponsored by Dairy Council, Inc. Deanna Rose, registered dietitian and nutrition specialist of Dairy Council, Inc., stated that 75 percent of breakfast skippers fail to meet their daily requirements for calcium. Since teens are often breakfast skippers, we are here to give them nutritious and delicious morning tips that include calcium and other nutrients that teens' growing bodies need," she added.

Live, Love, Laugh, Learn Dominate Farm Women Rally

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

READING (Berks Co.) — "The City of Reading is the Pretzel Capitol of the world," said Ruth Walters, Berks County Farm Women president.

For this reason, the Berks Society of Farm Women, which hosted the annual Pennsylvania Society of Farm Women on Tuesday at the Riveredge Restaurant, thought it appropriate to have as its theme: "Mind, Body, Soul Entertwined Like A Pretzel That Keeps Us Whole." About 600 members of the statewide group met for its annual spring rally.

Dr. Leo Frangipane, surgeon at The Reading Hospital, reinforced the concept that mind and soul have a lot to do with the healing of the body. In his talk, "Live, Love, Laugh, and Learn," Frangipane recounted numerous anecdotes in his work with cancer patients to examine why some survive years longer than expected.

Some of his "secrets to life" include the following:

• Get up every morning and do something you like. You'll get old when you stop doing what you like.

• Bring who you are to your job. He said this in reference to statistics that show the majority of heart

(Turn to Page B16)

Janet Schlegel reviews the book written by Dr. Leon Frangipane, speaker at the rally. Frangipane writes about cancer patients who survive and how attitudes affect healing.

Jenny Biser Is Maryland Lamb And Wool Queen

KAREN BUTLER
Maryland Correspondent

WEST FRIENDSHIP, Md. — Jenny Biser is the 1998 Maryland Lamb and Wool Queen. The 16-year-old Frederick County youth was crowned at the 25th Maryland Sheep and Wool Festival, held at the Howard County fairgrounds.

Lamb and Wool Princesses selected at the contest are Megan Rynarzewski, Howard County, and Kristin Cummins, Carroll County. Other contestants included Robin Harkins, Harford County; Anne Marie Histon, Carroll County; and Melissa Goddard, St. Mary's County.

Jenny, the daughter of Joe and Ruth Biser, New Midway, has represented the Maryland sheep industry for the past two years as a princess. The high school sophomore is a member of the Johnsville 4-H club. Her sheep projects include market lambs, breeding ewes, shepherd's lead, and showmanship. She also raises beef steers and beef heifers and participates in cooking and sewing projects. At home on Maple Creek Farm, Jenny raises Cheviots and Hampshires, and owns 12 sheep herself.

Jenny's outfit for the evening event was a tribute to the sheep industry and to the wearer's sewing prowess. She wore a wool outfit she created that earned her first-place honors in 4-H Fashion Review. The two-piece ensemble consisted of a simple black crepe A-line dress with a coordinating short, fitted black and white houndstooth check jacket.

The day after they were crowned, Jenny and her princesses went right to work handing out ribbons in the showring. More than 1,100 sheep representing 21 states and Canada were shown during the two-day festival, attended by more than 50,000 people. The lamb and wool royalty will go on to assist with the Maryland Wool Pool held in June, and will promote sheep and wool throughout the year at county fairs, the state fair, and the Eastern National Livestock show.

Contestants in the Lamb and Wool Queen contest, left to right; Anne Marie Histon, Carroll County; Kristin Cummins, Carroll County; Jenny Biser, 1998 Maryland Lamb and Wool Queen, Frederick County; Kirra Pilson, outgoing queen; Megan Rynarzewski, Howard County; Robion Harkins, Howard County; and Melissa Goddard, St. Mary's County.

Judges given the challenge of selecting a queen from the six contestants were Robert Dinsmore and J.T. Hinkle, president and vice president, respectively, of the Maryland Sheep Breeders Association, and Kirra Pilson, outgoing queen.

Mongolain Lamb And Scallions

1 pound thinly sliced lamb roast
1 teaspoon light brown sugar
1 tablespoon light soy sauce
1 tablespoon rice wine or dry sherry
2 teaspoons cornstarch or arrowroot mixed with 2 teaspoons water to form a paste
2 cups peanut oil
½ ounce dry black woodear mushrooms (soak in water to rehydrate)
8-10 spring onions chopped to 1" pieces
10-14 ounces canned baby ear corn (about one can drained)
3-4 slices fresh ginger diced fine
2 tablespoons hosin sauce few drops sesame oil

Served over steamed or boiled rice and/or with sai-fun noodles.

Marinate thinly sliced lamb in brown sugar, soy sauce, wine, and cornstarch paste for about 30-45 minutes. After soaking mushrooms (25-30 minutes), chop them for use. Heat peanut oil in a wok for a quick deep-frying of the marinated lamb. Deep-fry lamb for about one minute then remove from oil. Set oil aside or use to cook sai-fun noodles. In a hot wok, add the hot deep-fried lamb and baby ear corn stir-frying for one minute then add mushrooms, onions, and ginger. Cook for one minute then add mushrooms, onions, and ginger. Cook for one minute more than stir in hosin sauce. Drizzle a few drops of sesame oil over the top as a garnish and serve with hot rice. Deep fried sai-fun noodles may be used as a garnish or used in place of the rice.

Lamb Stuffed Dim Sum Dumplings

1 pound ground lamb
5 leaves Napa or Chinese cabbage (blanched and finely chopped)
2-3 spring onions (finely chopped)
1 teaspoon grated Ginger
2 teaspoons cornstarch or arrowroot
1 teaspoon light brown sugar
2 tablespoons light soy sauce
2 teaspoons salt
1 tablespoon Rice wine or dry sherry
1 teaspoon dill or rosemary
2 teaspoons sesame oil
2 pounds wonton wrappers

Blanch cabbage until soft then drain and finely chop. Combine ground lamb with cabbage, chopped onion, ginger, cornstarch, brown sugar, soy sauce, salt, rice wine, dill or rosemary, and sesame oil. Mix well. Place 1½ teaspoons of filling into the center of a wonton wrapper. Fold in half and seal the edges with a light brushing of water (a beaten egg or a flour/water mixture can also be used). A dumpling press is really useful at this point. Bend each dumpling into a crescent moon shape and set aside from cooking.

Cooking Dim Sum can be done in many ways, here are two.

In a hot wok, add 3 tablespoons cooking oil. Turning to a medium heat, place dumplings in rows with the seam facing up such that the bottoms are browned first. Fry for 2-3 minutes or until golden brown then serve.

Line a steamer with lettuce leaves (to prevent sticking and to provide a clean light flavor). Stack dumplings on the bed of lettuce making sure that they do not touch each other and steam for 10-12 minutes then serve. The steamer may be used as the serving dish if a plate is placed under it to catch any dripping water.

Dim Sum can be served as a main course or as an appetizer. If not feeding a horde of Mongols, this recipe can be easily cut in half.

Dipping Sauces

Dipping sauces may be bought or easily made.

Hot Sauce: Mix together ¼ teaspoon hot oil, ¼ cup dark soy sauce, 1 tablespoon finely chopped spring onions, and 1 teaspoon finely chopped garlic.

Dipping Sauce: Mix together ¼ cup dark soy sauce, 2 tablespoons basalmic vinegar, 1 tablespoon finely chopped spring onion, and 1 teaspoon chopped garlic.

Lincoln Ram Is Supreme At Maryland Sheep And Wool Festival

KAREN BUTLER
Maryland Correspondent

WEST FRIENDSHIP, Md. — "A large volume Lincoln ram, extremely large bodied, with a good, square rump, a beautiful head, and a very nice, very uniform fleece" was selected supreme champion ram here by judges David Clauser, Polk, Ohio and Morris Culver, Eugene, Oregon in the sheep shows at the 25th anniversary of the Maryland Sheep and Wool Festival. Judge Clauser made his comments to a crowd of about 100 people gathered at the show ring at the Howard County fairgrounds. The yearling ram, "Springfield 2192" was exhibited by Bill and Cindy Bankhead, Rock Hall, Md.

Judge Clauser said it was the combination of stature and fleece quality that gave the 260-pound ram the edge over its nearest competitors. "The Lincoln just has an extremely large body and a beautiful fleece, with very nice shine to the fleece when you open it up," he said.

Between the two of them, the judges examined more than 1,100 sheep during the two-day event, with entries representing 21 states and Canada.

The Bankheads, of Kent County, have been in the sheep business about 23 years, said Bill Bankhead. They maintain a flock of 60 Lincoln wews, 150 Romney ewes, and 25 Rambouillet ewes, and show sheep all over the country.

"2192," a homebred entry, is out of genetics that have performed well at sheep shows for the Bankheads both nationally and in Canada. His sire brought home the champion rosette from the Lincoln show when he went to Louisville a few years back. His uncle was the National champion Lincoln ram, and his mother, a "very typey" ewe, according to Bankhead, was the second best ewe in Canada several years ago.

The Bankheads were honored with the Ernest E. Hall memorial trophy, presented each year to the exhibitor of the supreme champion ram. The trophy is a remembrance of Mr. Hall, who donated 16 years of service to the Maryland Sheep and Wool Festival.

Supreme champion ewe honors went to a Corriedale yearling ewe shown by Keith Chamberlin, K and K Corriedales.

"Reality," a 240-pound homebred ewe, impressed judge Clauser with her fleece, type, and femininity. He called her ". . . a large volume ewe with a beautiful head, nice color and texture to her fleece, a very attractive ewe from her front end on back."

K and K Corriedales is a 30 ewe operation in Ashland, Ohio run by Keith Chamberlin and his sister Karen Pruner, and her family. According to Chamberlin, "Reality" was the champion ewe at the Kentucky state fair in 1997, and was reserve champion at Keystone.

K and K was honored with the Florence B. Hall memorial trophy, presented each year to the exhibitor of the supreme champion ewe. The award is given in recognition of the 16 years of dedicated service Mrs. Hall gave to the Sheep and Wool festival.

HONESDALE (Wayne Co.) – Local 4-H members and adult volunteers are participating in a nationwide media campaign designed to promote youth community service and volunteerism and to raise awareness of the diverse education opportunities offered by 4-H.

The ads use the slogan "Are You Into It?™" to encourage youth and adults interested in community service to call a toll-free number (888-77-YOUTH) or visit the campaign's World Wide Web site (www.areyouintoit.com). Callers then will be contacted by a youth 4-H member or adult 4-H leader in Wayne County, who will provide information on volunteer opportunities, as well as on local 4-H clubs and activities. Those interested in community service or 4-H also can call the Wayne County office of the Penn State Cooperative Extension at (717) 253-5970, ext. 239.

Flowering Vines

You've added a shade trellis to your landscape. Now what? Many annual flowering vines grow fast enough to cover a trellis in only 4 to 6 weeks. By midsummer, you can have an entire trellis, covered with foliage.

Try a living curtain with morning glories. Embellish a privacy fence with black-eyed susan vines, or disguise an unsightly service area with the clove-scented sweet peas, Hang vines from a window frame, train vines on a downspout or wrap a tree with a flexible trellis, or use annual vines in a planter box, a large landscape pot, a topiary frame, or a hanging basket or window box. Be creative when using annual vines, what is your landscaping goal? Ask yourself the question. Where do you need to block the wind, offer shade or add privacy?

Most annual vines attach themselves to a supporting structure with twining stems or tendrils. Train the first several vines on the trellis with twist ties. This allows them to attach more easily to unusual trellis frames like chain link, wire or wood fencing.

Some vines climb up to 20 to 30 feet in a season covering existing landscape structures like fences, garden sheds, patio roofs, decks, balconies, doorways, ponds or bird baths. Unfortunately most vines do not climb to a brick or wooden wall, without a trellis frame. Or, help plants onto a trellis with vinyl-covered fencing. Vines and tendrils twine readily around vinyl-coated wire.

Choose an old-fashioned vine to celebrate the start of spring. Sweetpeas (Lathyrus odorata), reach to only two-feet high while other types become bushy and climb to eight-foot climbers. Look for scarlet, soft pink, white or purple flowers with all combination of bi-color flowers. Their flowers release a pleasing perfume

Sweetpeas bloom best in full sun in the cooler weather of spring and summer. They need rich soil that retains moisture. Plant directly outside after the last spring frost (May 5) or start indoors six weeks prior.

'Morning glories (Impomoea purpurea), offer, clear blue, pink, scarlet, or magenta trumpet flowers. A fast growing annual vine, the whorled buds of morning glory unfurl each morning, and fade by early evening, only to be replaced by new buds for the next morning.

Morning glories ramble from containers or trellises. Place in full sun or partial shade. Start them directly in the garden after the last frost. Soak the seed overnight or nick the seed coat with a file before sowing seed in prepared garden soil.

Avoid the rampant growing habits of the Morning glory by using Moonflower or Moon Vine (Impomoea alba). Its crystal white scented flowers resemble morning glory blossoms, but unlike morning glories which peak in the morning, its blossom open as dusk approaches and remain open through the night.

For a dense screen, consider the Balloon Vine (Cardiospermum halicacabum) or Cup-and-Saucer Vine (Cobaea scandens) Both vines cover a trellis or pergola quickly to provide shade or a solid privacy screen. These prolific vines can stretch to 20 feet in one season.

Nasturtiums (Tropaeolum magus), another old-fashioned flower, grows only to about six feet. It's a beautiful companion to other vines that grow higher. The nasturtium offers bright yellow, orange, red or white spurred flowers on dusty green leaves. The blossoms have a sweet scent that fills a room when cut and brought indoors. All Nasturtiums grow and bloom in poor soil. Rich soil produces abundant foliage and few flowers.

Black-eyed Susan vine (Thumbergia alata) is a delicate vine that grows only to about six feet Although it can be trained onto a trellis, its best use is in a hanging basket or window box. The blue-green foliage is decorated with bright orange, gold, yellow or white flowers with dark brown eyes. The aging flowers turn varying shades of cream to yellow, so the plant is covered with many variations of color at one time. Start seeds indoors six weeks before the last frost, and provide well-drained soil and full sun.

Hyacinth Bean (Dolichos lablab) produces attractive blue-green leaves to complement its striking dark purple pea-like flowers and lovely purple bean pods. Hyacinth beans can grow to 15 feet or more in a summer if given average garden soil and plenty of water. Sow seeds directly in the garden after danger of frost has passed.

The Trailblazers 4-H Horse and Pony Club will be sponsoring a Grooming and Showmanship Clinic on Wednesday, May 20, starting at 6:30 p.m. at the Northhampton County 4-H Center.

There will be a $5 entry fee for each horse and rider combo. You are welcome to come and join in the fun while you learn or brush up.

The instructor for the evening is Cindy Carruthers. Each horse and rider team will have their own review and instruction on grooming and showmanship as well as against other teams. For more information or to register, call Joyce Daley at (610) 837-3573.

The Northhampton County 4-H Center is also hosting an Open Youth Schooling Horse Show on Saturday, June 27, starting at 9 a.m. This schooling show is open to youths between the ages of 8 and 19. It is offered as a learning experience and will be held in an informal atmosphere. There is no formal dress code for this event, although hard hats, where necessary, and riding boots are required. All horses being exhibited must produce proof of rabies vaccination.

For more information about 4-H activities, call Phyllis Laufer at (610) 746-1970.

Hershey, Big Dutchman Donate To 4-H

Hershey Equipment Company, Inc. of Lancaster and Big Dutchman, Inc. of Holland, Mich. recently donated layer cages and equipment to the Delaware County 4-H program, according to Bud Bryan, 4-H coordinator.

The equipment was installed at the Delaware County 4-H Farm and Educational Center on the property of the Garrett-Williamson Foundation at Newtown Square. The 4-H farm is the site where 55 members own and raise livestock and poultry for their 4-H projects. Twenty-two of these members own laying hens, with each member doing "chores" one day every week. Broiler chickens, turkeys, sheep, market hogs, and beef cattle are also raised by members on a cooperative basis at the 4-H Farm.

Delaware County 4-H also conducts an Ag in the Classroom program with about 1,000 school children visiting the 4-H Farm each spring. Approximately three quarters of these children are 4-h members enrolled in the 4-H Food Production Education project. They complete seven lessons in their school classroom in which they learn about the history of farming, livestock, poultry, and basic human nutrition. As a culmination to their project, they visit the 4-H Farm for a full-day field trip. Lessons are taught by 4-H instructors and they get "hands-on" experience with the farm animals.

The 4-H Farm is not a petting zoo, but is designed to look like commercial production facilities as much as possible on a small scale. The newly remolded layer house has 78 hens in commercial type cages. Children can easily move through the facility for instruction as well as caring for the hens. The entire barn is handicapped accessible and children in wheelchairs regularly come to the farm for tours.

Delaware County 4-H has a long history of providing opportunities for suburban and urban kids to have farm animal projects. In addition, more than 100 members enrolled in basic horsemanship at the farm last year. The Garrett-Williamson Foundation has provided the barn and pasture free of charge to 4-H for the past 10 years as part of its mission to serve urban and suburban youth.

Farm Women Rally

attacks happen on a Monday morning. Experts think this happens because 60 percent of the population works at a job they enjoy.

- Love makes you who you were meant to be.
- Have a goal.
- As you go through life, you become like the people around you. Stay away from the "can't, shouldn't, wouldn't" people.
- Change your attitude to live life fully, not just exist.
- Be responsible for self. People who fight for their lives live longer.
- Call someone you need to heal with.
- Communicate with those you love.
- Make good choices.
- Laugh.
- Hug.
- Develop spirituality. Those who pray live an average of seven years longer than the atheist, according to Frangipane.

While many people prefer to have circumstances changed, Frangipane said that attitude toward circumstances is more important. "Cancer makes you see life for what it really is," he said.

Bad things often cause people to change directions and to find good things because of the bad," he said.

Communication often breaks down between those we love best, according to Frangipane. This is often the result of male and female differences.

"Women," he said, "ask lots of questions. They communicate feelings. Men make statements and let their needs be known, not feelings."

Studies show that the average male communicates 15,000 words daily while the average woman uses 45,000 to 60,000 daily.

Frangipane promotes love, communication, and enthusiasm for healthy living. He said, "Youth is a state of mind. Years wrinkle the skin, but to give up enthusiasm is to wrinkle the soul."

In other business, Mayor Paul Angstadt shared a bit of history about Reading, which is celebrating its 250-year anniversary this year.

You MUST Be Kidding!

Have you looked at your junk mail recently? The past few weeks, I received some ridiculous offers. Marketers must think consumers are really stupid or just too busy to really think. They'll use any gimmick to get us to read and consider an offer — an offer that promises to suck our money down the drain with little in return.

Here's a sampling from my mailbox. First I received an appliance insurance plan. The brochure splashed its promise across glossy pages, "If you're tired of the high cost of appliance repairs, you're ready for (our program) . . . We take the high cost and confusion out of appliance repairs." Of course, we also take your hard-earned income out of your wallet!

In order to get coverage for appliances 15 years of age or newer, you sign up for a plan and pay between $12 and $27 per month (that's $144 to $324 per year) and they will refer a repair person and reimburse the company if you have a problem. (How often do newer appliances break down?) Of course, they cap the amount of the repair. They will only pay $250 for an oven or dishwasher repair. If you keep the coverage for just a bit more than a year, you will have paid them more than that!

This offer preys on people's fears. Ignore that threat. If you want to have "insurance" for appliance repairs, write yourself that $12 check each month and put it in a separate savings account. When your refrigerator breaks down you'll have the money you need. Besides, how much do new appliances cost? Why not save your payment in a fund for new appliances instead of paying the company for peace of mind?

The next offer didn't want to take my money but I was disgusted just the same with their tactics. They must have bought my name from a mailing list when I renewed my car registration. Expecting a registration card from the state, I browsed through my mail one day and spotted an envelope with a return address "Department of Registration." The small print said, "Registered documents enclosed for addressee only. No other individual should open or take possession of the documents . . ."

At first I thought it was my card. Wrong. Inside this very official-looking envelope was a flyer for a sale at a local car dealership. Well the marketing ploy "worked." I opened the envelope. But now I don't want to patronize the dealership. To me that's just deceptive. I don't want to support businesses that advertise like that.

I'm sure your mailbox has its own collection of ridiculous offers. Cereal boxes, snack foods, and lots of other products also present some unthinkable "opportunities" for the consumer. How many times have you seen offers to save product labels in order to receive a special toy/gadget? Did you ever price-shop for the item in a normal store. Almost always, a similar product is available for much less money than you would pay to save up the labels/points and get through the packaged deal.

Marketers have a right to use lots of twisted techniques. But as a consumer, I have the right to think about the "real" cost, to ignore the gimmick and make the wise choice. The next time you get a "Knock Your Socks Off" flyer or an "Incredibly Urgent/Official" document, read the fine print carefully. See what the company is really selling. And when appropriate, loudly and proudly say, "You must be kidding!"

ANSWER — N.E. Koons, Lebanon, wanted a recipe for fortune cookies and the instructions for inserting the paper inside. Thanks to Rachael Gromling, who sent one from "Vineyard Seasons" by Susan Branch.

Fortune Cookies

3 egg whites
½ cup sugar
¼ cup brown sugar
½ cup cake flour
½ teaspoon vanilla

Type 24 fortunes on thin strips of paper. They can be serious or funny; quote books are a great source for ideas.

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Put all ingredients in food processor and blend 10-15 seconds. Cover cookie sheets with parchment paper, then grease the paper. Do only four at a time, dropping by measured tablespoonfuls on cookie sheet. Bake 10 minutes. Immediately remove with spatula. The rough side should be on the inside of the cookie. Put the fortune in the middle of the cookie, fold in in half—bring corners up. Let oven cool completely to 200 degrees. Put all the finished cookies back on the cookie sheet and bake until completely browned, about 30 minutes. Makes 24.

ANSWER — Mrs. H. Leppert wanted a recipe for Hot Milk Sponge Cake. Thanks to Fran Westfall, New Oxford, and to Gloria Sweigart, Manheim, for sending a recipe that she writes has been in the family since the 1800s. It is now being used by the sixth generation and is a family favorite.

Hot Milk Sponge Cake

1 cup milk
Butter size of walnut
4 eggs
2 cups sugar
2 cups flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1½ teaspoons vanilla

Heat milk hot enough for butter to melt but don't boil.

In large bowl, beat the eggs and sugar until thick and almost white.

Add the flour, baking powder, and vanilla. Stir, add the hot milk with the butter. Beat 2 minutes. Pour into ungreased tube pan. Bake 35 to 45 minutes at 350 degrees. This does not need icing but can be sprinkled with powdered sugar when cooled.

Thanks to Jane Ferguson, Kirkwood, for this recipe.

Hot Milk Sponge

5 eggs, separated
2 cups all-purpose flour
1 cup hot milk
Pinch salt
2 cups sugar
2 teaspoons baking powder
2 tablespoons melted butter
vanilla

Beat egg whites and add 1 cup sugar. One fourth cup at a time until stiff. Beat egg yolks with one cup sugar until lemon colored. Melt butter in hot milk. Add dry ingredients alternately with hot milk. Gently fold into the egg white mixture. Bake at 350 degrees for ¾ hour. Frost if desired.

Consuming Thoughts

by

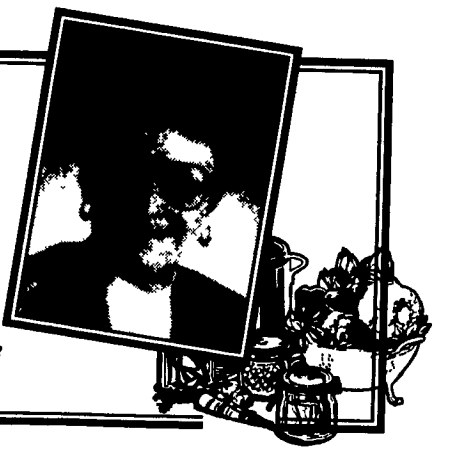
Penn State Extension Home Economist For Berks Co.



Recently a consumer inquired about how you can recognize "Real" whole wheat bread since there are a variety of wheat breads from which to choose. In our discussion I mentioned that all whole-wheat bread is brown, but not all brown bread is whole-wheat. By law, bread that is labeled "whole wheat" must be made from 100 percent whole-wheat flour. "Wheat bread" may be made from varying proportions of enriched white flour and whole-wheat flour. The type of flour present in the largest amount is listed first on the ingredient label. Sometimes a dark color is provided by "caramel coloring," also listed on the label.

The milling of wheat to produce white flour results in the loss of nutrients as the bran and germ are removed. Enrichment replaces flour important nutrients: Iron, thiamin, riboflavin, and niacin. But flours made from the whole grain contain more of other nutrients, such as folic acid, vitamin B_6, vitamin E, phosphorus, magnesium, and zinc, than enriched white flour.

Appearances can be deceiving in the bread aisle of the supermarket. You're on the lookout for a bread that's high in fiber, the most nutritious you can find for your family. You pick up a loaf that's a warm brown color with the word "wheat" prominently displayed on the label. If you thought you'd chosen a whole-grain bread chock full of vitamins, minerals, and fiber-rich bran, you'd not be the first mistaken shopper.

It's surprising the number of people who don't know that there is a difference between wheat bread and the whole wheat bread. So what is labeled wheat bread, regardless of how it looks, is basically the same as what we commonly call white bread. Whole wheat bread, by contrast, is made from the whole grain. Because the bran and germ have not been removed, it has a naturally dark brown color and is higher in fiber and nutrients than wheat bread.

Although some vitamins are put back in to "enrich" wheat flour, not everything that's removed in the refining process is added back again. This is particularly the case with fiber, which comes primarily from the bran. Generally, whole wheat bread is higher in fiber than wheat bread. Check the nutrition label for the fiber content. Two to three grams of fiber per slice is a good number to shoot for. Four grams per slice is even better.

Be particularly careful to check the fiber content on so-called 6-grain or 12-grain bread. Some of these multigrain breads are made primarily from refined wheat flour, hence may contain little fiber.

Breads identified by a particular grain, such as oat bread, may also not be what the name implies. Oat bread is often just wheat bread (i.e. white bread), with a small amount of oats added. Check the ingredients to see how far down oats are listed. Remember the ingredients are written in descending order, with the most plentiful ingredient listed first.

Another potentially misleading term is "unbleached" flour. The term unbleached just means that the wheat flour hasn't been chemically bleached to make it whiter. Unbleached flour, which may be slightly cream colored, isn't the same as whole wheat flour.

So, shoppers beware. When it comes to buying bread, color says nothing about content or nutritional value. Read the full product name and compare it carefully to the "Nutrition Facts" on the ingredients label. As of 1994 most packaged foods including breads are required to list the dietary fiber content as part of a mandatory "Nutrition Facts" panel, which makes it easier for you to compare the nutritional value, including fiber content, of various breads.

ANSWER — Kathleen Hampford, Pottsville, wanted the recipe for an Oreo cookie pudding recipe that tastes like that served at Shady Maple Restaurant in Morgantown. Thanks to Janet Zeiset, Manheim, for sending a recipe, which she writes is very delicious.

Ice Cream Dessert

30 Oreo cookies, crushed
2 tablespoons butter, melted
½ gallon vanilla ice cream
1½ tablespoon cocoa
1 tablespooon shortening
⅔ cup evaporated milk
Maraschino cherries
⅔ cup sugar
⅛ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ cup butter
8-ounces whipped cream topping
Peanuts

Mix cookies and melted butter and press into 9x13-inch pan. Top with vanilla ice cream, spreading smooth. Melt chocolate, shortening, and butter. Add milk, sugar, and salt. Cook until it starts to thicken, about 5 minutes. Remove from heat and add vanilla. Be sure mixture is cooled before pouring it over the ice cream. Freeze. Top with whipped cream topping. Sprinkle with peanuts and maraschino cherries.

4-H'ers Experience Legislative Life At Capitol Days

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — More than 100 4-H'ers traveled to Pennsylvania's capitol building in mid-April this year to learn about the life of a legislator during 4-H Capitol Days.

The event, from April 20-21, began with visits to the agencies that make up the various departments of state government. A team was sent to each agency with questions about how they work, what they do, and what they'd like to be doing.

The teens then prepared a mock grant application for a $100,000 budget.

In addition to meeting their legislators, 4-H members visited government departments or agencies and toured the capitol building.

Also, 4-H members participated in a breakfast with their state representatives.

Capitol Days is one of many educational and fun activities offered by 4-H through cooperative extension in many counties throughout the state. The programs help youth develop life skills through hands-on educational activities.

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

CENTERVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — The food industry keeps changing. Food safety and consumer tastes continue to revolutionize food that is being served and the way it is being served.

Always aware of the need to educate consumers on changing standards, the Lancaster County Poultry Association holds a dinner annually for food science teachers in Lancaster and Lebanon counties.

About 80 teachers attended the recent dinner held at Comfort Inn in Centerville.

According to John Mattilio, the Poultry Association realizes that reaching teachers is one of the best ways to teach students, who are growing consumers of poultry products. It is imperative that students know food safety rules in order to cook and store food properly, and that they learn to differentiate between nutritional facts and hearsay.

Dr. John Lord from St. Joseph's University was the featured speaker. "Food is very affordable," Lord said of the 100-year decline in the percentage of income U.S. consumers spend on food.

Changing demographics in population and in lifestyles is causing a food revolution among those fighting "for a share of the stomach."

Lord said that health claims for digesting certain foods are on the rise and the driving force in advertising behind organic and natural foods.

"Consumers are willing to spend more money for 'clean' food," Lord said. While this is a growing trend in the U.S., organic and natural foods are even more popular in Europe.

Lord predicts that garlic will be the antibotic of the next millenium. He also forsees that physicians will prescribe foods to treat illnesses. Calcium-enriched foods and beta carotene foods will grow in popularity.

Although Campbell's pulled its Campbell's Intelligent Cuisine products, Lord sees it as having tremendous potential and predicts such products will gain popularity. Lord said that the Intelligent Cuisine foods offered a 10-week series of prepared foods to fight high cholesterol and high blood pressure and were delivered by the United Parcel Service (UPS). Unfortunately, two days after Campbell's released the program, UPS went on strike.

"I guarantee the idea will resurface," Lord said.

Another sign of a food revolution is consumers' less caution concern for fat. People want health benefits only if food tastes, smells, and looks good.

"Meat consumption and vegetarism are both going up," Lord said.

The buzz words in the food industry are "value-added," "meal solutions," and "pharmaceutical," Lord said.

Extension consumer science agent Nancy Wiker explained the "FightBac" campaign on food safety and encouraged teachers to attend a teleconference that Penn State is offering locally.

Teachers were also encouraged to ask for the Poultry Association's newly released video, "Not Just Chicken Feed Anymore."

Lancaster County Poultry Ambassador Kendra Weaver also addressed the audience and praised the teachers for the influence they have on students' food knowledge.

You ask You answer

This column is for readers who have questions but don't know who to ask for answers.

"You Ask—You Answer" is for non-cooking questions. When a reader sends in a question, it will be printed in the paper. Readers who know the answer are asked to respond by mailing the answer, which will then be printed in the paper.

Questions and Answers to this column should be addressed to You Ask—You Answer, Lancaster Farming, P.O. Box 609, Ephrata, PA 17522. Attention: Lou Ann Good.

Do not send a self-addressed, stamped envelope for a reply. If we receive the answer, we will publish it as soon as possible. Please include your phone number because we sometimes need to contact the person to clarify details. We will not publish your phone number unless you request it.

QUESTION — A reader wants to know where to purchase egg cartons.

QUESTION — Ruth Erb, Beavertown, wants to know how to use Borax or Sulphur candles to kill termites or carpenter ants. Or any natural way not using chemical pesticides since she is allergic to them. A previous answer used choloradane, which is illegal to use.

4-H HAPPENINGS

A meeting of the Elm-penryn 4-H Community Club was held at Pleasant View Retirement Community on April 20, with six members, two leaders, and several parents present. The Pledge of Allegiance and the 4-H Pledge were led by Elisabeth Stahl. Roll call was answered by each member telling a tongue twister, a riddle, or a funny story. The minutes were read and approved by club members.

A discussion of old business included a reminder of the Country 4-H Fair Book Cover contest. In other old business; the Club service project was held on Saturday, April 4 at the Penn-Elm Lions Club Park in Elm. Despite the very cold, windy weather 5 members, 3 leaders, parents and other family members worked with Lions Club members to scrape dried worms and old gum off the pavilion floor, dig turn around many trees, and pull weeds in order to shovel, scoop and spread mulch around the trees, playground and pavilion in the park. When our service work had ended we were treated to hot cocoa, fresh fruit and homemade cupcakes which had been prepared by the parents of several 4-H members. Additionally, another 10 Community Club members had worked at prior meeting to design and make posters to be used in Club displays (also a part of community awareness).

Club members present at the April club meeting voted to hold an Ice Cream Social at Pleasant View Retirement Community for our 4-H Round-Up event. 4-H members will be working at the May club meeting to put together multimedia presentations and demonstrations about the many projects our Club offered during this club year. Members plan to invite their family, friends, the residents of Pleasant View, and the public to this event. Following the demonstrations 4-H members, their family and friends plan to enjoy a "Make Your Own Sundae" Ice Cream Social. A vote will be taken at the next meeting as to the date/time of this event. Members who would like to do an demonstration and/or who want help plan the 1998 Elm-Penryn 4-H Community Club Round-Up/Ice Cream Social need to be present at the May 18th meeting.

In new business a vote was taken to choose the next Community Club service project. After several ideas and some discussion, member's chose to give their service to Pleasant View Retirement Community. Several types of service were offered including transporting residents to events within the complex, to help where ever there was a need helping residents with crafts, volunteering at the Pleasant View Auxiliary Chicken Bar-B-Que, or to provide a week of voluntary service. Cindy Stahl will be contacting Pleasant View about these possibilities and dates in which they may be available to the Community Club members.

In other new business it was announced that the last scheduled meeting of the Elm-Penryn 4-H Community Club before the Club Round-Up will be held on Monday, June 15 at 6:30 p.m. at Pleasant View Retirement Community. If you are a current member of the Elm-Penryn 4-H Community Club, the parents of one of our members, a kid age 7* to 17* or their parent's Mark your calendars now! This June 15th meeting will be a planning meeting for next year's projects and club meetings and where the club meetings should be held. Several exciting projects for the 1998/99 club year are already being discussed. (Geology, Bee Keeping; additional Sewing projects, Woodworking, Etc.)

Jason Landis gave a demonstration on his Rocketry project from last year. He brought his project book and some of the materials needed to complete this project. He also told us about the ill-fated launch of one of his rockets!

The meeting was adjourned to work on the County 4-H Fair Book cover contest entries. Jason Landis provided the refreshments. Audey Landis and Elisabeth Stahl will bring drink and snacks to the next meeting, which will be held on Monday, May 18th at 6:30 p.m. at Pleasant View Retirement Community, located at 544 N. Penryn Rd., Manheim.

*We have a terrific club and want to fill it with even more terrific kids (who will turn 8 years old and/or who will not be over 18 years old by July 1999) who want to learn fun, new projects, hear from fascinating special guests, and have a great time doing Club activities with other like-minc kids. The only way we can fulfill these goals is with the help and support of parents and businesses who are willing to make a difference in the lives of the children right here, in the Manheim Central/Warwick and surrounding school districts and home-schooling areas. If you are one of these people, stop by at the June 15th Club meeting or contact Cindy Stahl, Elm-Penryn 4-H Community Club Organizational Leader at 664-2055 by June 1998.

Backtrackers 4-H

Backtrackers 4-H Horse and Pony Club of Northampton County is sponsoring an Open Youth Schooling Horse Show Saturday, June 6 at the Northampton 4-H Center, Nazareth.

This show is open to any youth between the ages of 8 and 19 years. It will offer walk-trot, open, jumping and fun classes throughout the day. Each class is $5 per class or $20 per five classes. All entrants are required to wear a hard hat in all classes. Release forms and a rabies certificate are required before entry into the show.

This show is offered as a learning experience for the youth of the area. It will be an informal show, appropriate riding boots and hard hats are required, no T-shirts allowed; neat, but not formal dress required. Entrants will receive help and encouragement throughout the event. Ribbons and awards will be given in each class.

There are age restrictions on certain classes and restrictions throughout divisions in the show. This allows all exhibitors an opportunity to participate and learn.

For more information concerning this show, call (610) 837-7294.

4-H Sponsoring Regional Driving Clinics

The 4-H horse program will be sponsoring its annual driving clinics on Wednesday, June 24 and Thursday, June 25. The Wednesday clinic will be held at the Berks County 4-H Center in Leesport. Questions and registration for this date may be obtained by calling (610) 378-1327. The Thursday clinic will be held at the Northampton County 4-H Center in Nazareth. Questions and registration for this date may be obtained by calling (610) 837-7294.

The clinics are offered to learn how to prepare, harness and drive horses and ponies, to learn proper turnout and safety techniques, and to aid in the understanding of the 4-H driving rules and procedures.

The clinics will be conducted by Lore Homer, American Driving Society and American Horse Shows Association registered judge. Home has been successful in all phases of pleasure and combined driving. She has shown the Morgan Open Competition Champion 12 years and the 1989 World Champion Morgan in Carriage Driving. She has won at the Devon Horse Show eight times, including the 1997 Single Horse 2-Wheel Division, the 1994 and 1997 Single Horse 4-wheel Division, and Single Horse Championship. She has also won Combined Driving divisions including Gladstone.

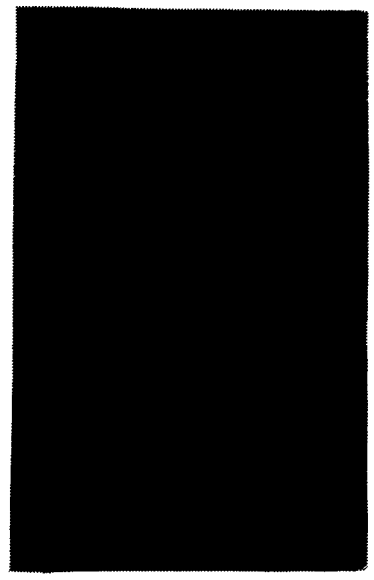
Clinic fees are $5 for 4-H members and $10 for non-members with horses or ponies and carts. Spectators are welcome for $2. Each clinic is limited to 20 horses and carts. Clinics begin at 3 p.m. and conclude at dark — late arrivals will be accepted. Verification of current rabies vaccination required. Preregistration is required before June 15, 1998; please refer to the above numbers for registration.

4-H Leaders Urged To Make A Difference

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) – The 4-H program in Pennsylvania simply would not exist without them. That's the message delivered by Robert Steele, dean of Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences, to more than 150 volunteer 4-H leaders at the 1998 Pennsylvania 4-H Leaders' Forum. The forum was held April 3 and 4 in State College.

The event, sponsored by Penn State Cooperative Extension, featured workshops designed to help adult and teen 4-H leaders from across the state become better teachers and youth counselors.

"Volunteer 4-H program leaders serve as educators, mentors, positive role models and friends to thousands of young people throughout the state," Steel told the participating volunteers. "On average, you individually give more than 200 hours of your time each year and make an extremely important impact on the lives of young people, at a time when the involvement of a caring adult or peer can play a critical role in a young person's ability to make good choices in some very challenging situations. You set a wonderful example for all of us."



Jack Gardner of Lancaster attended the 1998 Pennsylvania 4-H Leaders' Forum. He teaches air rifle, air pistol, wildlife, forestry, and rocketry 4-H projects in the Susquehanna 4-H Community Club.

More than 12,000 volunteers are involved in 4-H programs in Pennsylvania, and about 1,600 of those are teen volunteers. Each year, these volunteers work with more than 117,000 rural and urban Pennsylvania youth between the ages of eight and 19.

4-H offers programs in subject areas such as the environment, clothing and textiles, entrepreneurship, photography, rocketry, horsemanship, entomology, plant science, nutrition and global citizenship. Most 4-H clubs and projects include a community service component. Nationwide, 4-H involves 5.4 million youth members and more than 500,000 adult volunteers.

Workshops at the forum featured information on how leaders can involve youth members in 4-H programs such as animal science, the 4-H Youth Voices and Action national advertising campaign, textile science, forest resources and foods.

Other sessions focused on character building, working with youth from different backgrounds, using computers and the World Wide Web in 4-H programs, risk management, and accommodating youth with disabilities.

To learn more about 4-H or to find out how to become a 4-H leader, contact the Penn State Cooperative Extension office in your county or visit Pennsylvania 4-H on the World Wide Web at www.cas.psu.edu/docs/pa4h/pa4hhome.html.

QUESTION — A faithful reader would like to know if anyone can tell her how to save an unfinished quilt top, she found while cleaning out a house. The top has turned yellow where exposed, dusty, etc. The remainder of the quilt is like new. It is printed to be embroidered in cross stitch and is already marked to be quilted. If she wases it, the markeings and cross stitch will probably wash out. Is it worth the time sewing and maybe not getting clean? The dirty part is about a 12-inch square where folded.

QUESTION — David Simpler, 2645 Old Field Pt. Rd., Elkton, MD, raises and trains beagles and finds it costs more to go to the vet than to a medical doctor. He would like old homemade remedies and good old dog knowledge on do-it-yourself treatments of any kind. Many medicines are becoming unavailable for non-professional people, but he has heard that motor oil, sulfur, salt, and kerosene mixed together will treat mange and itch. Any type of help will be appreciated.

QUESTION — Patricia Henry, Gettsburg, needs the address for Bany Products Corp., formerly of St. Louis, MO. Mail returned with forwarding expired. Patricia writes that the company makes the best metal polishing cloth called Victory Miracle.

HOURLY MUSIC AND STRIKE CLOCK!

#5102WG/A DELWEACO CARRIAGE CLOCK! MINI CHIME, STRIKE, & ALARM CLOCK! 16 MELODY AND HOURLY STRIKING! Plays a DIFFERENT TUNE on EVERY hour; after the tune, it STRIKES the correct time!! Shuts its self off during the night (no music or striking from 10 PM to 5 AM.) At 6 AM it will again play music and then strike 6! Uses a high quality speaker system for BEAUTIFUL sound. You will be amazed at the music quality! On each hour it will Bird Chirp (6,7,&8 AM only) or play Westminster Chimes, then play a tune, then strike. Plays such all time favorites as 'Swan Lake', 'Cuckoo Waltz', 'Home on the Range', 'Red River Valley', 'Home Sweet Home', and 11 more! List of song titles included with clock. (Music and striking lasts about 30 seconds). This is also an ALARM CLOCK. Has a standard (medium loudness) 'Beeper' type alarm (does NOT wake to music). The music nor striking will not sound when the alarm is set to 'ON'. This allows daytime use of the alarm. Alarm on/off button is located on top for easy reach. The clock is available in WHITE w/GOLD TRIM; (will match any bedside or any other room) clear crystal over black numerals, black hour/minute hands, grey alarm and sweep hands. Size is 6" tall, 4" wide and 3" deep. Uses 3 'AA' batteries (not included - see below). ONE YEAR WARRANTY. This is another of the DELWEACO series and is completely serviceable. Suggested Retail: $34.95.

A WORD ON BATTERIES: We use and recommend that you use ONLY Alkaline type batteries in your Clocks, Shavers, Alarms, etc. Standard or Heavy Duty batteries may leak and ruin the clock or shaver; and battery leakage WILL VOID THE WARRANTY! Alkaline batteries on the other hand are guaranteed against leakage. Alkaline type batteries are plainly marked on each battery, regardless of the manufacturer. ALWAYS BUY YOUR BATTERIES WHERE YOU KNOW THEM TO BE FRESH!

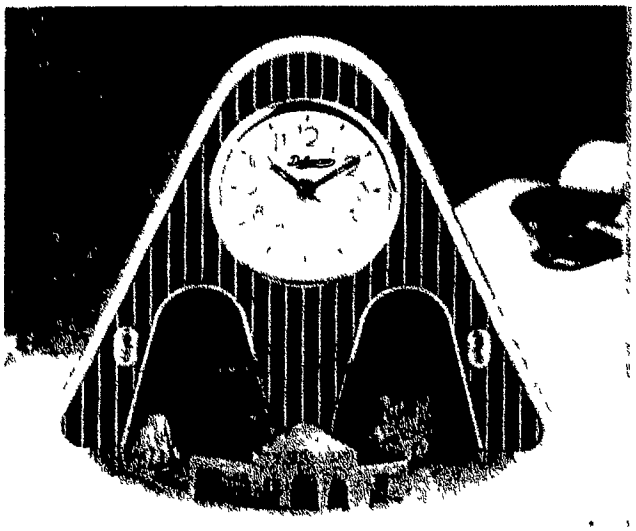
#8104 Action TRAIN Alarm Clock!

by Delweaco



If you remember the old steam engine going down the track with the 'drivers' chugging away, the whistle screaming, and the bell 'ding-dong' ing; you will be amazed at this latest edition to our DELWEACO line of mantle, alarm, and novelty clocks.!

When this alarm goes off, the miniature steam engine goes round and round, in and out of the round house; the whistle blows (VERY realistic!), the red and green lights blink on and off on each side of the station; and the bell clangs and clangs, the drivers chug-chug! Sounds exactly like the old steam engines used to! You will be very impressed with the sound of this toy train! YOU MUST SEE AND HEAR THIS ONE!! NOTE: This is NOT A TOY although my grandchildren love to watch the train go round and round and listen to the bell, the whistle, and the rumble of the drivers! I promise you it will wake you in the morning. Very loud.. Do not use as an alarm if you scare out of sleep etc., as we said before, it is LOUD! The clock movement is our quartz movement, accuracy to + or - 3 minutes a year. Uses 3 'AA' Alkaline batteries. (not included.). Silver and black finish case is 8" tall and 7" circumference. Dial is 2 1/4" round with black numbers and hands. Our ONE YEAR GUARANTEE!. Suggested Retail: $49.95.

Realistic!

- Whistle
- Clanging Bell
- Chug-Chug
- Blinking red & green Lights on each side
- Steam Engine goes round-n-round in and out of the Round House Station

TYPES OF HARMONICAS

SINGLE REED (Diatonic) The reeds of diatonic harmonicas are tuned to produce the natural notes of the scale without sharps or flats. Each hole has a blow and draw reed Most of these harmonicas have ten holes with the four middle holes providing a complete note octave.

TREMOLO TUNED Tremolo harmonicas have double holes each containing two reeds tuned to the same note, one tuned slightly higher then the other, Both reeds are either blow or draw, which creates a beautiful, vibrating or tremolo effect

OCTAVE TUNED Octave tuned harmonicas are similar to tremolos in reed layout The difference is that each double hole, instead of having reeds tuned to the same note, has one reed an octave apart from the other The resulting sound is stronger and more full bodied. Full Concert models have four reeds in each double hole a pair of blow and draw reeds.

CHROMATIC-Provide complete 12 note octaves with all sharps and flats Pressing the slide on the side of the harmonica opens/closes reeds for sharps/flats. The Chromatic takes more practice

With the right forefinger, pluck the Jaw Harp tongue so that it vibrates. As you pluck, breathe strongly (as if you're sighing), and you'll produce a tone! By varying the shape of your mouth, you will be able to produce a great many tones! Enjoy and have fun!

Whenever the 'shaft length' is mentioned in quartz movemnents, it means the length of the threaded portion as shown below. This is simply the length the shaft has to be to reach through the dial or front on the clock. It of course must be long enough to reach through and for the mounting nut to screw on to hold the movement or works in position. See the diagram at right and the different shaft lengths below.

The shaft lengths shown below apply to all of our battery (quartz) movements.

All hands available in black or brass finish.. Sweep second hands in red or brass.

All clock movements/motors are complete with hands; hour, minute and sweep (where used). Choose from the hands at left and specify black or brass color. If you do not specify color or # of hand, we will send our regular #9900 in Brass finish with the #MED brass sweep. This is by far the most popular hand for all around usage.

NOTE: These hands DO NOT fit the SM127 Musical Movement shown elsewhere in this catalog. The SM127 uses a special type hand that is furnished with that movement.

4X4 Dual Chime Movement!!

NEW #QDC/MVT DUAL CHIME MOVEMENT chimes either Westminster or Whittington on each quarter-just slide the switch to change melodies! This movement if full 4/4; that is, it will chime each quarter, and then after chimes on the full hour, it will strike the time! Sounds exactly the same as our #QX & #PX series, but does not need programing! This is the same movement we use in our NEW QDC series Mantle Clocks. The speaker is removable from the movement, ready for you to mount in any position. (About an 8" speaker wire.) Or if you wish, leave the speaker mounted on the movement!
Compact size is 4 1/2" x 3 1/4" x 1 1/2" deep. Operates on one 'C' battery, has volume control, chime selector, automatic night time shut off (if desired), manual silence! Comes in long or regular shaft. Available with or without pendulum; for wall clock or mantle clock use. We are VERY well pleased with this movement! It has all the features of the previous single chime movements, but in addition, is self adjusting, plays EITHER chime, MUCH simpler to operate! Made by Seiko. Complete with hardware, hands, and complete instructions. Comes with the usual 5 YEAR WARRANTY!

BIM/BAM HOUR and HALF HOUR QUARTZ with MECHANICAL STRIKE RODS!

#2405 STRIKE movement has the BIM/BAM Strike! Strikes BIM/BAM once on the half-hour, tolls/counts the full hour. The movement is battery run and quartz accurate, but the hammers are mechanical (driven by the battery), in that they strike the brass rods, just like the keywind! The compact size makes this a good choice for many mantle and wall clocks. Size is 7" high x 5-13/16" wide x 2-3/16 thick. Operates on one 'D' battery (not included). Available with or without a pendulum. Shaft length fits through a 3/8" thick dial. Hands and hardware included. If ordered with pendulum; it will adjust from about 7" to 16". (Breakaways at each 1" increments) 2-3/4 bob. 3 YEAR WARRANTY!

Visiting Our Office:

We suggest you call first before you stop at our office to make sure you have directions. We are located closer to Parkman Ohio, rather than West Farmington. We are a mailorder house and therefore we do not have a retail store, as such. (Although you can pick up any item/s we have in this catalog at our office here in Parkman, except nameplates.) Many people stop in looking for the 'big store'; and there isn't any. We found out over the years that we can better serve our customers by being good at what we do - MAILORDER. Our offices are in one end of the warehouse, where we store a large quantity of everything you see in this catalog. This allows us to ship promptly and keep our prices BELOW discount levels.

Manor FFA Honors Banquet Participants

MILLERSVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — Manor FFA's 38th annual banquet was held April 16 in the Penn Manor High School cafeteria.

Awards were presented to recognize student and community member achievements. This year 10 seniors in FFA received Keystone awards, the highest FFA honor statewide.

At the banquet, Jerry Phillips from Keystone Farm Credit received the Blue and Gold Award for many years of FFA support at the local fairs.

Also, the following awards were also presented: Leadership Award: Emily Hubbs, Adam Nissley, Audrey Nissly, Holly Nissley, Ryan Nelson, and Jeremy Railing. Star Red Rose Placement: Tyler Swanson. Star Red Rose Production: Beth Frey.

Star Chapter FFA Award, Placement: Adam Nissley. Star Greenhand Award, Placement: Austin Kibler. Star Chapter FFA Award, Production: Alan Herr, Jr. Star Greenhand Award, Production: Garrett Neff.

Outstanding Farming Program: Klint Frey. Outstanding Ag Mechanic: Dave Warihay.

High Fruit Salesman, 9th grade: Cheri Lake. High Fruit Salesman, upperclassman: Jason Harnish.

Also, Vince Metzler was named Outstanding Ag Student. Vince, son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Metzler, Pequea, was named winner of the 1998 Dekalb Agriculture Accomplishment Award. Metzler, who attends Penn MAnor, has been president and adviser of Manor FFA, Student of the Month, and an Honor Roll student. His agricultural program consists of corn, hay, wheat, and vegetables. After graduation, Vince plans to work for Gerlach's Drilling and blasting and production farming.

Team Places First

This year's Manor FFA dairy products team placed first in the Lancaster County competition at the Lampeter Strasburg High School in March.

The contest involved many aspects of the dairy industry. Some include identifying various artificial products, inspecting milking equipment, and tasting and identifying various cheeses and other dairy products.

Team members were Garrett Neff, Cheri Lake, Andrew Railing, Ryan Boas, Josh Murry, and Julie Greider.

Eastern Region Public Speaking

At the end of April, three Manor FFA members competed in the Pennsylvania state region FFA public speaking contest.

Beth Frey received second place and Tyler Swanson received third in extemporaneous speaking. Cheri Lake placed second in the FFA creed speaking contest.

Tyler Swanson, Beth Frey, and Cheri Lake were chosen from this contest to compete in the state contest to be held June 9 during FFA Week at Penn State. Cheri Lake will be presenting the FFA creed at the state contest and Tyler Swanson and Beth Frey will be presenting an extemporaneous speech.

Pa. Growers Honored By Pro-Fac Cooperative

ROCHESTER, N.Y. — Pro-Fac Cooperative, an agricultural marketing cooperative with more than 600 members nationwide, recently honored Charles Altemus of Altemus Farms in Penn Run, PA as the first recipient of the Hugh E. Cumming Cooperator of the Year Award.

This is the top award given by the Rochester, N.Y. based cooperative. In addition, Altemus Farms tied with Leonard Hoover, of Patton, Pa., for individual member recognition awards in the commodity they each supply to Pro-Fac – potatoes.

The Cooperator of the Year Award recognizes Altemus' significant contributions to the co-op and to the agricultural industry. One hundred percent of Altemus Farms' 250 acres of potatoes, more than 3,000 tons annually, are committed to Pro-Fac and delivered to Snyder of Berlin, a business unit of Agrilink Foods which processes and markets the products grown by Pro-Fac members.

Other crops produced by Altemus Farms include cabbage, corn, and small grain. Altemus also runs a 150-acre plant and nursery operation, Pikes Peak, with a large customer and catalog sales base.

In addition to being in the top half of the membership in member evaluations and operating a successful and progressive farm business, award criteria also includes leadership in the agricultural industry and involvement in community and civic activities. Altemus is on the conservation committee for the County Ag Stabilization Committee, a member of Indiana Health Care Corp. board of directors, on the advisory board for S&T Bank, is elder for the Harmony Presbyterian Church, and a Pro-Fac commodity committee member.

"As the first winner of this award," said Pro-Fac general manager Steve Wright, "Charles Altemus is clearly setting the standard for future winners. We are pleased to honor him for his outstanding dedication and service to the co-op." The Hugh E. Cumming Cooperator of the Year Award was named for the second general manager of Pro-Fac Cooperative, Hugh Cumming, who also served as chief executive officer for Curtice Burns Foods (now Agrilink Foods).

The individual recognition awards, which were presented during Pro-Fac's recent regional meetings, were based on a member evaluation system reflecting both the quantity and quality of commodity deliveries. Altemus Farms and Hoover were ranked highest in their commodity for the state of Pennsylvania.

Disaster Assistance Bill Provides $253 Million In Emergency Funding

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Disaster assistance legislation initiated by National Farmers Union (NFU) was approved by Congress recently. Once signed into law, it will provide assistance in the amount of $253 million to regions hit by flooding and blizzards this winter

"Excessive rain in January and February resulted in some California dairy producers having to move their operations to higher ground, while producers in the Northeast suffered severe financial losses due to a series of crippling blizzards," said NFU President Leland Swenson

The legislation passed by Congress provides $160 million in agriculture disaster assistance, including $34 million for the emergency conservation program, $87 million for emergency farm operating loans, and $80 million for emergency watershed and flood prevention An additional $93 million has been earmarked for farmer ownership and operating loans. Included in the agriculture disaster assistance funding is $6 8 million designated to compensate producers for losses of milk that was produced but not marketed or for diminished milk production.

This February, NFU and the California Farmers Union requested that Congress consider additional funding for both the Emergency Loan and Emergency Conservation Programs as well as expansion of the Dairy Indemnity Program to protect against production losses because of weather disasters. NFU also urged reauthorization of the Livestock Indemnity and Tree Assistance programs.

"NFU appreciates the action taken by Congress, the Clinton administration and the U.S. Department of Agriculture to assist these financially-devastated producers," said Swenson. "Most all of the requests made by NFU were addressed in legislation."

Research Projects Answer Crop Management Concerns

DES MOINES, Iowa — Providing better crop management information to producers is the goal of a Crop Management Research Awards program, funded through the agronomy sciences department of Pioneer Hi-Bred International, Inc.

For the 1998 growing season, Pioneer has awarded a total of more than $100,000 in research funds to scientists at universities and other institutions in the United States and Canada.

"Pioneer strongly supports applied crop management research projects conducted outside our company because these university projects do a thorough job of answering questions of immediate concern to farmers," said Paul Carter, agronomy sciences manager at Pioneer's Des Moines, Iowa, headquarters. "These projects also complement the results obtained from the agronomy research conducted within the company."

Over the past decade, Pioneer has contributed more than $1 million in funding to applied research designed to find more cost-effective, technologically advanced and environmentally friendly ways to produce crops.

Dr. John Shanahan, soil and crop sciences department at Colorado State University, has received a Pioneer crop management research award for the second consecutive year and is studying varying corn hybrids and seeding rates within fields in precision farming systems.

"This project and others like it are very important to farmers because they address areas of current interest and concern," said Shanahan. "Without private funding provided by Pioneer, other companies and trade associations, university researchers would not be able to initiate many research projects that evaluate new and current crop management practices and look for ways to improve them."

Shanahan notes that public funds are used primarily for basic research for which practical impacts are several years in the future. They are less designed to provide farmers with direct benefits or knowledge in the near term.

Currently the company is funding 25 ongoing research projects. Examples include determining how corn row spacing affects corn rootworm and European corn borer infestation levels at the University of Minnesota, evaluating the effects of agronomic and management factors in maintaining high protein and oil concentrations in soybeans at South Dakota State University, and avoiding corn borer resistance in corn hybrids with the Bt gene at Pennsylvania State University.

New crop management knowledge and other information gained from the research projects are transferred by the company to farmers as soon as possible, noted Carter. Scientists interested in applying for Pioneer crop management research awards are strongly encouraged to discuss initial ideas with Pioneer staff before developing a written proposal.

ASA President Calls For Improved Access To EU Market

SAINT LOUIS, Mo. — American Soybean Association (ASA) President Mark Berg, recently testified before the House International Relations Committee to present soybean producers' views on trade issues with the European Union (EU) concerning agricultural products derived from biotechnology.

Berg, a Tripp, S.D. soybean grower, pointed to the rapid acceptance of biotech crops by U.S. farmers as an important factor for addressing EU delays in approving imports of these new varieties.

"After many years of seeing the technology advance, and now with the commercialization developing rapidly, American farmers are very eager to take advantage of the benefits plant biotechnology offers," said Berg.

Berg reported that 30 percent of U.S. soybean acreage, 25 percent of corn acreage and 40 percent of cotton acreage—a total of 44 million acres—would be planted with genetically modified varieties in 1998. "This rapid expansion is possible not only because of the developments in technology, but also the regulatory system in the United States which efficiently evaluates the safety of genetically modified crops using science-based risk assessments."

The United States has approved the marketing of three soybean varieties and 15 corn varieties since 1996. In contrast, the EU has approved the marketing of only one soybean variety and one corn variety. EU delays in approvals are beginning to disrupt marketing of U.S. commodities to European Markets, prompting Berg to make five recommendations.

"First we need the EU to adopt a much more transparent and efficient process for approving new biotech varieties," said Berg, who cited frustration with EU changing its approval process in midstream.

The second action Berg suggested is for biotech and seed companies to seek clearances for new varieties in major U.S. export markets on a timely basis, and preferably before they are commercialized in the United States. To prevent trade sanctions against all U.S. soybeans, ASA has requested that each company in the soybean biotech arena not launch biotech varieties into commercial markets until the varieties are approved overseas as well as in the United States. ASA has receive assurances for 1998 that companies will postpone their commercial launches of unapproved varieties.

Berg's third request was for the EU and other countries to accept that there is not scientific basis for requiring segregation or labeling of biotech varieties that have been determined to be substantially equivalent to conventional varieties in terms of safety, nutrition, and composition.

Fourth, the Clinton Administration needs to engage the EU in an effort to reach agreement to recognize each other's procedures for approving and commercializing biotech crops and products.

Berg's final recommendation was that rules governing biotech would be included in the next World Trade Organization negotiations. "The language in Sanitary and Phytosanitary Agreement in the Uruguay Round Agreement must be clarified to apply to biotech crops and products, and to supersede the rules of any other international treaty or agreement," Berg said.

Transition Team Has First Meeting

DENVER, Colo. — Sheep industry leaders took the first step toward making an industry-wide association a reality recently.

Meeting as a task force representing all industry segments, the U.S. sheep industry's Transition Team met in Denver where they discussed the viability of a member-based association and business development council.

The group's task of developing a new national sheep industry organization stems from the eventual closure of the American Sheep Industry Association, which will run out of funding in September 1999. ASI was established 10 years ago through the merger of the National Wool Growers Association and American Sheep Producers Council.

The Transition Team is an offshoot of the industry-wide approved Tecker Group. The firm was chosen in August 1997 by a producer committee to help the domestic sheep industry build an industry-wide organization from the ground up. ASI initiated the process after its board of directors approved a directive aimed at giving the industry practical options complete with an implementation and funding plan.

The plan stressed the involvement of the entire industry through stakeholder meetings and telephone interviews. Producers, feeders, packers and other industry representatives participated in the survey to ensure a balance of information. All were asked for input on the goals and functions of a national organization and ways for funding those activities.

Jim Butler, assistant vice chancellor of external affairs for the Texas A&M University system, was chosen to head the transition team because of his organization skills, knowledge of the industry and ability to inspire collective thinking and teamwork. He kicked off the 1-1/2 day meeting on May 1 by telling those present to network extensively with people inside and outside the industry in working toward their goal of establishing a new association. He said that such an approach would foster a sense of unity and expand the industry's horizon by allowing its members to think outside the box.

Butler continued to build momentum by establishing two subcommittees – a six-member association subcommittee that will deal namely with membership and financial structures, and a seven-member subcommittee charged with organizing a business development council. The subcommittees will address such major issues as the mission, vision and goals and governance or representation of the new association. The entire team developed and agreed on a proposed budget for phase one of the project.

"There are a number of difficult issues we need to work through as we attempt to build the industry-wide organization, but I am confident the transition team is up to the task," said Butler. "I was pleased with the work of the subcommittees and the ideas that emerged."

Butler emphasized that the 14 team members were chosen for their expertise and leadership skills. They are: Mike Caskey, Southwestern Technical College, Pipestone, Minn.; Dolly Echeverria, sheep producer, Casa Grande, Ariz.; Don Godby, National Lamb Feeders Association, Eaton, Colo.; Ron Guenther, U.S. Sheep Seedstock Alliance, Powell, Ohio; Frank Moore, sheep producer, Douglas, Wyo.; Waine Kirby, American Farm Bureau Federation, Ladora, Iowa; Danny Lanning, United Sheep Producers, Hammond, Mont.; Carl Menzies, sheep producer, San Angelo, Texas; Bob Mertz, National Lamb Feeders Association, Manhattan, Kan.; Lorin Moench, Jr., American Sheep Industry Association, Salt Lake City, Utah; Rosemary Mucklow, National Meat Association, Oakland, Calif.; Michael O'Bryne, American Textile Manufacturers Institute, Jamestown, S.C.; and Jim Sheeder, sheep producer, Somerset, Pa.

The second meeting of the full transition team will be held in late June or early July. Meetings will be supplemented with conference calls of both the entire team and the two subcommittees.

York County Announces Envirothon Winners

YORK (York Co.) — The York Catholic Junior High School "Woodchuckers" won the 7th annual York County Middle School Envirothon at the Izaak Walton League grounds near Dallastown.

The team coached by Kathy McGann consisted of Gene Shuman, Lauren Martin, Brittany Urban, Andy McGann, Dustin Rhodes and Mike Wiegmann.

Other winners included the York Suburban "Omega I" who placed second and the St. John Lutheran "Pests" who placed third. First place category winners were Northern Middle School team II for wildlife, the Dover "Odd Otters" for forestry, the St. John Lutheran "Pests for current events, and the York Catholic "Woodchuckers" for aquatics.

Twenty-three teams of six students from 14 schools participated. These were Crossroads, Dover Intermediate, Eastern, Hannah Penn, New Freedom Christian School, Northern, Northeastern, South Eastern, Southern, St. John Lutheran, St. Joseph School, York Catholic, York Suburban and York Home School Association.

All students received a seedling, T-shirt, certificate and participation ribbons. The top three teams received placement ribbons, plaques and cash awards for their environmental libraries. The first place team also received the Envirothon banner for 1998. Awards were presented by several of the 30 local sponsors including businesses and nonprofit organizations.

Fifth Grade Results

The Fawn Area Elementary "Wild Things" won the 7th annual York County fifth grade Envirothon at the Izaak Walton League grounds near Dallastown.

The teams coached by Kelly Downs and Nancy Blevins consisted of Joe Mueller, Tyler Oliveros, Shauntel Schlessman, Lindsey Clark, Sara Tomkins, and Jason Blevins.

Other winners included the Wellsville Elementary "Team I" who placed second and the Ore Valley Elementary "Stinkbugs" who placed third. First place category winners were Fawn Area "Wild Things" for wildlife, Wellsville "I" for forestry, Wellsville "I" for current events, and Fawn Area "Wild Things" for aquatics.

Twenty-five teams of six students from 22 schools participated. These were Conewago, Dallastown, Delta-Peach Bottom, Dover, Fawn Area, Friendship, Kralltown, Leaders Heights, Leib, Loganville-Springfield, North Hills, Orendorf, Ore Valley, Phineas Davis, Southern, Spring Grove, St. John Lutheran, St. Joseph School, Weiglestown, Wellsville, York Home School Association, and York Township.

The Envirothon is an environmental learning competition for students in grades 3-12. Fifth grade students are tested as a team of six in the areas of forestry, wildlife, aquatics, and a current event. This year's current event is watersheds.

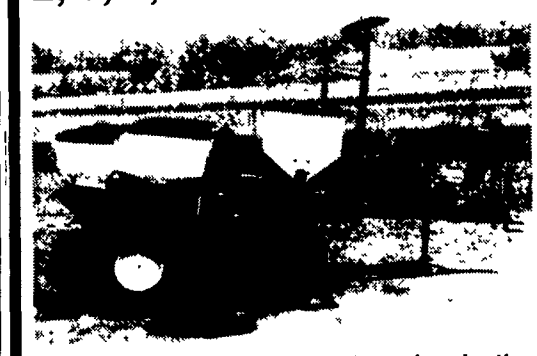
2, 3, 4, 6 Row PLANTERS



Accurate seed spacing and precise depth increase yield potential.

- Time-proven positive air metering system and edge drop seed discs gently singulate seeds to eliminate wasteful doubles.
- The short 18" seed drop makes seed spacing accurate.
- Consistent seed depth is assured through our independently operating walking beam gauge wheels... adjust in 1/8" increments.
- Low air pressure gently handles fragile seed coat.
- Fewer moving parts reduce maintenance and downtime.

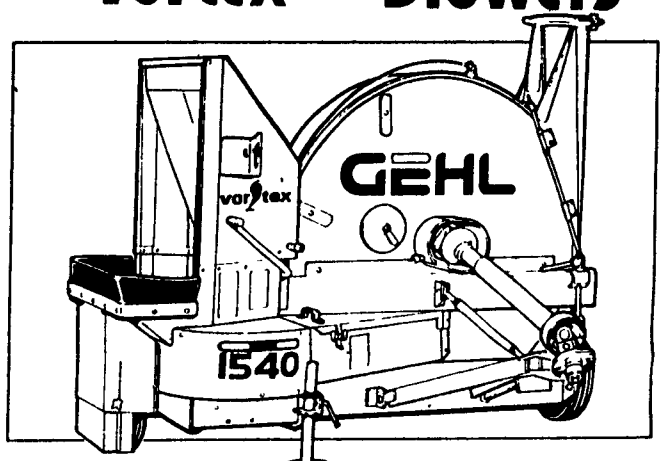
GEHL

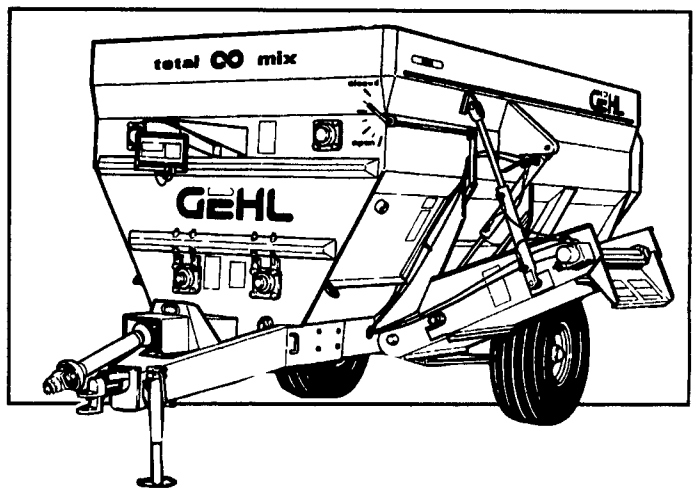
"Vortex™" Blowers



If you need a high-capacity forage blower to fill your tallest silos, Gehl Vortex blowers will help get your silo-filling done in short order.

- Three models - Your choice of 540 or 1,000 rpm operation.
- Twin spinners - Rifle material into the blower fan at nearly 35 mph.
- Twin-sided fan disc - Paddles on both sides shoot the crop up the pipe in nearly continuous flow.
- Split rim sheets - Feature a replaceable inner liner for longer life and lower maintenance costs.
- Many convenience features - Swing-away blower outlet, air vents, adjustable left tire, right tire guard, wide hopper, removable tunnel covers and duals water inlets.

TMR "Total Mix" Mixer Feeders



"Total Mix" TMR mixer feeders let you mix more long-stemmed hay into your ration - up to 30% by weight depending on hay type and mositure content.

- "Hay - slicer auger" - Incorporates knife assemblies into the two bottom augers.
- Better mixing action - Four-auger design creates a double figure - 8 mixing pattern for fast and complete mixing of all feed ingredients.
- Five sizes - 150 to 455 cubic feet capcities.

WHY BUY A CASE IH AXIAL-FLOW COMBINE?

- The Field Tracker option allows the header to follow ground contours and pivot side to side, independent of the combine, for maximum harvest efficiency.
- Our specialty rotor can harvest grain in wet conditions when conventional combines will not.
- The cab that revolutionized comfort, visibilty and convenience. Dozens of adjustments allow it to literally comform to the operator.
- New, 3-speed rotor drive in 2388 offers even greater reliability and more total speed range. Rotor speed easily adjusts from the operator platform or the rear of the machine. Exclusive belt technology extends belt life.
- Pressure-and flow-compensated hydraulics are f eatured on the header lift, reel lift, unloader swing, steering and the optional Field Tracker. This improves power efficiency and responsiveness.
- Optional straw and chaff spreader distributes chaff and crop residue evenly across the field.
- Chaffer sieve now has 3 adjustaable sections; the front, middle and rear sections adjust indepen dently for improved performance.
- The patented Cross Flow fan provides uniform airflow across the cleaning system - for cleaner grain, while using less horsepower.
- New, optional flotation tires (68.50.00 x 32) reduce soil compaction and provide better flotation in wet conditions.

WE HAVE MORE COMBINES IN STOCK THAN 90% OF THE DEALERS SELL ALL YEAR LONG!

Herbert Hoover Farney says, "I didn't think they could mix it."

Steve, Dale, and Herbert Hoover Farney
Silvery Falls Farms - Lowville, NY

Mr Farney is talking about mixing 11.5% long stem dry hay by ration weight in the Knight Reel Auggie 3450, which he and his sons decided to purchase in September of 1994

Herbert was born the day Herbert Hoover was elected president

The Farneys previously owned a three-auger Oswalt stationary unit. They state that the "old mixer tended to ball material up, especially in wetter forages, while the Reel Auggie 3450 'flufts' the ration."

The Farney's herd average is up about 1,000 lbs , and they have a higher protein test as well. They milk 160 Holsteins, and feed a total of 260 head. They like the low power requirement — the 390 cubic foot machine is powered by a John Deere 2030 tractor.

3000 Reel Auggie TMR Mixers
Now available in seven sizes with capacities from 147 to 600 cubic feet

Buy your JAGUAR early and get a monster of a deal*

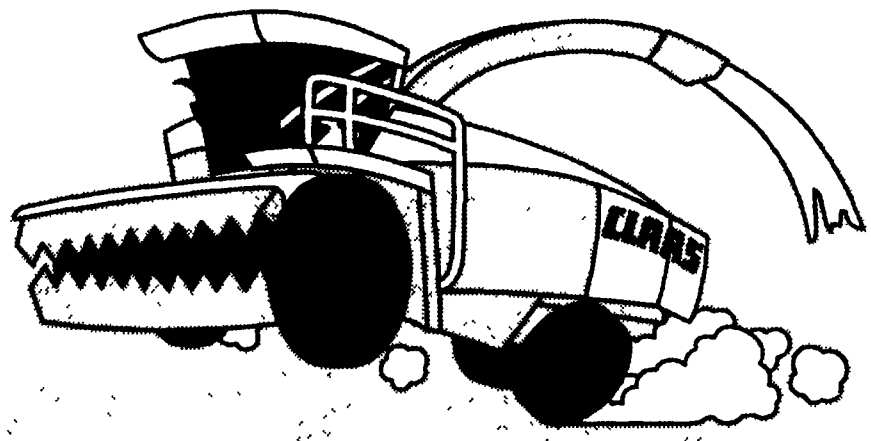
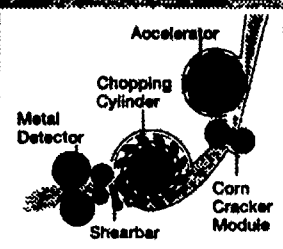
Hurry into CLAAS® before all the JAGUARS have escaped. See your CLAAS dealer for details and get the quality and performance you've come to expect from the world's leading producer of self-propelled forage harvesters. Then Unleash The Beast.



The corn cracker can be changed in just 5 minutes to switch from corn to hay. The Jaguar's efficient processing produces quality forage for higher milk yield.

The operator can safely sharpen the chopping knives and precisely adjust the shearbar from the driver's seat in seconds.

Service is so handy since because compartment covers quickly swing open to provide easy access to the engine and cooling system.



The Beast's efficient cutting system has a full width metal detector, 30" wide chevron cutting drum and full width 8-blade accelerator.

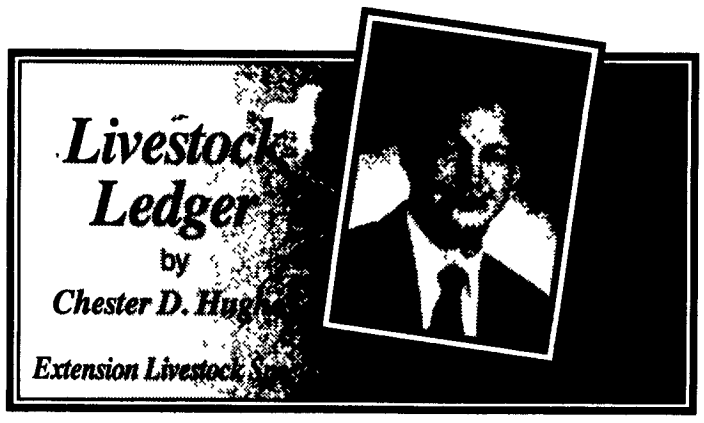
WORK HAVE GOODYEAR WRITTEN ALL OVER THEM



FAST-GROWING FOOD INDUSTRY

The food industry is expected to grow 1.6 percent per year, surpassing $800 billion in the year 2005. Food service could capture all of the $100 billion in incremental sales. New concepts such as broad menu fast-food chains and supermarkets' extensive prepared food offerings are likely to be the fastest-growing segments.

The beef industry has identified ways to build beef meal occasions and sales through the development of convenient meal solutions and home meal replacement. Industry leaders are also partnering with food service outlets to increase beef offerings through promotion and new product development.

Protection From The Sun

In photographs, television and film, the dominant image of a farmer usually includes a baseball hat — a fashion choice that could be unhealthy in the long run, according to an expert in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

Agricultural baseball caps, called "gimme" hats because they usually feature advertising for seed companies or heavy equipment equipment manufacturers, provide little protection from the sun, said Dennis Murphy, professor of agricultural engineering. "Baseball caps don't have a wide enough brim to offer much protection," Murphy said.

Sunshine is crucial for crops, but for farmers, prolonged unprotected exposure to the sun's ultraviolet rays can lead to skin cancers. Using the correct headwear could mean the difference between life and death.

Baseball caps, by far the most popular farming hat, really only protect the front part of the face, Murphy said. Wide-brimmed hats — such as cowboy hats, Australian bush hats, and straw hats liek those worn by Amish farmers — are an improvement, but even wide-brimmed hats are not foolproof.

"You really need a hat that will protect the neck, ears and temples," Murphy said.

The best style to wear is commonly known as the "French Foreign Legion" hat. This style features the generous brim of a baseball cap and adds a protective cloth to cover the neck and ears.

Another style to consider is the deerstalker cap, a double-brimmed style that covers the neck. The deerstalker style is most commonly associated with the fictional detective Sherlock Holmes.

According to medical statistics, more than 600,000 Americans will be diagnosed with skin cancer this year. Murphy says common sites for skin cancer include the face, tips of ears, hands, neck, forearms, and lips — areas that farmers typically leave uncovered.

To prevent skin cancer, farmers should use sunscreen regularly. Murphy suggests using a product with an SPF (sun protection factor) of at least 15, which will block 94 percent of the ultraviolet B rays most likely to cause skin cancer. The SPF factor is a rating that multiplies the protection naturally provided by the skin. For example, if your skin normally burns after an hour, using an SPF 15 sunscreen allows you 15 hours of exposure before burning.

Murphy recommends dressing safely as well. Wear lightweight long-sleeved shirts and long pants. Light-colored clothing reflects heat and sunlight. Workers never should go shirtless.

Sunglasses also are a must. Prolonged exposure to the sun can damage retinas, corneas, and the lens of the eye.

The sun is strongest between the hours of 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. Dermatologists recommend not working during these hours, but this is not a practical solution for most farmers, which is why the use of sunscreen and protective headwear by farmer is so important.

Strategic Deworming

A workable method of controlling internal parasites is termed strategic deworming. This implies there is specific timing for treatment. In our area, a strategic deworming program will include treatment 4-6 weeks after the cattle go to grass, and then a second treatment in early November.

There is some discussion about the need to deworm mature beef cows. There will be a benefit in milk production and cow condition (and its influence on reproduction) if a deworming program is instituted and maintained for a few years. Eventually, parasite loads will be reduced to the extent treatment can be discontinued and monitored through fecal samples until there is a buildup again.

The spring deworming coincides with a good time to ear tag, castrate, implant, and vaccinate calves for clostidial diseases. Therefore, the trouble of the trip through the chute can be a very profitable one.

There are several good products on the market that can be administered by injection, pour-on, or pastes. The least desirable form of delivery is feeding the product because of variations in intake and because of cost. Treatments in the fall can include products for lice and grub control that are combined with the dewormer or can be used separately.

Swine Mortality Composting

Penn State Extension Swine Specialist Dr. Ken Kephart has summarized the concept of composting swine mortality in the following paragraphs.

Composting is the aerobic decomposition of organic material by microorganisms. Because many aspects of composting are in exact, the process can occur over a wide range of conditions and with many materials.

For optimum composting, there should be 20 to 40 times as much carbon as nitrogen. Moisture content should be 40 to 65 percent. Particle size should be ¼ to ½ inches in diameter. The pH of the mix should lie between 5.5 and 9.0, and there should be at least 5 percent oxygen in the pile.

Because a pig carcass is high in water content and nitrogen (protein), you will need to add dry material and a source of carbon. Something like sawdust or straw works well. Many producers also add a small amount of manure to the mixture as a "starter culture" to enhance the process.

Build a two-stage system of bins. Load the primary bins with a layer of dry material (usually one foot), a layer of carcasses; continue layering until the bin is full. Be sure that the pile is covered with at least one foot of dry material after the layering is completed. A small amount of manure can be added to the layers of pigs if desired.

As the composting process starts, the temperature in the pile should rise to at least 120° F. (preferably 140°). If the mixture fails to reach these temperatures, there may be too much water, or not enough oxygen. After three to four weeks, move the pile to a secondary bin. This frees up space in your primary bin for more carcasses and the moving process will re-introduce air into the mixture.

Three to four weeks after moving the material to the secondary bin, the composting should be completed, and you can land-apply the remaining material. Actual composting times will vary depending upon your conditions.

Provide 30 square feet of bin space per 1,000 pounds of carcass composted annually, including primary and secondary bins. Making the primary bins no larger than 12 x 16 (or at least making a long-narrow windrow for the primary composting area) will help air circulation. A field project conducted in Lebanon County used primary bins that were about 6 x 7, and used a large area (resembling an aisle) behind the primary bins as one large secondary bin. This seemed to work well.

Don't allow moisture to enter the mixture. Composting can proceed without a roof, but if there are extended periods of rain or wet snow, the pile may get soggy and compacted, which will shut down the composting process. Some producers have successfully composted animals without a cover by using long straw or corn stalks to shed rain water.

Don't completely enclose the facility. The composting process will release a lot of moisture, so the facility should be open on three or four sides. Cold weather will not be a problem as long as the pigs are not frozen when they're added to the pile.

Foundation Name Changes

ROCHESTER, N.Y. — The charitable foundation formerly known as the Curtice Burns/Pro-Fac Foundation has been renamed The Agrilink Foods/Pro-Fac Foundation. This new name reflects a corporate name change last September from Curtice Burns Foods to Agrilink Foods.

Snyder of Berlin, in Berlin, Pa., is an AgriLink business and the community receives funds from the Foundation.

Created in 1966, the Foundation provides grants to not-for-profit programs operating in communities where Agrilink Foods has facilities or where Pro-Fac members are located. Primary giving areas include health, community Service, education, youth, agricultural research and cultural programs.

Improving Management Raises Satisfaction

John Rutherford
Lebanon County
Extension Office

A major car manufacturer recently used a television commercial with the profound statement that happiness is derived from what you have, not what else you can buy. In other words, a person needs to manage what they own to give them the greatest personal benefit.. As of late, farmers do not seem to be getting much benefit out of dairying. If there is not a low milk price, low calf price, late bill, machinery breakdown, sick cow, disgruntled neighbor, or unmotivated employee to deal with, it's been a pretty rare day. In many cases, reviewing your farm procedures will help you by-pass these (and other) problems. Here are some possibilities for improving the benefits you get from producing milk.

The first management step toward improving the status of your farm is to establish a system of controlling. You can control of the things that seem to control you! Various activities take place on a farm each day. Keeping track of each activity and making adjustments - BEFORE major problems arise, is to control the activity By looking at milk production daily, crop growth weekly, or accounts payable balances monthly, you can tell if they are adequate or starting to go astray.

Milk price is one aspect of farming that receives a lot of complaints. Here are two ways to increase the price received for milk. First, increase the quality of the milk shipped. Depending on who buys your milk, you can receive as much as 40- cents more per cwt. Hedging against low milk prices is a new opportunity for dairy farmers. By understanding the use of milk futures, you could have received a dollar more for milk shipped last August.

Dairy producers have a number of opportunities to cut costs on their farms. Many farms could benefit by evaluating the individual enterprises and making appropriate changes. Enterprises are the separable pieces of the farm operation. If you raise corn for on-farm grain, silage, and to be sold, you have three corn enterprises- feed grain, silage, and market grain. This also applies to animals. There can be enterprises for heifers, milking cows, pigs, broilers, etc.

By analyzing your farm as group of enterprises, you can look the results you want and how they may be met more cost-effectively. Is there another way to get that same outcome for less cost? What I mean is, can you buy corn for less than it cost to raise?

When it's time to replace equipment it's also a good time to think whether the new equipment is worth its cost, or could the money be used elsewhere. Are custom operators available that will do as good (possibly better) a job for roughly less cost per year? Lancaster Farmer recently published the 1998 Machinery Custom Rates list that the Pennsylvania Agricultural Statistics Service (PASS) released this year. Copies of this list are available in most Pennsylvania county extension offices

The animal enterprises also have possibilities. Keeping the herd at its maximum size allows you to receive more income with which to pay for fixed costs- like the cow barn and silos. Is the lack of quality replacement heifers eroding the profit your farm should generate? Some dairy farms contract out the raising of their heifers.

A new development has been the formation of buyer groups. These groups take advantage of the discounts available when large-lot purchases are made.

Finally, farmers need to redouble their efforts to keep current on all outstanding bills. A 1% or 1.5% charge per month on balances may not seem like much, over a full year this is 12 to 18%. For every $1,000 in average balances carried, you are paying $120 to $180 per year. If the interest is compounded, you are paying even more. Watch for incentives to pay early. A 1/2% discount for paying within 10 days is the equivalent of an 18% annual discount. How often can you borrow on your line of credit for less than 18%?

These are some ideas for improving the performance of your farm. Improving your income while limiting expenses and risks should be goals of every manager. Many of these changes do not involve investing any more money. However, they can help ensure that you enjoy dairying for many years to come.

Ag Horizons Conference July 28

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Ag Horizons IX Conference is scheduled July 28 here at the Wildwood Conference Center.

Risk Management is the focus of the program. As an educator, you need to understand the principles and techniques of managing risk though trading commodities, using hedging, options, and futures.

Ag Horizons is a program designed especially for educators in agriculture, whether in a classroom, club, adult farmer program, or in extension. The Southeast Regional Council of Cooperatives, the Pennsylvania Council of Cooperatives, and Penn State University sponsor this program. Please encourage a fellow educator, perhaps someone from the faculty of your area high school's social sciences department, to attend with you.

Graduate credit at Penn State can, as in the past, be earned in conjunction with Ag Horizons. If you wish to register for credit or want more information on registration at Penn State, please indicate this on your registration form. The cost for one graduate credit is $266 (in state), $447 (out-of-state), and $66.50 if you are a Penn State employee.

For more information, contact Jim Barnett (215-322-0200), Richard Poorbaugh (814-863-0644), Carol Duncan (610-693-5601), John Schwartz (717-394-6851), James George (717-368-3066), Jeff Stoltzfus (717-354-1522), Jerry Ogline (717-249-1711), Chuck Suloff (215-257-1175), or Jerry Phillips (717-291-4543).

Drill Monitors Indicate Trouble, Track Acres

ATLANTA, Ga. — The new programmable electronic drill monitor and acremeter from Tye bring drill monitoring into the tractor cab. The new monitor provides the tractor operator with valuable information and warns him of impending trouble.

"There are many things for the operator to manage and keep an eye on, so it's easy to lose track of one of them," said Andy Anderson, Tye marketing manager. "That is why we have introduced our new monitor and acremeter."

A built-in alarm in the monitor warns the operator if a seeder shaft slows or stops. This should help prevent conditions where one side of a drill continues to work at the required rate while the other slows, resulting in field skips or reduced stands.

Other sensors connected to the readout unit mounted in the cab monitor grain levels in two of the grain boxes. Should they fall below a desired level, the monitor indicates the low level to the operator for refill at the next convenient stopping point.

Accurate field records produced at planting serve as the base for many other field operations, including evaluating yields. The Tye Acremeter provides the operator with the most accurate acreage monitoring to date. The meter tracks both total acres seeded and the acreage of the current field.

The Tye Acremeter and optional Programmable Electronic Drill Monitor are available on all new Tye 2000 Series drill systems. They also are available for quick and easy field installation on existing Tye drills.

A built-in alarm in the monitor warns the operator if a seeder shaft slows or stops. This should help prevent conditions where one side of a drill continues to work at the required rate while the other slows, resulting in field skips or reduced stands.

Case Introduces MX Series Tractors

RACINE, Wis. — Case Corporation has announced the expansion of its popular MX Series line with five new models specially designed, with customer input, to meet livestock and row crop applications.

Three new models, the MX80C, MX90C and MX100C, are rated at 67, 74, and 83 PTO horsepower. Two additional models, the MX150 and MX170, boast 130 and 145 PTO horsepower, respectively.

"Our customers with livestock told us they were looking for highly maneuverable, under-85-horsepower tractors for heavy-duty loader applications. At the same time, our row crop customers were looking for additional horsepower and performance in an MX Series tractor," said Steve Dunmore, Case tractor marketing manager.

"With the success of the 85 to 115 horsepower Maxxum tractors already in the marketplace, we chose to expand this popular family with models tailored to specified livestock and row crop applications."

The new 130 and 145 PTO horsepower MX150 and MX170 bring additional strength to the current Case IH MX Series tractor line. Greater hydraulic, transmission, final drive, and hitch capacities and Magnum-caliber components give these tractors outstanding power for row crop applications.

Three new models — the MX80C (67 PTO hp), MX90C (74 PTO hp) and MX100C (83 PTO hp) — are all designed with the livestock producer in mind. All are equipped with cabs and MFD drive systems. They offer up to 37 percent PTO torque rise for superior PTO performance. They also feature viscous fans, in-line core radiators, in-line oil coolers and turbochargers.

From the ground up, these tractors are designed for maneuverability. With that in mind, the wheelbase has been shortened to less than eight feet. All three have structural engines for a narrower profile and a tighter turning radius, estimated at 12.9 feet. Even the overall height has been lowered three inches for the additional clearance needed for inside work.

These tractors feature a standard 16-speed forward/12-speed reverse semi-powershift transmission with a wet clutch. A powershuttle transmission with left-hand control is also standard for greater operator convenience in loader applications. Creeper transmissions are available for special applications.

Deere Announces New Rotary MoCo's

MOLINE, Ill. — John Deere announces a new family of rotary MoCo's for the 1998 model year that provide greater mobility, durability, and quieter operation than previous models.

The new 915, 925, and 935 Rotary Moco's have cutting widths of 8 feet 2 inches, 9 feet 9 inches, and 11 feet 6 inches, respectively. They replace the 910, 920, and 930 models. At 14 feet 6 inches, the new 955 Center-Pivot Rotary MoCo is the largest rotary MoCo John Deere has ever produced. It joins the 945 Center-Pivot Rotary MoCo with its 13-foot 1-inch cutting width in the John Deere product line.

New high-contact-ratio gears in the John Deere-built rotary cutterbar feature increased tooth contact for quieter operation. Open converging and drums on each end of the cutterbar and crop accelerators on the outside disks help move the crop smoothly from the cutterbar to the conditioner.

The cutterbar angle can be changed easily to match crop or cutting requirements. Hydraulic adjustment of the cutterbar angle is available as an option.

Shearhubs, found only on John Deere MoCo's, protect the cutterbar from internal damage if a disk hits a solid object, such as a rock. The cutting disks rotate toward the center of the cutting platform for improved cutting performance.

The 915, 925, and 935 MoCo's feature improved shielding. Molded plastic panels are secured to a framework to form the access door to the cutterbar. The double-wall construction of these panels helps maintain a good appearance if the underside is struck by a rock.

John Deere rotary MoCo's include the new 915, 925, and 935 MoCo's, the new 955 Center-Pivot MoCO, and the 945 Center-Pivot MoCo. All feature a John Deere rotary cutterbar and a choice of impeller or urethane-roll conditioning.

Vermeer Loads Up With Round Bale Handler

PELLA, Iowa — A new, all-purpose bale handler with the flexibility to manage a variety of bale sizes and transport needs has recently been introduced by Vermeer Manufacturing Co.

The new BH1000 Bale Handler features unique, adjustable dual rollers with rolling sleeves designed to gently cradle, lift, and carry a bale — making it ideal for transporting wrapped silage bales without damaging the wrap.

An overarm protection guard helps prevent the bale from rolling back during lift and transport. The rugged, heavy-duty construction can handle loads up to 2,200 pounds (with proper tractor balance). Bale sizes range from 4 feet wide x 4 feet in diameter, up to 5 feet x 5 feet. The unit also can be converted into a spiked bale mover capable of carrying two unwrapped bales simultaneously by simply removing the rolling sleeves.

The hydraulically-powered BH1000 attaches to either a loader or a 3-point mount and requires a minimum 50 hp tractor with a double-acting hydraulic cylinder.

Dekalb Maximizes 1998 Sales Goals

DEKALB, Ill. — The acceptance by farmers of Dekalb Brand Roundup Ready® Corn and DekalBt™ corn in 1998 has been tremendous.

In fact, customer orders are so strong that Dekalb Genetics Corporation has accomplished more than 100 percent of its sales goals for these exciting new technologies.

Seed production has gone well in South America, say Dekalb officials. Production plants there are in the middle of harvest and are on target to meet Dekalb's commitment to have the seed back here in time for spring planting. The South America operation produced more than 500,000 bags of seed in winter production between Roundup Ready and Bt Corn.

"We've effectively sold out of our Roundup Ready Corn that we anticipated on producing in South America this winter," said Vernon Benes, Dekalb Roundup Ready Corn marketing manager. "Sales have been strong. The market acceptance has been outstanding for this new technology. Dekalb is clearly leading the industry with Roundup Ready corn and growers recognize this."

Dekalb has aggressively been involved in successfully bringing new technologies to the marketplace. "The new technology brought to the marketplace by Dekalb this year has solidified Dekalb's leadership role in biotech research and product development in the industry," said Mark Herrmann, DekalBt Corn marketing manager. "In their quest to identify all management opportunities to increase productivity, growers have adopted new technologies very quickly."

Technology only has value if it brings growers an increase in product performance and profit. "In more than 1,000 side-by-sides last year, DekalBt, including both YieldGard® Bt and Bt-Xtra™ Bt traits, produced more than an eight percent increase in yield per acre versus the non-Bt counterpart. The data comes from side-by-sides across high and low pressure corn borer areas in the United States," said Herrmann. "DekalBt's track record of protecting corn from yield loss caused by European corn borers is attractive to growers. Roundup Ready and Bt Corn provide growers with new management tools they've needed and wanted to bring increased value to their crop production acres."

Asgrow Expands East Coast Corn Testing Program

GALENA, Md. — Asgrow Seed Company LLC will substantially expand its corn testing program on the East Coast this season.

To better evaluate the performance of its corn hybrids in the region, Asgrow is doubling the number of locations from New York to North Carolina where Asgrow hybrids will be tested this year.

Joe Maloney, Asgrow corn research assistant, will supervise testing at seven locations in Pennsylvania, Maryland, North Carolina, and Virginia. In addition, several other North Carolina testing sites will be supervised by district sales manager Jesse Lewis.

"Hybrids will be tested under various environments, tillage practices, fertility programs, and irrigated and dryland conditions," Maloney said. This will allow Asgrow to evaluate new technology, such as high-oil, Bt and herbicide-tolerant hybrids, under diverse growing conditions.

Locations are Buck, Pa.; Linkwood, Hebron (a Monsanto research farm) and Queenstown, Md.; Charles City, Va.; and Kinston, N.C.; plus Asgrow's research station in Galena, Md.

Most of the hybrids being tested are either current Asgrow products or are still one to three years from market introduction. The program will concentrate on hybrids that Asgrow is likely to sell in the East Coast region.

"I also will be working closely with Seedway — the Asgrow distributor in this area — on its plots," said Maloney. "This will give us the opportunity to evaluate Asgrow hybrids from New York to North Carolina. We'll be able to generate more date more locations, giving us solid results on which to base recommendations."

Under this system, hybrids with maturities ranging from 90 days in New York to 123 days in the Carolinas will be evaluated.

Eckroth Bros. Farm Equipment, New Ringgold, PA

The Eckroth organization is celebrating 51 years in the Farm Equipment business. Eugene and Daniel Eckroth continue the history of serving Case IH customers started by their grandfather back in 1947. Today the Eckroth organization consists of three locations: Eckroth Bros. Farm Equipment in New Ringgold, the original shop and store; Eckroth Equipment Company in Orefield; and D & E Equipment in Bloomsburg.

"We feel strongly that we want to treat people like we want to be treated," Dan said. "We take time to listen to their needs and help them where we can. No high pressure. Just the help they want."

The dealerships send parts nationwide and do on-farm service work where needed in their respective areas. They are a full line dealership that includes, combines, tractors, skid loaders and tillage and planting equipment. Past customers are appreciated and the Eckroth team looks forward to serving many past and new customers in the future.

BOU-MATIC

Equipment & Systems To Improve Your Bottom Line

BOUMATIC
First In Product Innovation

Because good companions are hard to come by...

Bou-Matic introduces its new Companion Portable Stall Barn Detacher

Finally A portable detacher that milks your cows as reliably as a faithful companion Plus the companion offers other great features like

- Full-flow sensing and non-restrictive shut-off that reduces vacuum fluctuation and vacuum drop, so cows are milked faster
- Programmable, filtered alternating pulsation, so you are able to customize your herd's milkout
- Adjustable letdown delay, to help prevent premature detaches

The Companion portable detacher. Dependable, reliable, faithful. Only from Bou-Matic.

BOUMATIC
The Dairy Equipment Division of DEC International Inc

Perfect your dairy operation...

With the Bou-Matic Perfection 3000 milk meter.

Unsurpassed milk measurement accuracy That's what the Perfection offers you But that's not all you get

- Small, compact design
- Simple, non-motorized operation
- Built-in milk conductivity sensor

Of course, what really matters in a milk meter is how accurate it is And that's what the Perfection excels at

Plus, if you use the Perfection milk meter in conjunction with the ProVantage Integrated Management System, you've just added an endless amount of management possibilities

Office Issues Alfalfa Patent

WEST BEND, Wis. — The U.S. Patent Office recently issued an alfalfa patent for Sequential Maturity™ Alfalfa to inventor Dr. Paul Sun and Dairyland Seed Co., Inc.

Company officials state that this patent recognizes an important productivity breakthrough thnks to this technologial advance by the plant breeding research group at Dairyland.

"This new technology represents a true productive advance for today's alfalfa grower," stated Dairyland CEO Tom Strachota. "Thanks to this technology, farmers for the first time can select alfalfa with maturities just like they select corn varieties."

Strachota notes that farmers have been telling Dairyland for the last 10 years that they annually lose one-quarter to one-third of their hay due to poor quality. By using alfalfa with different maturities, farmers can improve the volume of high-quality forage that they harvest off the same number of acres.

Alfalfa consultants and university experts also see value in this technology. "Varied maturity alfalfa represents real progress to the serious alfalfa grower," said Midwest Alfalfa Consultant Art Dilley. "With approximately 40 percent of the yield taken from the first harvest, use of an early maturity or a late maturity alfalfa puts the farmer in a much better position to harvest high-quality forage from his entire first cut."

Dr. Neal Martin of the University of Minnesota also sees value in this technology. "There is real potential with varied maturity alfalfa varieties to harvest more high-quality forage."

Currently Dairyland markets two alfalfa that are derived through this technology. The earlier maturity (Forecast 1000) alfalfa can provide farmers an earlier forage harvest which can be important in springs when forage supplies are short. In addition, Forecast 1000 provides the opportunity for an extra harvest off that same acreage in a long growing season.

Alternatively Forecast 3000, a late maturity alfalfa, is an ideal fit for three-cut harvest systems which have recently received University extension endorsements as the best suited system for the Midwest. Strachota indicated that the release of these alfalfa is based on more than a decade of research and that both yield and persistence of the products was thoroughly proven in university and on-farm trials before the products were released.

Chemgro Seeds', located in East Petersburg, is the Northeast distributor for Dairyland Seeds.

NK® Brand Bt Hybrids Closer To OK

GOLDEN VALLEY, Minn. — Novartis Seeds, Inc.-Fieldcrops announced that NK® Brand Bt corn hybrids with YieldGard® are a step closer to being approved for import and sale in Europe.

The E.U. Regulatory Committee voted in favor of the European Commission proposal to allow the free-flow of Bt grain from NK YieldGard hybrids for use as animal feed or as a food ingredient.

The Regulatory Committee decision now awaits adoption by the European Commission and the United Kingdom, the sponsoring country for the NK YieldGard dossier. These final steps will likely take place over the next several weeks.

"This process involves extensive interactions with European Commission, regulators, and scientists in the European Commission and the member states," said Rich Lotstein, Novartis Seeds director of regulatory and governmen affairs.

In comparing the approval process of the NK Knock*Out*® products with the YieldGard hybrids, Lotstein said, "both were pretty tough, thorough, and long processes clearly demonstrating that Bt corn hybrids are safe for food, feed, and the environment."

Three other products were also considered at the Regulatory Committee meeting where NK YieldGard Bt corn hybrids were given a go-ahead; a Bt corn from Monsanto and a herbicide-tolerant corn and a herbicide-tolerant rapeseed from AgrEvo.

Previously, the Novartis Seeds Bt corn hybrids with Knock*Out* and YieldGard passed comprehensive regulatory reviews in the U.S., E.U., Canada, and Japan. While regulatory agencies have ensured the safety and environmental benefits of the new technology, farmers around the world have recognized the economic benefits of Bt corn. In the U.S. more than 4.5 million acres were planted to BT hybrids in 1997. More than twice as many Bt acres are expected to be planted in 1998.

In celebration of its 100-year history, Erb & Henry, begun in 1898 under the name of Houck and Henry, scheduled a series of major events. Early in the month a public auction was held and a parts and service discount promotion was conducted. In back, from left, Lawrence R. "Butch" Clauss Jr., Sandra R. Moser, Jason Clauss, and Lawrence R. Clauss III. In front is Mark Clauss.

Erb & Henry Celebrates Anniversary

NEW BERLINVILLE (Berks Co.) — One company, begun before the automotive age, specialized in farm implements and became an International Harvester (IH) dealer on opening day.

Since then, Erb & Henry has gradually expanded its business and continues to carry Case/IH parts and other brands of farm, lawn, and garden equipment.

In celebration of its 100-year history, Erb & Henry, begun in 1898 under the name of Houck and Henry, scheduled a series of major events. Early in the month a public auction was held and a parts and service discount promotion was conducted.

The original company was located on North Reading Avenue in New Berlinville. In 1918, the company began to sell tractors. In 1921 the business was acquired by William R. Erb, an employee of Houck and Henry. A partnership was formed in 1923 between Erb and Isaac Henry. In 1947, the present building on Henry Avenue, a mile north of Boyertown, was built. The firm incorporated under Erb & Henry in 1958. In 1974, the Henry Avenue location was expanded to include a warehouse and shop area.

In 1973 the company was purchased by Lawrence R. Clauss Sr., Lawrence R. Clauss Jr., and Sandra R. Moser. The company continues to operate under the name Erb and Henry Equipment, Inc.

The company's centerpiece is the parts and service area along with a computer system to meet the needs of customers.

President of Erb & Henry is Lawrence R. "Butch" Clauss Jr., who is also sales manager. Sandra R. Moser is office manager. Marvin Jones is service manager. Kevin Fronheiser serves as parts manager.

The company sells Case/IH parts, DeLaval dairy equipment, Jamesway barn equipment, Kubota tractors, Meyers snowplows and snow equipment, Brouwers sod equipment, Woodchuck chippers, Howard Price turf equipment, Befco mowers and other equipment, Grasshopper lawn equipment, Woods mower and blades, and Cub Cadet lawn and garden equipment.

The anniversary celebration is dedicated to Lawrence R. Clauss, Sr. (1925-1995) and the former owners Isaac Henry, Edna Henry, and William Erb, "who dedicated most of their adult lives to keeping this business alive and running," according to Lawrence Clauss Jr. The event celebrates also the many dedicated employees "who have worked hard to keep our many customers' equipment serviced and repaired over the last 100 years," he noted.

Employees, number of years served, and their responsibilities include Donald Gehris, 26 years, parts person; Thomas Borcher, 20 years, truck driver; Marvin Jones, 25 years, service manager; Mark A. Drey, 22 years, office worker; Fred Doberstein, 16 years, mechanic; Mark Clauss, 11 years, mechanic; Lloyd Kuser, 14 years, mechanic; Samuel Mast, nine years, assembly and handling, welding and fabrication; Lawrence R. Clauss, III, eight years, assembly and handling, welding and fabrication; Charles Long, 20 years, mechanic; Kevin Fronheiser, nine years, parts manager; Paul Moser, three years, mechanic; Jason Clauss, two years, parts man; Gregory Haas, one year, parts man; and Gerald Kuser, 14 years, salesman. Additional employees include David "Tiny" Heimbach, sales person; Sharon Clauss, eight years, sales person; and Barton Ziegler, 20 years, salesman.

FMC Adds New Customer Response System

PHILADELPHIA — Growers need quick answers to crop protection chemical questions. Because time is of the essence when making farming operation decisions, customer support is a key component of today's agricultural chemical business.

To provide the best level of customer support, FMC Corporation has set up two new avenues of communications with its customers — a new toll-free hotline and an Internet web site.

"The new customer support hotline is designed to serve growers, dealers, ag consultants, and farm managers," said Jim Fitzwater, FMC communications manager. Trained customer service representatives will be on hand to quickly answer questions about FMC's products and services."

The customer support center will field calls that range from technical assistance and product information to complaints and emergency situations. Customers with highly technical questions will be transferred immediately to an available FMC technical service representative who can answer their questions.

Customers can access the customer support center by calling (888) 59-FMC-G (1-888-593-6224) between the hours of 8 a.m. and 5 p.m., Central Standard Time. A voice mail system will answer calls after hours.

In addition to getting answers quickly via the hotline, growers can also obtain crucial information by visiting FMC's website at ag.fmc.com. The Farming Solutions web site, launched in November 1997, gives customers access to product labels, product usage information, and pest information.

Color photographs of common weed and insect problems are provided to help users better identify their pest problems. Once the problem is identified, specifics about the pest and treatment options are given. The web site also provides an opportunity for customers to ask questions via e-mail to get answers.

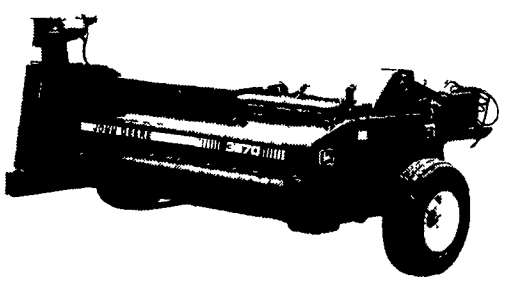
Kernel Processor Retrofit Kit

Put a kernel processor in your JD 3950 or 3970 Harvester.



Shown above is a John Deere model 3970 with installation of the kit completed. Successful installations typically do not affect the horse power requirements on the tractor. Many farmers remove half of the chopper knives to result in a better milled product.

Removing four bolts on each side of the insert, and removing the drive belts, allows the insert to be lifted out of the harvester to be replaced by the haylage chute

THINK CONCRETE WHEN PLANNING YOUR FEED STORAGE!!

"This is the kind of silo you need to protect your valuable feed."

"HOW WILL YOU BE STORING YOUR VALUABLE FORAGES AND GRAINS IN THE 21ST CENTURY?

It's not too early to begin planning your storage and feeding systems for the year 2000 and beyond.

As margins narrow, dairymen need to invest in efficiency; this can have as great an influence on PROFIT as milk price changes.

Protect your valuable feeds from the elements... increase the efficiency of your feeds, your animals, and your labor.

NEW Now there's a better material for porch, dormer, or any low-slope roof

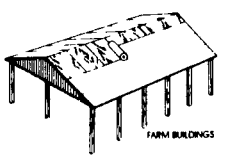
DORMER AND PORCH ROOFS



FARM BUILDINGS

MOBILE HOMES

You can apply this new, heavy duty roll roofing to new or existing roofs faster and with less mess or danger than other methods. No hot tar or sticky messes. Peel & Seal has an adhesive back that sticks to most surfaces. The aluminized face reduces rooftop temperature as much as 22.5%. It's self-cleaning and has multiple layers of polymer film and rubberized asphalt that self seal around punctures. Won't crack or dry out like tar and other roll roofing. Call today for sample & literature.

"ATTENTION DAIRYMEN"

Sprung Farms of Bergen, NY and J Elvin Glick of Quarryville, PA have been supplying area dairymen with high quality forages for years, so we would like to introduce a new type of service, "Alfalfa Balage" "Alfalfa Balage" has been around for a time now and has proven to make a great source of feed providing that the farmer gets what he pays for To help resolve this problem we would like to introduce an "on your farm service" which would include fresh baled alfalfa in easy to use 4' or 5' round bales. 1. Delivered immediately after baling, unwrapped for total inspection of quality and pureness of product, 2. After total satisfaction has been determined, a wrapping service by one of our local area farmers would take place at any site desired by buyer, 3. We can also offer two kinds of wrapping service, either single bale, individually or tube type by state of the art new wrappers.
Because we are so sure that our product and service is second to none, we can also offer a term type payment schedule with no interest to help spread out puchase to help with cash flow. If this offer interests you please call us to talk more about this and possibly we can arrange a personal meeting.
We also still carry our full line of small square bales of hay:
1. Alfalfa 3. Bedding
2. Timothy/Alfalfa 4. Western Hay
We also have single bale individually wrapped balage available. Any size load is available.

WHEN CHOOSING A HOOF TRIMMER CONSIDER THE FOLLOWING:

EXPERIENCE

KNOWLEDGE
Of today's hoof care problems as well as corrective measures.

DEPENDABILITY

REALISTIC
I can't do 100 head a day, but I can do 20-25 a day correctly at competitive prices.

I WOULD LIKE TO HELP YOU IMPROVE YOUR HERD!

Serving the East Coast
